The engagement of Miss Diana Lynn Griffith to Gregory Dean Waller of Tustin has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Griffith of Fountain Valley.

The bride-elect graduated from Cal State Fullerton where her fiance is completing his master's degree. He is the son of Dorothy Dahm of Santa Ana and a member of Delta Sigma Phi fraternity.

Wayfarer's Chapel, Rancho Palos Verdes, will be the setting for their March 6 wedding.

Carlson-Riemer

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Carlson hosted a brunch in their Santa Ana home to announce the engagement of their daughter, Judith Grace, and Craig Grant Riemer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Riemer, also of Santa Ana.

Special guests included the bride-to-be's godparents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gage of Sierra Madre, and the future bridegroom's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Riemer of Santa Ana.

Miss Carlson attended the University of California at Irvine where she was affiliated with Pi Beta Phi soroity, and will graduate from UCLA in June. Her future husband will graduate from the University of California at Riverside in June.

St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Tustin, will be the setting for the couple's Aug. 6, wedding.

Rules For Reporting Engagement, Wedding

Wedding bells to ring soon? If so please read our rules for publication so we may help you with two important events in your life: your engagement and wedding.

Forms to assist you are available by sending a stamped self-addressed envelope with request for engagement and-or wedding forms to The Register Wedding Department, P.O. Box 11626, Santa Ana, 92711 or by coming to the office at 625 N. Grand Ave., Santa Ana. All information must be printed or typed and include a telephone number where you may be reached during the day.

ENGAGEMENTS

Engagements announced six weeks or less before the wedding will not be used. Stories will be published (without pictures) when space is available.

WEDDINGS

Wedding stories and pictures should be in the Wedding Department ONE WEEK preceding the wedding date or earlier.

Pictures should be sharp, black and white glossies of the bride only. A formal pose in wedding gown is not required.

Weddings received after the deadline will be cut short and used in the Wedding Belles Column WITHOUT pictures.

ADRIEN ARPEL SKIN SPAS

The Adrien Arpel Skin Experts will be in our Beauty Studios to introduce you to the new Bio-Cellular Skin Renewal Clinics... a complete, retexturizing facial treatment, individually programmed to benefit your particular skin condition. 12.50 including a bonus of 1/4 oz. Peel-Off for at home skin care. Plus, a complete complimentary make-up application.

SKIN VEGETABLE PEEL OFF & PUMICE: Organic peel sloughs of external layer of dead skin.
SKINFEEDING: Nutritious Bio-Cellular cremes are mechanically fed into moisture starved skin.

PARRAFIN HEAT TREATMENT: Warm parrafin is brush-painted onto your face to melt sebaceous oils and seal in benefits of the prescribed treatments.

SKIN IRONING: A mini-facial iron (heated for dry skin) is pressed over trouble spots magnified by the parrafin skin seal.

WARM WAX MASK REMOVAL: Shows you the amount of pore-clogging pollution, infectious skin soil and stale make-up residue ordinary cleansing leaves behind.

Modern Medieval Living

By MAURA HENNESSY
For AP Newsfeatures

STORRS, Conn. (AP) - Dust off your coat of arms, call up your favorite wench and break open a bottle of mead.

The 10-year-old Society for Creative Anachronism (SCA) is reviving those dark ages of the past - the Middle Ages.

But the revival doesn't embrace all aspects of the Middle Ages, said member Jeffrey A. DeLuca of Willimantic, Conn. There is no religious persecution, no famine and "we try not to spread the plague."

"Chivalry with indoor plumbing" is how one member of the University of Connecticut branch described the current Middle Ages.

The SCA, begun in 1966 in California, now has about 3,000 members in 35 chapters.

The annual Pentathlon of Arts has five categories of competition and guilds for wizards, cooks, exotic dancers and archers, DeLuca said. The next Pentathlon will be held early this year,probably in Philadelphia.

The SCA values chivalry and expects all members to behave like gentlewomen and gentlemen, he said. Royalty and "revolting barbarians" alike are called "gentles," he added.

Medieval clothes are required at SCA events, said 21-year-old Susan R. Tallmadge of Hartford, Conn. But she said gentles don't refer to them as "costumes" because they aren't just pretending to be medieval people - they really are medieval people.

John L. Leland, a knight who is also a Ph.D. candidate in medieval studies at Yale, said each gentle picks a pre-1650 identity, with a name, skill and appropriate clothing.

The identities may not be lifted directly from history or fiction. But a fan of Ivan the Terrible could choose to be called Ivan the Temperamental.

Of course, not many gentles choose to be serfs. "You have more fun as a Lord," said Leland, or Count Sir Jehan de la Marche.

The SCA is not invulnerable to modern movements such as women's liberation. To keep its tax-exempt status, the SCA must allow women to joust with male contenders for the throne. Could a woman become king? "Unequivocally maybe," Leland said.

The SCA holds jousting tournaments - so far without horses - and craft fairs and revels, or medieval merrymaking.

After most events, gentles gather for feasts, which include fermented milk, fermented honey (mead), and trenchers: flat, rounds of bread used to eat other foods from before they are eaten.

The SCA also has wars between its various kingdoms. The East Kingdom fights an annual war with the Middle Kingdom over the Barony-Marche of the Debatable Lands, or Pittsburgh, DeLuca said.

The loser gets Pittsburgh.

NSA Groups To Convene

Two chapters of the National Secretaries Association (NSA) have slated meetings for Thursday, Jan. 13.

BAHIA

Bahia Chapter members will meet at 6 p.m. in the Seacliff Country Club, Huntington Beach. Judge Betty Lou Lamoreaux, will give a talk about her trip to Russia.

Ms. Lamoreaux, who was appointed Superior Court Judge in September, has practiced law in Orange County since 1962. She has also been on the faculty of Irvine University School of Law and Pepperdine University Orange County College of Trial Advocacy.

Reservations may be made with Mrs. Robert Thorne of Fountain Valley.

VALENCIA

Valencia Chapter will convene at 7:30 p.m. in Western Federal Savings and Loan, Beach Boulevard and Imperial Highway, La Habra.

Tax shelters and the Tax Reform Act will be discussed by guest speaker Barbara Luhman of Haskins and Sells, Santa Ana.

Reservations may be made by contacting Marge Hughes of the Brakeley Co., Los Angeles.

Grits Casserole

A make with Mom recipe!

Grits are thought to be a Southern recipe. They are made from corn. One kid said, "Some grits look like baby rice!" They are good served hot, mixed with butter, salt and pepper. You can buy the instant kind, or you might want to try to make a casserole.

You'll need:
2 cups grits
1 tablespoon salt
8 cups water
1 tablespoon butter
2 beaten eggs
1 cup sharp cheese
1 cup milk

Cook grits in salted water until thick. Put them in a mixing bowl. Add milk, grated cheese, salt, pepper, butter. Let mixture cool and then add eggs. Mix and pour into a baking dish. Bake at 350° for 1 hour.

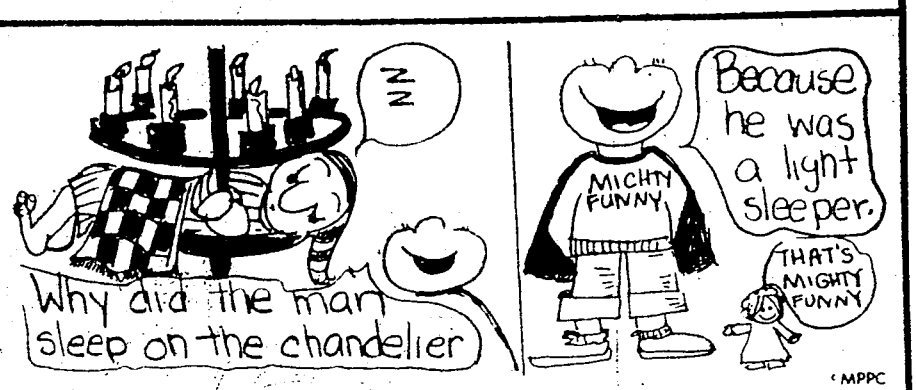
Super Sport: Paul Westphal

The Phoenix Suns shine brighter with Paul Westphal in the lineup.

The 6-foot, 4-inch guard is one of the best backcourt players in pro-basketball.

He is an excellent ball handler and shooter. Last season Paul made 51 percent of his field goal attempts.

Before joining the Suns, Paul was a "super sub" with the Boston Celtics.



Paul grew up in Southern California and learned to play basketball through hard practice in the backyard. His brother, who is now a college coach, taught him the game.

Paul also likes to shoot pool, play tennis and volleyball.

Natural History Museum In Temporary Quarters

SANTA ANA – Orange County's rich paleontological and geological history is the focal point of a new museum concept, launched three years ago and presently given substance through the use of temporary quarters in a school here.

The Natural History Foundation of Orange County, with headquarters at 2531 Orchard Drive, Santa Ana, is a nonprofit organization presently staffed by volunteers. The primary goals of the group are to protect county sites for future scientific study, to preserve natural and prehistoric specimens which are in danger of destruction in areas of rapid of development and to develop education programs about Orange County's rich natural history.

The museum is temporarily located in Bayview Elementary School on Orchard Drive, overlooking Newport Beach Bay. The museum presently has two display rooms. Orange County Indians (room 10) features Indian artifacts and thirteen dioramas of local Indian activity.

Orange County Fossils (room 11) contains specimens from throughout the county. Fossils, salvaged from recent land developments, include bison, camel, horse, and mammoth bones as well as marine invertebrates and petrified wood.

According to Laurie Engstrom, director of the museums:

"The tide pools and beaches along our coast were rich sources of food for the Indians. They would come to the beach to relax and gather a wide variety of shell fish to eat. They collected clams, mussels, sea urchins and even abalone. The food was eaten raw, cooked, or dried for future use away from the coast.

"Apparently each tribe had its own stretch of beach. They would take care that there were always enough shellfish left to insure a supply for next year. Indians were good conservationists.

"They knew of the deadly poisonous "red tide" – when shellfish cannot be eaten – and would post sentinals along the beach to warn unwary gatherers.

"The shores of Newport Bay, and at dozens of localities along our coastline, you may see ancient Indian 'middens.' These are either villages sites or places where Indians cleaned seafood. The ground is black or dark brown and includes thousands of tiny pieces of white shell."

Museum hours are Friday, during the school year, from 10 a.m. to noon, and the first and third Saturdays of every month. In January, the second and fourth Saturdays will be used. Group tours may be arranged by calling the museum.

Monthly programs about the natural history of Orange County include fossil digs, nature tours and lectures. Recently lectures included "How to prepare for Orange County's next earthquake," and "Mines and Minerals from Orange County." The lectures are open to the public but fossil digs are available only

He would like to sell some of his handicrafts, and among beautiful things Steven can make with the homely metal tabs are lacey curtains, various kinds of sculptured figures.

TRAVELS IN THE USSR

Leningrad Bustling, Big City

By GARY LYCAN
Register Staff Writer
Second In Series

Lunch at Vyborg, 1 1/2 miles inside Russia from the Finnish border, is not like your typical stop at a Bobs Big Boy. It was uniquely Russian: hard bread, cabbage, a selection of meat or fish off a platter (it would have been hard to tell them apart had it not been for the toughness of the beef); beer or mineral water, and the best for last; ice cream. It was a bland meal, but filling.

We decided, however, that the Russians are either very tidy at the eating table or are in the midst of a paper shortage. Our napkins were the size of G-strings. Anyone who slurps soup a lot would be in big trouble. We would have asked our Russian Intourist guide Lena for an explanation but demurred, figuring this was the first day of an eight-day bus tour across Russia and there was ample time to clue us in on Soviet etiquette.

Our Gateway Holidays bus came off the assembly line in 1976, but even it had trouble taking the bumps along back country roads that reminded me of those one-lane auto trails leading into Orange County 40 years ago. Someone remarked that the roads haven't changed since the Germans rolled down them 30 years ago. That's probably true. Just ask anyone who sat in the back of the bus.

The journey to Leningrad takes only a few hours, but it allows our tour guide Andrew to exchange pleasantries with Lena, a polite attractive Leningrad university student who has never visited the United States, but as a Soviet Union Intourist guide takes advantage of the opportunity to brush up on her English. She gave us her version of two-paragraph primer on the Soviet Union:

The USSR is 8 1/2 million square miles, roughly 2 1/2 times the size of the United States. Within its boundaries is one-sixth of the earth's land area; it extends over two continents – Europe and Asia – and eleven time zones. The Soviet Union population; 234 million.

Leningrad and Moscow are the showcase cities, clean and beautiful; but beyond them is another Russia, a land of peasants, farms, forests, home to more than 100 different nationalities and ethnic groups. The Cyrllic alphabet is the official langauge, but there are more than a dozen regional languages. Broad slow rivers flow through enormous plains, providing life-giving moisture. Monumental churches stubbornly resist centuries of wear to take in the aging men and women who, unlike a younger generation, still flock faithfully to places of worship.

Bus tours through the region only began in 1970, a fact evident when you pass by so much through territory, through villages with shack like homes sagging on each side, into cities like Novogorod, Smolensk and Minsk which have been rebuilt from the devastation

Horses Need Foster Homes

BY SANDI MOSLEY
Register Staff Writer

Roundups of free-roaming mustangs began five months ago near Susanville in northern California, and the federal government is looking for "foster homes" for about 100 wild horses to be captured by mid-1977.

Most American mustangs roam the plains of Nevada, but California has an estimated 5,267, nearly 10 per cent of all those believed to live in the wild, according to a new federal Interior Department report.

About 1,800 mustangs have been placed in private stables from the first roundups three years ago through mid-December 1976, Bob Springer, Interior Department bureau of land management spokesman, recently wrote.

Officials of the Pacific Coast chapter of the American Mustang Association, headquartered until last year in Orange County, maintain about half of those that have been domesticated are stabled now in Southern California.

As 1976 closed, the bureau of land management made its second report to Congress since the Wild-Roaming Horse and Burro Act was passed Dec. 15, 1971. And it shows 1976 was a good year for the mustang:

– The number of homes found for captured mustangs nearly doubled in the one year to equal all those found in the two previous years.

– The U. S. Supreme Court in June upheld the constitutionality of the six-year-old law that made the mustang a protected species under the control of the federal government.

– Pleased with public acceptance of the old "maintenance agreements" allowing horsemen to own mustangs, the bureau of land management created the "Adopt-A-Horse" program last May to stimulate more interest in mustang adoptions. The program is hoped to find 4,000 homes a year for mustangs.

– Protection efforts in the past six years have been so successful, the mustangs are no longer threatened with extinction, and, in fact, now threaten to overpopulate their ranges.

The report claims as many as two million mustangs, descendants of Spanish horses brought here in the South American conquests of the 16th century, roamed free by the end of the 1800s.

By 1971, their numbers had dropped to an estimated 17,000, the report says. In 1974, the last wild horse census, the bureau estimated here were 45,200; the 1976 census estimated 56,335 roaming 10 western states.

Two national "wild horse ranges" have been established "to preserve these living symbols of America's western heritage," according to the report. An 394,000-acre range is on Nellis Air Force Base in Nevada. An additional 34,000 acres are set aside in the Pryor mountain range in Montana and Wyoming, and a third range of 27,000 acres is being considered in Colorado, according to the report.

Roundups are held periodically on the ranges and other federal, state and privately owned land where the mustangs find refuge "to keep the herds in balance with the food supply," the report says.

The bureau of land management and a private group called Wild Horse Organized Assistance League (WHOA) screen applications for "foster homes."

(Contact Dawn Lappin, adoption director for WHOA, at P.O. Box 555, Reno, Nev. 89504, or the federal "Adopt-A-Horse Program, bureau of land management, 18th and C streets NW, Washington, D. C. 20

The federal government retains ownership of the animals, and they cannot be sold or given away with written permission from the bureau of land management. They also cannot be used for any commercial purpose, but any foals become property of the "foster" parent.

"The government does not want the horses back," said Mrs. Lappin. "They would only take the horses if they were not being cared for, and in most cases a warning is given to those that are not properly caring for the horses."

WHOA prefers prospective owners keep the horses on their own land in a corral no smaller than 20 feet by 20 feet, with at least a three-sided shelter, but mustangs can be kept in a commercial stable if the owner gives his written permission.

The horses are given at no cost, but they must be picked up at the roundup site.

The report admits the requirements – many sought by WHOA "to close all loopholes for those with less-than-honorable intentions" – are restrictive and, with the costs of transporting them, may inhibit adoptions.

But the 1971 law calls for "humane destruction of excess animals," and proposed range management programs – setting limits on the number of horses that a range can support – will make as many as 10,000 animals "excess" a year.

"Shooting is considered a last resort," the report says.

When the Daisy Clippers Pony Club year end points were first tabulated, it looked like Lynda Lee of Fountain Valley had won the annual club gymkhana high-point award, club officials said. And that was duly reported here. A double-check of the standings later revealed that Lynne Sietel of Garden Grove won the award.

Guatemala City, Antigua Offer Much For Visitors

By ANN TERRILL

Antigua is the most historic city in Guatemala and one of the most famous on the Central American part of the continent.

Guatemala is a high, mountainous country. The continental divide is 9,200 feet high as it traverses Guatemalan soil. But Antigua is situated on a fertile plain surrounded by high mountains, one of which, a volcano, was responsible for removing the seat of government from Antigua in 1773 to Guatemala City, which was considered safer then.

The historic city is colonial Spanish in style, and during the February 1976 earthquake suffered considerable damage. We were supposed to journey there from Lake Atitlan in time for lunch one day, but for some reason, the schedule was abruptly changed and we didn't enter Antigua with its ruined churches and wide cobbled streets until nearly dark.

The Spanish arrived in Guatemala in 1524. Their commanders were looking for gold, which they did not find. But this didn't deter them from occupying the area and building cities, converting the Indians and in general setting up arrangements for export of native produces.

Antigua was the capital city until the disastrous earthquake of 1773, which was followed by a flood when the crater walls of the volcano cracked open and spilled tons of accumulated water on the city below.

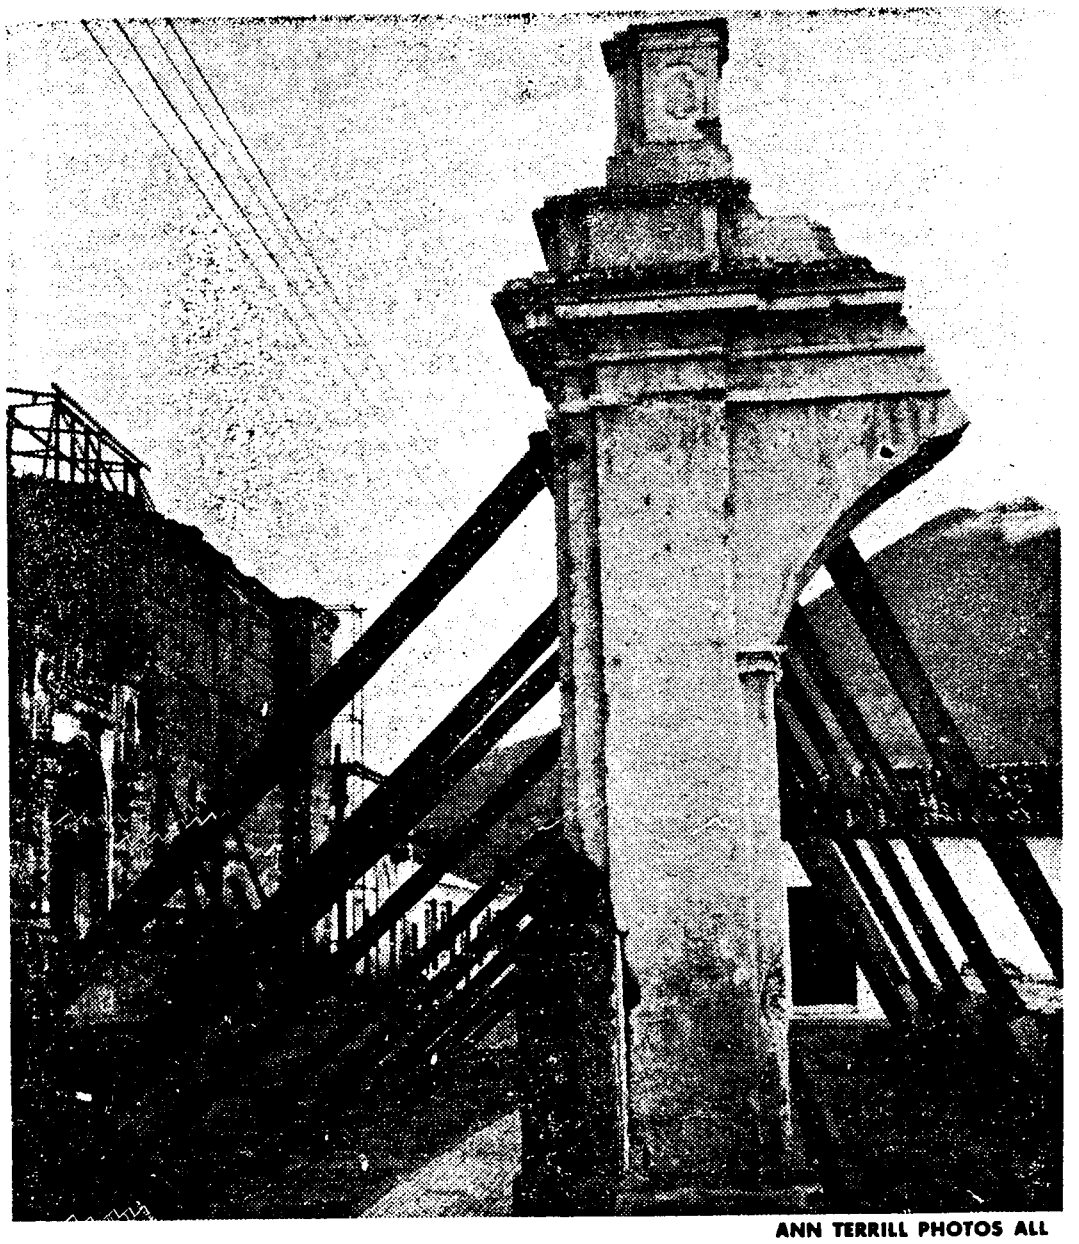
Churches ruined by the earthquake 200 years ago have never been quite restored. Consequently, in the 1976 earthquake more damage was done than might have otherwise been.

The treasures of Antiguan churches were taken to Guatemala City, about an hour by highway, and put into the Mercy Church, a cathedral-like edifice built in 1773 to hold the treasures of Antigua.

But an earlier church exists in Guatemala City, dating from 1620. The 1773 earthquake dealt it a bad blow. But restorations took place and in 1917 a new chapel was built. In 1976 the old church was nearly leveled once more and today it stands on a high hill in the city center, a monument to one John Corco, who brought the statue of the virgin, and built the church to her honor. The name is Serro Del Carmen.

Farms were near the hill in those days, and it was known as the place of the cows.

On January 1, 1776, Guatemala City was officially founded, and a park today marks the historic spot.



Many reminders of the nation's Spanish past are to be found in Guatemala City. An old Spanish fort is now a military museum, and the old Spanish aqueduct is an attention getter.

The city has many ball parks and sports-oriented facilities, and Guatemalans are recreation-minded.

It is a reminder of the Mayan days when the ceremonial ball game was played with the winners occasionally being sacrificed. But since the Mayans believed in reincarnation, this was considered a great honor.

That same custom prevailed in similar monumental stone cities in central Mexico between Cuernavaca and Taxco, which means that the Mayan culture dominated the Indian societies of Central and North America, at least as far north as central Mexico, though Indians there do not adher to the ancient customs as much as do the Guatemalan Indians.

Because of the Mayan worship of the sun, which brings life, for example, all graveyards face west, toward the setting sun, and sun worship is still carried out in Guatemala.

AFTER THE EARTHQUAKE — This corner pillar of a 400 year old church is all that's left in Antigua, Guatemala's most fascinating and very colonial city. Extensive damage was done to some of the country's most priceless historical buildings and repair work is under way, as seen by the shoring timbers. Antiqua amounts to a national monument and the city is worth spending considerable time exploring. Ancient churches, broad avenues and stately homes abound, along with traditional colonial Spanish shops and market buildings.

Petrified Forest Weird, Wonderful

HOLBROOK, Ariz. — There is one place in Arizona where you can't carve your initials on a tree nor do you have to worry about a forest fire! It is the Petrified Forest National Park some 20 miles east of here.

In this Bicentennial era we have been conditioned to look back long ago to the time our country won its independence from England. This 200-year span is but a micro-second in the millions of years of geologic action it has taken to transform stately trees into beautiful pieces of stone logs.

Geologists will tell you that some 160 million years ago this part of Northern Arizona was a low plain, dotted by shifting streams and rivers.

They believe that trees of the pine family grew on hills as far away as a hundred miles to the west and southwest. Dead trees were carried down the hills by the rivers and streams to the lowland where they were buried under tons of mud and silt. Protection of the mud coating snuffed out the decaying action of oxygen.

Silica and other water-borne chemicals covered the tree cells replacing the wood fibers. Long before erosion set in the process had turned the logs to almost pure stone. The bright color patterns in yellow, red, green and brown were produced from small amounts of manganese oxide, iron and carbon.

Over millions of years, this area sank below sea level, was flooded, and then covered by many layers of new sediments. Later it was uplifted far above the sea. The petrified trees, entombed in GUATEMALA CITY'S OLDEST CHURCH — These are the ruins of Arro Del Carmen, built in the area long before Guatemala City was actually founded. The church, which stands on a high hill with a commanding view of the city, has been destroyed several times by earthquakes. Repairs will be made on this historic edifice as Guatemala cleans up the rubble left from its most disastrous 1976 earthquake.

Arizona's Geological Wonderland Step Into Past E

layers of rock, heaved under these great pressures and cracked and broke into the large and small pieces you see today. In recent times, wind and water have carved away the sandstones and shales surrounding the logs, leaving them on the surface.

The best way to begin a tour of the Petrified Forest is to spend a little time at the visitor centers. They are located at both the north and south entrances to the park. Here you can pick up a map of the 94,000 acres of the park and browse around the museum. At the main visitor center just off U.S. 66 (I-40), a well-produced film is shown numerous times throughout the day. Gas stations, souvenir shops and restaurants are conveniently located near both entrances.

The Painted Desert at the northern entrance offers sweeping views from several overlooks along the rim and from the observation site on Kachina Point. Photographers should note that the best time to photograph the Painted Desert is at sunrise or sunset. The red hues of the sun paint the desert in such magnificence that one could easily believe he was on another planet.

The Painted Desert is one of the most spectacular sections of the Petrified Forest. It encompasses some 300 miles of vividly colored gullies, mesas and buttes.

The Petrified Forest is the greatest and most colorful concentration of petrified wood known in the world. There are six separate "Forests" where giant logs, some 250 feet in length, beautifully colored, lie prostrate on the ground.

A short drive from the Painted Desert brings you to the Puerco Indian Ruin. It was occupied about 600 years ago and probably contained 150 rooms enclosing a large courtyard. A few rooms have been excavated. Nearby is Newspaper Rock where prehistoric Indians pecked various petroglyphs into the surface of a massive sandstone block.

Moving along you pass some small peaks resembling teepees or haystacks showing erosion of soft, layered clay deposits. At the Blue Mesa you can observe how the petrified logs played a part in the constant renewal of the sculptured landscape. An excellent short trail takes you into this interesting area.

At Agate Bridge more than 100 feet of this famous log are exposed, but both ends are still encased in the sandstone in which the log was buried. At Jasper Forest Overlook great masses of log sections litter the valley floor and clog the gullies that cut into the edge of the mesa.

In Crystal Forest were once many fossil logs in which beautiful clear and amethyst quartz crystals filled the cracks and hollows. Collectors and souvenir hunters blasted many of the logs in search of these gems.

Massive remnants of a once continuous layer of durable sandstone can be seen at The Flattops. The road passes through a cleft separating the two main bodies of this surviving tableland.

The eastern part of Rainbow Forest is most notable for the number of exceptionally long logs, which are only partly uncovered. A partially restored pueblo, now called Agate House, is at the end of a short foot trail from the parking area.

Exhibits at Rainbow Forest and Giant Logs are designed to answer pertinent questions that visitors may have when arriving at or leaving the park. Behind the exhibit hall are Old Faithful Log and many exceedingly large logs. A picnic area is nearby.

Federal law prohibits removal of any petrified wood from the park, no matter how small the piece. A word of warning; if you violate this law, you will be subject to a fine or imprisonment or both. Park rangers thoroughly inspect cars leaving the area.

The forest is open all year but it is best to check on the hours during the winter months. The park has two entrances; the Painted Desert Visitor Center and Headquarters just off U.S. 66 (I-40) or the Rainbow Forest Entrance Station at the park boundary on U.S. 180. There are no overnight accommodations within the park. Lodging and restaurants are available in Holbrook about 20 miles west of the park.

Infamous French Town Quarters Girls' School

LACOSTE, France — Ever since Donatien Alphonse Francois, the Marquis de Sade, brought his crew of peppy teenagers here 200 years ago, Lacoste has been working up to its present fate.

The infamous Marquis, attempting to "educate" his charges and to entertain himself, founded his own "Woodstock" in his favorite boyhood home in southern France. It became the setting for unnumbered adventures, theatricals and orgies.

Apparently something about the place just beckoned to the inquiring mind.

Perhaps it was inevitable, then, that an educational institution like Sarah Lawrence College would discover the town's particular ambience. Since 1972 students enrolled in its summer visual arts program have descended upon this tiny medieval village for an education, although somewhat alien to that offered by the late Marquis.

In a semi-mountainous area of Provence not far from Avignon, Lacoste clings to a precipitous perch on a mountain top. Openly hostile to neighboring villages, it eyes them as the colleges known as the "Seven Sisters" have traditionally eyed each other.

The buffers between the villages are broad, flat, cultivated plains. They look today very much as they must have looked to medieval observers when, as the seat of Prostestantism in a sea of Catholicism, Lacoste and its chateau were repeatedly besieged.

Today, instead of marauding Crusaders, the siege consists of guitars, easels, bikinis and pick axes. In a one-hotel town like Lacoste, that constitutes a clear invasion.

Canvasses, paints and brushes are no surprise to the territory so frequented by the likes of Cezanne, Van Gogh and Picasso. But the Sarah Lawrence faculty has added some frills that increasingly entice students. One is college credit for what amounts to an archeological dig — the rebuilding of the sadistic marquis' chateau.

Bernard Pfriem, the American administrator of the project, has long owned choice Lacoste property. Some people refer to him as the first feudal lord of Lacoste after de Sade.

Pfriem winters in Bronxville, N.Y., at the main Sarah

of World War II but struggle to keep pace with 1976 technology. Tourism was a low priority item for years int he Soviet budget, but the 1980 Olympics are on the horizon and the times are changing. The cities are being spruced up in anticipation of more tourism. When you're hosting the Olympics, I suppose, it's all a matter of Gamesmanship.

Leningrad, however, is 400 miles northwest of Moscow. Olympic Games are not a prime topic as our bus approaches the outskirts of this island city resting on the banks of the Neva. It is easy to see why it is called a northern Venice. Western European influences are everywhere among the 100 islands and 600 bridges.

Czar Peter the Great started the construction of Leningrad on the Gulf of Finland in 1703. His goal was to bring Russia closer to the West by modeling the city after a Western capital and inviting Westerners to live here. The first building in Leningrad - Peter called the city St. Petersburg - was the Peter and Paul Fortress. It remains today as a popular walking and necking spot and contains a section of the Soviet mint.

Successive czars built a winter palace, the golden-domed St. Isaac's Cathedral, the enormous Admirality with a triumphal column that took 2,000 soldiers to raise, scores of theaters and two suburban palaces laced with gold. Lenin directed the revolution from Smolny Hall here, but later moved the capital to Moscow. Leningrad was in decline when in World War II its people astounded Nazi strategists by holding out for 900 days against a German siege despite the death of 650,000 civilians.

Leningrad today appears to be a lady enjoying a facelift. The restoration of facades is a continuing project. There are 4.5 million people, three million fewer than in Moscow. People were scurrying everywhere. Streetcars were packed. Many conductors were women, as were the work crews cleaning the streets. This was to be a common sight throughout Russia, due in large measure to the shortage of manpower after World War II.

The weather is nippy, the ski overcast. Women are bundled in topcoats and babushkas, and we noted later, dress less stylishly than their counterparts in Moscow. Food, or a lack of it, is a problem in most Soviet cities. Onions and oranges were in short supply. Other fruits and vegetables are available, however, and one can see long queques of men and women on almost every other block waiting to purchase goods. The lines get longer as word spreads of a new order handed down closing food stores on Sunday throughout Russia. It will force more Soviets to shop early in the morning on weekdays when quality goods are more available.

We regretted not meeting one or two of the 250 Westeners who live in Leningrad. They say it's easier to get to know Russians here because they are less blase' and more curious about foreigners. Unfortunately, a tight timetable limited any extensive downtown walking, although had we chosen to, we could stroll on our own without the aid of our Soviet guide. Would we have been shadowed? Alone, perhaps. In a group, doubtful. We were assured the KGB doesn't have time to bother with tourists. A rule of thumb appears to hold true: there is safety in numbers.

Sightseeing is a all-day experience, starting with Nevsky Prospekt, Leningrad's main street of majestically columned pre-revolutionary buildings. It is called the "Hero City" for its performance in World War II and wears the name proudly. More than 500 of the thousands of monuments were repaired in 1975 and 100 new memorials were put up. District heat and power plants keep the city smogless despite the presence of 2,000 big factories. The city began curbing urban growth two years ago and planting trees and shrubs to keep the air purified. We saw other areas, however, where block upon block of buildings is in disrepair but still occupied. Monuments must have a higher priority.

If we needed any proof of this, we got it at The Hermitage. I had always imagined this splendid museum to be on the outside of town, guarded like a fortress. It is, instead, housed in the winter palace in the downtown area. Outside, it appears no more managificent than your grey federal building here. but inside it drips with riches: 353 rooms, a total length of 14 miles: 2 1/4 million items from different periods, countries and peoples; 10 Da Vinci's, 2 Raphaels, 4 Van Goghs, an El Greco, 36 Picassos. They say there are more Remorandts in the Hermitage than in Holland. Others are told it would take nine years to see all the exhibits. I wouldn't dispute them. Room after room revealed collection of not only art but gems, clocks, tapestries and furnishings dating back to the mid-18th century. A half-day

Rose May Be National Flower

By EARL ARONSON

Remember that poll to determine the most popular flower in the United States, which has no national flower? The winner by a big margin was the rose.

The rose earned 29.9 per cent of the vote, more than three times the 9.2 per cent of the runner-up carnation, according to the Florists' Transworld (FTD) Delivery, which sponsored the competition.

Hubert J. Beudert, executive vice president of the inter-city floral delivery cooperative, listed daisy as third with 8.7 per cent, followed by dogwood, 5.6 per cent, and apple blossom, 4.5 per cent.

The marigold, long promoted by the late Senator Dirksen and others wound up 10th, with only 2.4 per cent.

However, before the United States has an official flower, Congress must approve a law or resolution designating it. Recently resolutions have been proposed to designate the rose, daisy and apple blossom and the marigold. Beudert said his organization would ask the 1977 Congress to act "on the people's choice."

"After all," he said, "we have a national bird – in the bald eagle – and every state has an official flower and some also honor animals, birds and even fish. It's high time the country has a national flower and what better choice than one that has been picked by the people themselves."

In the July contest there were 28 floral candidates and space for write-ins. Certified public accountants did the tallying in Southfield, Mich., FTD's headquarters. The top write-in was gardenia, which got a total vote of 421,266, or .559 per cent of the total.

Second most popular write-in was marijuana with .310 per cent of the vote. Dandelion received .250 per cent of the votes and bringing up the rear with 106 ballots was the cactus.

From sixth place on were: Lilac, black-eyed susan, orchid, pansy, marigold, chrysanthemum, azalea, mountain laurel, tulip, daffodil, rhododendron, lily, magnolia, geranium, gladiolus, snapdragon, corn tassel, camillia, peony, petunia, zinnia, begonia, dahlia, gardenia, marijuana, violet, dandelion, poppy, iris, sunflower, cherry blossom, sweet pea, blue bonnet, aster, bird of paradise, morning glory, forget-me-not, baby's breath, gloxinia, columbine and cactus.

New Garden Books

"The Color Dictionary of Shrubs," by S. Millar Gault and American consultant George Kalmbacher of the Brooklyn Botanic Garden (Crown Publishing). This book is a thorough guide – with more than 500 color pictures – to shrubs for virtually all gardens. You'll learn about those with flowers (in winter, too) and berries, those short and tall, deciduous and evergreen, for formal gardens and for naturalizing. The author was formerly in charge of the gardens at Regent's Park, London, and was an exhibitor.

"Gardening in the City," by Carla Wallach (Harcourt Brace Jovanovich). whether you have a tiny backyard or a lofty apartment-house terrace, the author will help you make the most of it for a garden for that particular spot.

tour offers only a glimpse, but it impresses even the non-art aficionado. Another plus is, unlike Versailles outside Paris, the Russians care enough about the Hermitage to put women in every room who keep a sharp eye on the tourists and reprimand anyone who shows the slightest sign of outching an object. Women, by the way , are ordered to check their coats or wraps before touring the museum.

For splendor in the past, Peter the Great's Dutch-style summer palace outside Leningrad is a must for every visitor. Magnificent cascading fountains are fed by a 12-mile canal cut through the park area in 1721. The Petrovdovrets estate was a place for Peter to play practical joker. He like to upset his guests' dignity by dousing them with unexpected sprays, controlled by a man on a bench who, legend says, was known in Peter's cabinet as the Minister of Wet Affairs.

Stopping On Icy Roads

Ice is more slippery as it approaches its melting point than it is at temperatures near zero.

Whether you use tire chains or not, points out the National Automobile Club, the best way to stop your car on ice is to pump the brakes at the rate of about once or twice a second.

ASK KLEINER

Alice Cooper's Clerical Dad

By DICK KLEINER

DEAR DICK: I'm an Alice Cooper fan and would like to know his real name and age. Can you help me? DIANE McCLELLAND, Pallsington, Pa.

Sure, why not? Alice is really Vincent Furnier, and his age is a secret but he's generally believed to be somewhere in the vicinity of 30. He comes from Phoenix, Ariz., the son of a minister and, curiously, his wife, Cheryl, is the daughter of a minister.

DEAR DICK: I believe it was in the early '60s, when a singer by the name of Gale Garnett recorded a hit song, "We'll Sing In The Sunshine." I thought she was great. What ever became of her? DEAN LILLY, Logan, W. Va.

She was great and so was the song which she wrote. Last I heard, Gale was in Toronto, Canada, where she was producing records.

DEAR DICK: I would like to know if MGM could ever sell the movie, "The Wizard of Oz." And could you ever buy Popeye movies or the Peanuts movies? TED SMITH, Canastota, N.Y.

The thing about movies is that they are all covered by copyrights and the studios won't sell anything that is copyrighted. There are film pirates who somehow get copies of these and other films and sell illegally pirated prints, but the movie industry is cracking down on them now. Some films have gone into P.D. — Public Domain — and are available from reputable film libraries that sell or rent copies. One such is Thunderbird Films (P.O. Box 65157, Los Angeles, Ca. 90065) and you might write for their catalogue. They have many old features and shorts, including some Popeye shorts.

DEAR DICK: Some years ago, Richard Crenna of All's Fair starred in a program that involved a state legislature. The program began with a statement or quotation that pertained to democracy. It began something like: "Democracy is not the best form of government," etc., etc. Could you please furnish the quotation, the author, the source. ROBERT W. SMITH, Landis, N.C.

The program was the unforgettable Slattery's People, and the quotation that opened each show was: "Democracy is a very poor form of government, but I ask you not to forget all the others are so much worse." It was said, in November, 1947, by Winston Churchill in a speech to the House of Commons. Historians say the quotation in question is a paraphrase of a speech made 200 years before by Thomas Jefferson.

DEAR DICK: My husband and I have a bet. I say "Gone With the Wind" was never on TV until it was shown Nov. 7. My husband says he watched it in Great Falls, Montana, somewhere between 1972 and 1976, twice, no less. We will be waiting for your answer. R.L. RHYNE, Waldron, Ark.

You are totally right. "Gone With the Wind" was never shown on TV until this season — not even in Great Falls.

Mouseketeer Disclosures

By ANN TERRILL

Remember Jerry Bowles?

He wore big ears and appeared on television with the Walt Disney Mouseketeers in the 1950s.

Bowles, now a free lance journalist and author, and long since out of show biz, has authored a book about the Mouseketeers called "Forever Hold Your Banner High! The Story of the Mickey Mouse Club and What Happened to the Mouseketeers."

Doubleday has just published it, and Bowles, who says he calls things as they are or were, instead of how Disney's organization might release an "official" version, sees it as a best seller.

"They're going to reactivate the club on TV this year," he said in a recent interview. "I think with interest high, this is the right time for my book."

Why did he write it?

"Well, we sort of represented an officially optimistic, pollyannish facade for the kids of the 1950s. Lots of these kids, by the time the 1960s rolled around, realized that life was not all that great. Disillusion set in," said the author who is 33 now. "We all got our share of it. I decided to trace it back, by looking up all my former clubmates. I did and I am reporting on them now."

And where are they now, those favorites of yesteryear? Annette Funicello, the house princess and love object of millions of red-blooded American boys, went on to make all those beach party pictures ("with horribly teased Freda's Beauty Shoppe hair and skin that never tanned"), married her agent, ("It broke Charlie Brown's heart"), mothers three Mouseketeers of her own and occasionally makes guest appearances on the medium that made her famous. Bowles traces her phenomenal rise from her original role as a second stringer to real star of the show. Although Annette was clearly Uncle Walt's favorite, "not everything was entirely rosy at the studio" and court action was involved in their relationship.

Bobby Burgess, son of a meatcutter and perennial dancing star of the Lawrence Welk Show, is one of the most enthusiastic of the alumni in retracing the high points of the club. Somewhat of a practical joker, he likes to answer queries about his wife by showing "an awful photo of an unfortunate young lady whose face appears to have had a tragic confrontation with a truck." It is definitely not his wife Kristie, daughter of Myron Floren, Welk's heir apparent.

Karen Pendleton was one of the most frank in her reminiscences. Karen was never very close to the older girls on the show, and was mostly unaware of the intense, and often bitter, rivalry that went on between Annette and Darlene and their parents. As for Disney, she says: "I got the impression he didn't like kids very much." Karen and Cubby don't get together too often these days. Cubby lives with his wife, Marilyn, a singer, and four-year-old daughter in Northridge, California. His experiences on the Welk show were less fortuitous than Bobby's, he left after two years. Now he is a drummer for The Carpenters and such stars as Ann-Margret, Carol Burnett and Jim Nabors. He was musical director of the Los Angeles productions of "Hair" and "Oh! Calcutta!" ("Looks like everytime a dirty show comes to town, they call me up.")

Johnny Crawford has had his share of nudity, too. He revealed his all in "The Naked Ape," a 1972 movie made by Playboy Productions. Darlene, now known as Darlene Valentine, is a country singer. She thinks she saw Walt Disney "about five times in my life.... He seemed okay but somehow I just got the impression that he was a kind of Pontius Pilate who let other people do his dirty work for him." Tommy Cole is a free-lance make-up artist. Cheryl Holdridge became a movie starlet and married the late Lance Reventlow, millionairess Barbara Hutton's racing driver son.

"If the 'Mickey Mouse Club' had a lasting spirit, if it truly touched the heart of a generation," writes Bowles, "the reason was a friendly red-headed, freckle-faced man named Jimmie Dodd. Jimmie was good and he wore his goodness like a banner." It is not generally known that Dodd had a serious illness before he came to the club as emcee, and he succumbed fatally in Hawaii after a three-month hospital stay following a single day's shooting on a new children's show.

Nearly all of the Mouseketeers still live in Southern California, within a 50-mile radius of the Disney studios where the show was filmed.

As you'll note, most of the Mouseketeers didn't continiue in show business. According to Bowles, who also didn't, it's because most of them had little or no talent.

"We were chosen by agents from classes in schools we attended, from dancing schools or places like that. We were chosen for looks, or image, rather than talent."

If the 1960s was the decade of disillusion, and the 1970s more of the same, what of the remainder of this decade and the 1980s then?

BARBRA STREISAND

A Star Maturing Over Hollywood

By SIDNEY FIELDS
New York News

NEW YORK – The second time I met Barbra Streisand she was in a bit of trouble. It was in 1962, after writing about her spectacular Broadway debut in "I Can Get It For You Wholesale," she had a small role as a homely, harried secretary in a housedress, but stopped the show every night singing her loud and plaintive wail that men never called her "baby doll" or even "bubala," but only "Miss Marmelstein," and why always "Miss?"

I'd gone backstage with a friend, Bill McCaffrey, who wanted to see Lillian Roth, the star of the show. Barbra greeted us and whispered that she was being summoned by Actors Equity to explain why she developed the habit of coming late to the theater. That's a sin on Broadway as well as a discourtesy to the cast and auxiliaries. (Punctuality was never one of Barbra's strong points).

Anyway, the girl was in distress, and asked what I thought of an elaborate set of alibis she'd prepared to excuse her tardiness. She was advised not to dissemble, but to admit her transgression, acknowledge that it was both thoughtless and selfish and promise never to be late again. She accepted that graciously and gratefully, and said she would.

But that was before fame's tentacles clutched her so hard that she got beyond apologizing to anyone, before she ordered script writers off a movie set, vetoed actors and directors, labelled herself "Executive Producer," and elevated a hair-dresser to "Producer." He happens to be her lover.

The talent is there, all right. She can cradle a song as if she mothered it. Few actresses can be as funny or use their hands the way she does. Her hands are truly beautiful. She's the only actress alive whose name can cause a rush of money to bankroll any movie she wants to make.

Once, she was the loveable kook from Williamsburgh, Brooklyn, who, asked to record a brief biography for the program notes of "I Can Get It For You Wholesale," wrote: "Born in Madagascar, reared in Rangoon, educated at Erasmus Hall High School, and is not a member of Actors Studio."

She boasted then, with the pride of a teenager, that her father was a Ph.D., taught in the city's schools, and "He's listed in Leaders of Education." She was 15 months old when he died. He was 34. Her mother worked as a school clerk.

As soon as she was graduated from high school Barbra shared a cold water flat in Manhattan with two other girls, and worked as a switchboard operator, answering the calls with different accents just to relieve the monotony. She was very convincing.

She began singing in obscure little clubs, got into an off-Broadway play

ON THE GO ---With Doris Crandall

RESTAURANT WITH A SPECTACULAR VIEW... THE ORANGE COUNTY MINING COMPANY is located in the county of Orange, perched high on it's own mini-mountain at Chapman and Crawford Canyon Road..

Wind your way to the top and behold. You will find an interesting group of antiquated buildings actually built of old mining timber and siding deliciously rustic. Surrounding the site are all the expected working relics of the colorful mining era that began in the very same area a hundred years ago (1877) when Smith and Curry found silver ore – thus beginning the rush for fame and fortune.

The picturesque shaft entrance is all you will imagine. But step inside and you are surrounded by rustic elegance and one of the most spectacular views of the north part of our county. The restaurant is a delight with several levels for your dining pleasure, decorous with thick carpeting, unique furnishings all delightfully enhanced by greenery and bric-a-brac.

Dinner was most worthy. It began with a chilled green salad mingled with various salad builders and an excellent house dressing – a honey mustard variety – super with the hot cheese bread (fresh-made clam chowder also available).

My entree was the fresh catch of the day (changing on availability) – salmon — very tasty — not overcooked, accompanied by a flavorful rice and vegetable of creamed corn. Others in my party enjoyed the seafood brochette (tender pieces of seafood broiled on a skewer with bell pepper, onion); roast prime rib of beef au jus and filet mignon and crab leg. Our coffee and wine was interestingly served in mason jars. The wine carafe is also a large mason jar. We enjoyed a fresh cooked, tender artichoke served with mayonnaise butter and a skillet of fresh mushrooms sauteed in butter and wine.

The menu though limited – offers many favorites such as chicken teriyaki, brochettes of filet mignon teriyaki, steaks (top sirloin, New York, filet mignon). The popular combinations include filet mignon and crab and filet mignon and enchilada. All dinners include choice of clam chowder or the salad, rice, vegetable and hot cheese bread. Dinner prices run from $5.45 to $8.95.

Brunch is served every Sunday from 10 until 3 p.m. It's a delight to linger over a creamy fizz or maybe an "orange thing" as you drink in the marvelous view. There are several breakfast and lunch entrees to select from. A favorite of mine is the Hangtown fry – a lovely mound of fluffy eggs mingled with fresh sliced mushrooms, oysters, diced potatoes, green onion and bacon. The crab omelette is filled with King crab meat, fresh slices of mushrooms blended in wine.

There are also scrambled eggs and chicken livers; salmon omelettes...Bacon and eggs, hickory smoked ham and eggs; and steak and eggs – the great all American favorites are served with potatoes. The entrees include a choice of orange juice, tomato juice or a chilled glass of champagne plus various sweet rolls, breads. Prices are from $3.25 to $4.95.

Luncheon sandwiches are also served – roasted prime rib, teriyaki burger and choice steak priced at $4.95 A child's plate is $2.50.

Disco entertainment with Mellow Mike (you won't believe him) playing all your favorite LP's for your listening and dancing pleasure is offered Tuesday through Saturday nights from 8:30 until 1:30 a.m. Dinner is served nightly from 5 p.m. until 10 p.m. Friday and Saturday until midnight.

Orange County Mining Company is headed by Dave Perrins, Bucky Dennis and Brad Perrins. They also have the QUIET CANNONS, (Dana Point, Montebello and Long Beach), THE FOXHUNTER (Newport and Houston) and THE WINDROSE (Long Beach Marina). An ORANGE COUNTY MINING COMPANY will soon open in the city of Covina.

CONTINENTAL DIARY

Suitable Attire For Oil Rich Sheiks

By NEIL MORGAN

PARIS – Oil rich sheikhs are busily buying a new gimmick suit that costs $2,500. It's made in Britain from pure cashmere with a pin-stripe of 24-carat gold.

Reason for the rush: The Moxon Mill near the British north country town of Huddersfield can only produce cloth for around 100 suits a year.

Plans are on foot to increase output – and vary the "cloth of gold" by spinning mohair or cashmere sports suits with solid gold checks instead of pinstripes. Producers have no doubt they would sell to the Middle East – even at $5,000 a suit.

Sugar And 'Spice'

Paris producers of live sex shows – the ultimate in audience participation – are planning to break down the last barriers of opposition in London, England. Already, live shows from Paris tour Scandinavia and Holland, but all attempts to show them in London have failed.

Jean Perdrini, who runs the sleazy St. Denis theater in Paris, says, "I'm going to London, but I don't want censors to alter down my spicy acts."

The shows at Perdrini's are beautifully staged – but a bit rough. In "Today's Lady Chatterley," for example, actress Francoise Richard seduces a manservant and the play ends with 20 minutes of nonstop sex on stage.

P.S. The manservant – played by Michel d'Anterac thrice nightly – says, "It's quite a taxing role."

Moving On

Roman Polanski, the 43-year-old Polish-born movie director, who has been touring Europe to launch "The Tenant," says he may decide to give up living in Paris, France, his home for the past four years.

"I no longer feel attached to anywhere particular," he says. "Work just washes me away like an empty shell from one shore to another."

Polanski's been directing since he was 21. "I always wanted to be a film director. It satisfies me," he says. "But I'm not totally satisfied with what I've done.

"So much time and effort is wasted in setting films up. I hate the wheeling and dealing side of the business. I have no talent for it or desire to do it."

Incidental Intelligence

– Psychic researcher John Rayner of London claims he is in daily touch with Adolf Hitler who killed himself 31 years ago. Hitler, says Rayner, is dictating his memoirs to him.

Quotes Of The Week

– "In so far as socialism means anything, it must be about the wider distribution of smoked salmon and caviar." – Sir Richard Marsh, British politician.

– "I never really meant to be an actor. I had the idea of making a career in the military and retiring at 37." – Jason Robards,currently filming in Europe.

JOE LOUIS, former world heavyweight champion, on money he made as a fighter: "I got $50 for my first fight, but it wasn't long before the money got bigger. My end in the Nate Brown fight was $7,000. When I knocked out Ray Lazer I got almost $12,000. I got $60,000 for Canera and $53,000 for Levinsky. I got $217,000 for the Walcott fight. Then I went to London and put on an exhibition for an $80,000 guarantee. Once I knocked out Eddie Sims in 26 seconds and got $20,000. That figures out to $700 a second. Where did my money go? I gave a lot to old fighters who were in bad luck. I spent a lot on fancy clothes. One time I had around 100 suits made to order. They stood me $150 to $185 apiece. I spent a lot for big cars. I lost $40,000 in the Rhum Boogie Cafe in Chicago. Another one that turned out bad was a fried chicken bar in east Detroit. We dropped $25,000 on that."

DA FONZ:

A Big Commercial Craze

By JAMES GREGORY

HOLLYWOOD – A new craze is sweeping America's youth – and already its created a $10 million business – in "Fonzie" products.

The kids are buying milions of T-shirts, posters, beach towels and nearly a hundred other items bearing the face of Henry Winkler, who plays The Fonz on the TV smash hit show, "Happy Days."

"We've sold from three million to four million Fonzie T-shirts," happily reports an executive of Allison Manufacturing Co. in New York City.

"Over three million Fonzie posters have been sold!" says Lou Mindling, director of licensing for Paramount Pictures, which produces the show and owns the rights to the characters in it.

"Millions of packages of Topps Bubble Gum containing pictures of Fonzie and his TV pals have been sold.

"There are Fonzie lunch kits, puzzles, games, paper dolls, books, paint sets, bean bags, leather jackets, even knee-high socks for girls – and all of them are making money.

"Several of the people we licensed to make Fonzie posters can retire now.

"One fellow made over $500,000."

Paramount gets a substantial cut. Mindling said a manufacturer pays 5 to 10 per cent of the wholesale price for the right to use the Fonzie character.

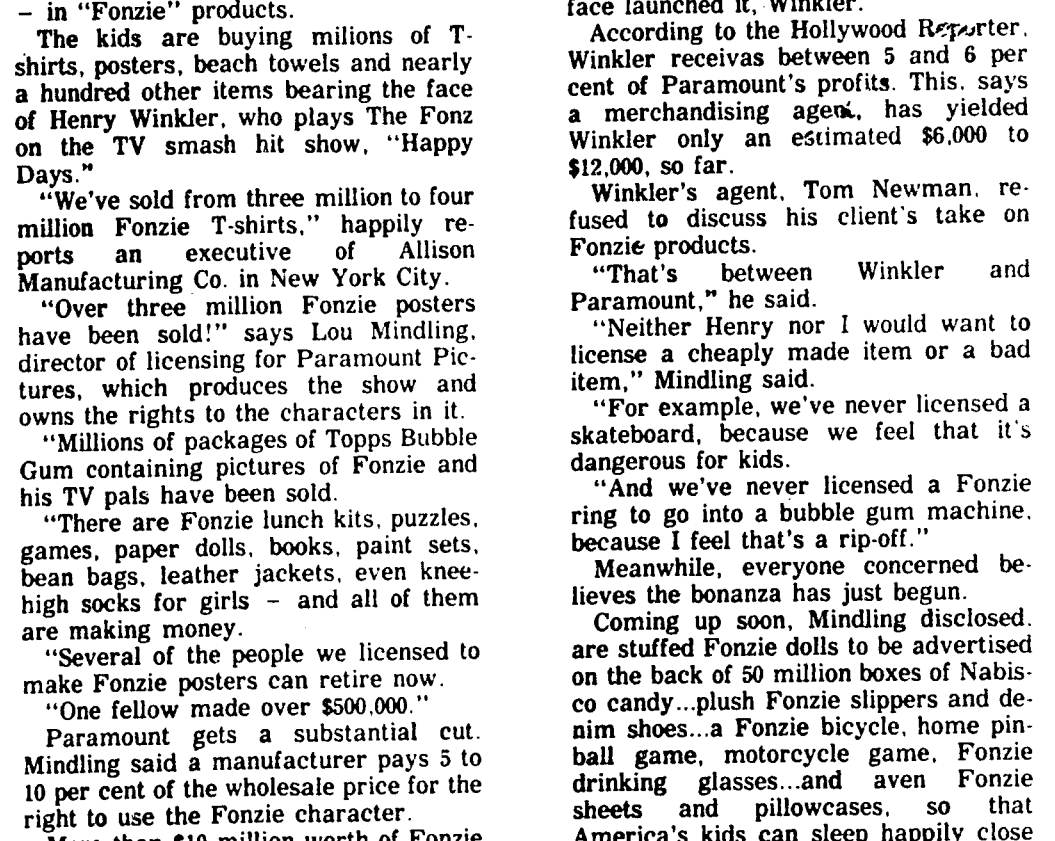
More than $10 million worth of Fonzie products at retail prices already have been sold, most of them this year, he revealed.

Perhaps the one who makes the least out of the whole craze is the man whose face launched it, Winkler.

According to the Hollywood Reporter, Winkler receivas between 5 and 6 per cent of Paramount's profits. This, says a merchandising agent, has yielded Winkler only an estimated $6,000 to $12,000, so far.

Winkler's agent, Tom Newman, refused to discuss his client's take on Fonzie products.

"That's between Winkler and Paramount," he said.



"Neither Henry nor I would want to license a cheaply made item or a bad item," Mindling said.

"For example, we've never licensed a skateboard, because we feel that it's dangerous for kids.

"And we've never licensed a Fonzie ring to go into a bubble gum machine, because I feel that's a rip-off."

Meanwhile, everyone concerned believes the bonanza has just begun.

Coming up soon, Mindling disclosed, are stuffed Fonzie dolls to be advertised on the back of 50 million boxes of Nabisco candy...plush Fonzie slippers and denim shoes...a Fonzie bicycle, home pinball game, motorcycle game, Fonzie drinking glasses...and aven Fonzie sheets and pillowcases, so that America's kids can sleep happily close to the image of their newest hero.

FROM T-SHIRTS TO SOCKS – "Fonzie" fans, Peggy, left, and April Panczak, show off some of the popular "Fonzie" products selling like crazy. There are about 100 other items bearing TV star Henry Winkler's face. They had a fast rise but may fall off now that Winkler has announced his resignation from TV series.

DR. ROBERT C. ATKINS, diet doctor and author: "I don't think amphetamines or any appetite-suppressing drugs are effective, primarily because there is a tolerance to them in weeks. There may also be the problem with withdrawal. In addition, it has been demonstrated that amphetamines cause a gradual week-by-week increase in levels of circulating insulin which prevents your fat stores from breaking down. When the International Narcotic Enforcement Officers Association asked me to address their Albany convention in 1971, I recommended to them that the manufacture of amphetamines be totally prohibited."

NIKKI GIOVANNI, poet, addressing students at Saginaw Valley State in Michigan: "Grades are the name of the game. It is so disgraceful that students score so low. We can do better, but first we have to learn how to learn. Ask your mother and father when was the last time they had fun. When was the last time you told them you loved them? ON THE GO ---With Doris Crandall

RESTAURANT WITH A SPECTACULAR VIEW... THE ORANGE COUNTY MINING COMPANY is located in the county of Orange, perched high on it's own mini-mountain at Chapman and Crawford Canyon Road..

Wind your way to the top and behold. You will find an interesting group of antiquated buildings actually built of old mining timber and siding deliciously rustic. Surrounding the site are all the expected working relics of the colorful mining era that began in the very same area a hundred years ago (1877) when Smith and Curry found silver ore – thus beginning the rush for fame and fortune.

The picturesque shaft entrance is all you will imagine. But step inside and you are surrounded by rustic elegance and one of the most spectacular views of the north part of our county. The restaurant is a delight with several levels for your dining pleasure, decorous with thick carpeting, unique furnishings all delightfully enhanced by greenery and bric-a-brac.

Dinner was most worthy. It began with a chilled green salad mingled with various salad builders and an excellent house dressing – a honey mustard variety – super with the hot cheese bread (fresh-made clam chowder also available).

My entree was the fresh catch of the day (changing on availability) – salmon — very tasty — not overcooked, accompanied by a flavorful rice and vegetable of creamed corn. Others in my party enjoyed the seafood brochette (tender pieces of seafood broiled on a skewer with bell pepper, onion); roast prime rib of beef au jus and filet mignon and crab leg. Our coffee and wine was interestingly served in mason jars. The wine carafe is also a large mason jar. We enjoyed a fresh cooked, tender artichoke served with mayonnaise butter and a skillet of fresh mushrooms sauteed in butter and wine.

The menu though limited – offers many favorites such as chicken teriyaki, brochettes of filet mignon teriyaki, steaks (top sirloin, New York, filet mignon). The popular combinations include filet mignon and crab and filet mignon and enchilada. All dinners include choice of clam chowder or the salad, rice, vegetable and hot cheese bread. Dinner prices run from $5.45 to $8.95.

Brunch is served every Sunday from 10 until 3 p.m. It's a delight to linger over a creamy fizz or maybe an "orange thing" as you drink in the marvelous view. There are several breakfast and lunch entrees to select from. A favorite of mine is the Hangtown fry – a lovely mound of fluffy eggs mingled with fresh sliced mushrooms, oysters, diced potatoes, green onion and bacon. The crab omelette is filled with King crab meat, fresh slices of mushrooms blended in wine.

There are also scrambled eggs and chicken livers; salmon omelettes...Bacon and eggs, hickory smoked ham and eggs; and steak and eggs – the great all American favorites are served with potatoes. The entrees include a choice of orange juice, tomato juice or a chilled glass of champagne plus various sweet rolls, breads. Prices are from $3.25 to $4.95.

Luncheon sandwiches are also served – roasted prime rib, teriyaki burger and choice steak priced at $4.95 A child's plate is $2.50.

Disco entertainment with Mellow Mike (you won't believe him) playing all your favorite LP's for your listening and dancing pleasure is offered Tuesday through Saturday nights from 8:30 until 1:30 a.m. Dinner is served nightly from 5 p.m. until 10 p.m. Friday and Saturday until midnight.

Orange County Mining Company is headed by Dave Perrins, Bucky Dennis and Brad Perrins. They also have the QUIET CANNONS, (Dana Point, Montebello and Long Beach), THE FOXHUNTER (Newport and Houston) and THE WINDROSE (Long Beach Marina). An ORANGE COUNTY MINING COMPANY will soon open in the city of Covina.

CONTINENTAL DIARY

Suitable Attire For Oil Rich Sheiks

By NEIL MORGAN

PARIS – Oil rich sheikhs are busily buying a new gimmick suit that costs $2,500. It's made in Britain from pure cashmere with a pin-stripe of 24-carat gold.

Reason for the rush: The Moxon Mill near the British north country town of Huddersfield can only produce cloth for around 100 suits a year.

Plans are on foot to increase output – and vary the "cloth of gold" by spinning mohair or cashmere sports suits with solid gold checks instead of pinstripes. Producers have no doubt they would sell to the Middle East – even at $5,000 a suit.

Sugar And 'Spice'

Paris producers of live sex shows – the ultimate in audience participation – are planning to break down the last barriers of opposition in London, England. Already, live shows from Paris tour Scandinavia and Holland, but all attempts to show them in London have failed.

Jean Perdrini, who runs the sleazy St. Denis theater in Paris, says, "I'm going to London, but I don't want censors to alter down my spicy acts."

The shows at Perdrini's are beautifully staged – but a bit rough. In "Today's Lady Chatterley," for example, actress Francoise Richard seduces a manservant and the play ends with 20 minutes of nonstop sex on stage.

P.S. The manservant – played by Michel d'Anterac thrice nightly – says, "It's quite a taxing role."

Moving On

Roman Polanski, the 43-year-old Polish-born movie director, who has been touring Europe to launch "The Tenant," says he may decide to give up living in Paris, France, his home for the past four years.

"I no longer feel attached to anywhere particular," he says. "Work just washes me away like an empty shell from one shore to another."

Polanski's been directing since he was 21. "I always wanted to be a film director. It satisfies me," he says. "But I'm not totally satisfied with what I've done.

"So much time and effort is wasted in setting films up. I hate the wheeling and dealing side of the business. I have no talent for it or desire to do it."

Incidental Intelligence

– Psychic researcher John Rayner of London claims he is in daily touch with Adolf Hitler who killed himself 31 years ago. Hitler, says Rayner, is dictating his memoirs to him.

Quotes Of The Week

– "In so far as socialism means anything, it must be about the wider distribution of smoked salmon and caviar." – Sir Richard Marsh, British politician.

– "I never really meant to be an actor. I had the idea of making a career in the military and retiring at 37." – Jason Robards, currently filming in Europe.

JOE LOUIS, former world heavyweight champion, on money he made as a fighter: "I got $50 for my first fight, but it wasn't long before the money got bigger. My end in the Nate Brown fight was $7,000. When I knocked out Ray Lazer I got almost $12,000. I got $60,000 for Canera and $53,000 for Levinsky. I got $217,000 for the Walcott fight. Then I went to London and put on an exhibition for an $80,000 guarantee. Once I knocked out Eddie Sims in 26 seconds and got $20,000. That figures out to $700 a second. Where did my money go? I gave a lot to old fighters who were in bad luck. I spent a lot on fancy clothes. One time I had around 100 suits made to order. They stood me $150 to $185 apiece. I spent a lot for big cars. I lost $40,000 in the Rhum Boogie Cafe in Chicago. Another one that turned out bad was a fried chicken bar in east Detroit. We dropped $25,000 on that."

DA FONZ:

A Big Commercial Craze

By JAMES GREGORY

HOLLYWOOD – A new craze is sweeping America's youth – and already its created a $10 million business – in "Fonzie" products.

The kids are buying milions of T-shirts, posters, beach towels and nearly a hundred other items bearing the face of Henry Winkler, who plays The Fonz on the TV smash hit show, "Happy Days."

"We've sold from three million to four million Fonzie T-shirts," happily reports an executive of Allison Manufacturing Co. in New York City.

"Over three million Fonzie posters have been sold!" says Lou Mindling, director of licensing for Paramount Pictures, which produces the show and owns the rights to the characters in it.

"Millions of packages of Topps Bubble Gum containing pictures of Fonzie and his TV pals have been sold.

"There are Fonzie lunch kits, puzzles, games, paper dolls, books, paint sets, bean bags, leather jackets, even knee-high socks for girls – and all of them are making money.

"Several of the people we licensed to make Fonzie posters can retire now.

"One fellow made over $500,000."

Paramount gets a substantial cut. Mindling said a manufacturer pays 5 to 10 per cent of the wholesale price for the right to use the Fonzie character.

More than $10 million worth of Fonzie products at retail prices already have been sold, most of them this year, he revealed.

Perhaps the one who makes the least out of the whole craze is the man whose face launched it, Winkler.

According to the Hollywood Reporter, Winkler receivas between 5 and 6 per cent of Paramount's profits. This, says a merchandising agent, has yielded Winkler only an estimated $6,000 to $12,000, so far.

Winkler's agent, Tom Newman, refused to discuss his client's take on Fonzie products.

"That's between Winkler and Paramount," he said.

"Neither Henry nor I would want to license a cheaply made item or a bad item," Mindling said.

"For example, we've never licensed a skateboard, because we feel that it's dangerous for kids.

"And we've never licensed a Fonzie ring to go into a bubble gum machine, because I feel that's a rip-off."

Meanwhile, everyone concerned believes the bonanza has just begun.

Coming up soon, Mindling disclosed, are stuffed Fonzie dolls to be advertised on the back of 50 million boxes of Nabisco candy...plush Fonzie slippers and denim shoes...a Fonzie bicycle, home pinball game, motorcycle game, Fonzie drinking glasses...and aven Fonzie sheets and pillowcases, so that America's kids can sleep happily close to the image of their newest hero.

FROM T-SHIRTS TO SOCKS – "Fonzie" fans, Peggy, left, and April Panczak, show off some of the popular "Fonzie" products selling like crazy. There are about 100 other items bearing TV star Henry Winkler's face. They had a fast rise but may fall off now that Winkler has announced his resignation from TV series.

DR. ROBERT C. ATKINS, diet doctor and author: "I don't think amphetamines or any appetite-suppressing drugs are effective, primarily because there is a tolerance to them in weeks. There may also be the problem with withdrawal. In addition, it has been demonstrated that amphetamines cause a gradual week-by-week increase in levels of circulating insulin which prevents your fat stores from breaking down. When the International Narcotic Enforcement Officers Association asked me to address their Albany convention in 1971, I recommended to them that the manufacture of amphetamines be totally prohibited."

NIKKI GIOVANNI, poet, addressing students at Saginaw Valley State in Michigan: "Grades are the name of the game. It is so disgraceful that students score so low. We can do better, but first we have to learn how to learn. Ask your mother and father when was the last time they had fun. When was the last time you told them you loved them? It seems as though our parents are the last ones we see when things are going our way, but once things go bad we run to mommy and daddy first."

CRACKER CRUMBS

'Frosty' Tips For Actors

By HARRY GRAHAM
Register Staff Writer

I knew the face. I had seen it many times.

And I knew I should know the name.

"Terry Frost," said the handsome gray-haired man.

"Yes," I said, "Ive seen you in a lot of movies and TV shows."

You've seen Terry, too. Never a star, he's had featured roles in 136 movies and 235 telefilms.

I met him at the Western Film Festival in Los Angeles last summer.

"I'll send you a copy of my book," said Terry. "It'll be out about the first of the year."

Sure enough, "Actors Only," a 84-page $5.95 "practical handbook on theater," published by Dorrance & Co., arrived in the mail last week. It is largely a compilation of lectures author Frost gave when he served as executive director of drama at the Patricia Stevens Career Colleges in Los Angeles and Pasadena.

It's always a little hard to believe a fellow you've seen play the bad guy in so many films is in actuality just another guy. But Terry Frost isn't just another guy, he is a smiling septauagenarian with a friendly smile and is an excellent conversationalist.

His little book isn't so much a technical work on how to act as it is a list of tips to aspiring actors. I'm no actor and never hoped to be one, but I believe what Terry has to offer is easy to follow and should be helpful.

Of speech, he says, "Keep it slow and low. The 'fast talker' is alwasy suspect, even if honest. He is hard to follow."

Terry adds, "To the extent an actor controls his voice, he controls his audience."

He also says, "If you are born with a good middle-class background and nothing to fight for, somewhere along the line, if you are to survive as an individual, you have to create conflict within yourself."

And, "A sculptor casts his dream in bronze; an actor takes his dream of a character and brings it to life using his voice and his movements, directed by his intelligence."

Plus, "Start with the knowledge that all successful actors must dedicate themselves to their profession in order to achieve their dreams; then work, work, work."

Then he says, "Success is a matter of talent, opportunity and timing."

Born in Bemidji, Minn., Terry Forst traveled the United States for six years after finishing high school, working as a miner, lumberjack, cowboy, salesman and jack-of-all-trades.

He began his acting career in 1929 in vaudeville and later appeared in such stage shows as "The Last Mile," "Front Page," "Accent on Youth" and "Three Men on a Horse."

After more than four decades on the stage, in movies and TV, he worked for a while at the drama school, then was a public relations man for a travel company.

He traveled to the Orient 50 times and made a dozen trips around the world. On the tips he studied and observed theater and motion pcitures in many countries, concluding that actors all over the world have the same philosophy of life.

And here is one of his best lines from his book: "The wind helps only those who set their sails."

Actor-author Terry Frost set his sails while in his youth, and the winds of life took him where he wanted to go.

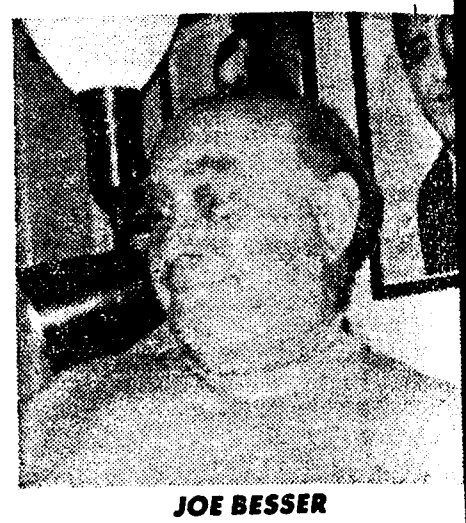
Death Reports Of Pair Were Premature

Veteran laughmaker Joe Besser is alive and well and is still entertaining children with his antics on Saturday morning cartoon shows and on other television re-run favorites.

In the Nov. 14 issue of Leisuretime a column headed Celebrity Questions from Knight News Wire contained the following sequence:

"Q. My cousin and I have been arguing over which members of the Three Stooges are dead. RMD. and R.W.

"A. They all are. Larry Fine and Moe Howard, the last surviving members of the comedy trio, both died in 1975. Moe was one of three Howard brothers who was a Stooge. Moe, Fine and Curly Howard were the first Stooges; Curly died in 1952 and was replaced by Shemp Howard. Shemp died in 1955 and Joe DeRita joined the group. Both DeRita, and another Joe, Besser, who was a Stooge briefly, died in the 1970s. The Three Stooges comedies, all made for theaters, were made from 1933 to 1957."



Understandably, the reply to this question was a cause of concern in both the Besser and DeRita households, according to a representative of the former, Jeff Lenburg, 1949 W. Cerritos, Anaheim.

Leisuretime, of course, regrets the error(s) by the news wire but let Lenburg tell it:

"The Knight Wire Services columnist made a grave error saying that both Mr. Besser and Mr. DeRita had passed away...

JOE BESSER

"Veteran comic Joe Besser, 69, r sides in North Hollywood with his wi of 44 years, Ernie. The Hollywoo laughmaker is best known for his role on 'The Abbott and Costello Show' a 'Stinky,' as 'Jillson', the janitor on th 'Joey Bishop Show' for four years, plu his contributions to radio and motio pictures for the past 57 years. Besser i well-remembered for such tag phrase as 'Not so f-a-s-t!!' and 'You cr-a-a-z- you!' He frequently does voice-overs fo Saturday morning cartoon shows as regular.

"Joe DeRita, 67, likewise a Nort Hollywood resident, made a local per sonal appearance at a film collector convention called Casual Con this pas September (in Anaheim). DeRita wa the last third partner of the Thre Stooges comedy group, making featur films until 1970. DeRita is semi retired..."

STREISAND

that lasted one night, and when she was 19 years old showed up for her audition for "I Can Get It For You Wholesale" one hour late.

After the show closed her success was quick and spectacular in cross-country concerts, in big supper clubs, on TV. In California 100 stars came to hear and cheer her. Tony Bennett, glittering high, noticed Barbra's nose, touched his own (no small matter, either), and whispered, "This could be the year for noses."

The third time we met, Barbra was rehearsing for her second Broadway play, "Funny Girl," which really vaulted her into superstardom. We were in a restaurant. When lunch was served she took the gum from her mouth, parked it under her plate, attacked a bowl of fruit salad, tilted her nose up, and asked, "Do I look like an anteater?" Her blue eyes were rather wistful.

She was in blue jeans, a white T-shirt and a plaid British jockey cap. But her dress, her talk, her behavior then all seemed right and natural. It came to this: she was resisting conformity fiercely while trying to escape it just as fiercely. The resulting confusion was a delightful combination of clowning one minute and all shyness the next, it's one of the secrets of her unquestionable talents, and maybe still is.

It's possible that sitting up there on the pinnacle she's frightened. Not many of her ten movies have been box-office smashes. Her latest, "A Star is Born," may be one of the lesser epics of our time. But Barbra is a shrewd girl. She did know how to "package" herself to get to the pinnacle. After that lunch we had she was told that a jockey cap was unsuited to a star.

"Right," she agreed. "There's a time to be a kook and a time to end it. I'm ending it."

MOUSEKETEERS

"We're in for a return to the optimistic and naive 1950s," said Bowles. "Look at Jimmy Carter. He's the newest Mouseketeer of all."

Bowles' next project is a book on the Ed Sullivan show called "A Rilly Big Shew." Look for it on the book shelves by next year.

Meanwhile, "Forever Keep Your Banner High" will make a hit, maybe, with Mouseketeers from way back when.

CLASSICAL MUSIC

Impressive New Line Of ABC Discs

By GARY GROSPOREAN

To innaugerate a new line of full-priced classical recordings, "ABC Classics," ABC Records has released 10 albums from the German SEON label.

They are touted as being "thoroughly researched compositions and exemplary performances on period instruments, creating a sound most nearly resembling that heard by the composer himself."

I can not disagree. The engineering is superb, the pressings impeccable, and the music sublime.

The albums are handsomely packaged and include exhaustive liner notes.

WEINACHTMUSIK DES 15 UND 16 JAHRHUNDERTS (Christmas music of the 15th and 16th Centuries), ABCL 67002. Capella Antiqua Munchen Mit Originalinstrumenten, Konrad Ruhland, conductor.

The Capella Antiqua consists of 17 members who are both accomplished instrumentalists and vocalists. Among the instruments in which they are porficient are the viol da gamba, vielle, recorder, crumhorn, sackbut, and dulcian.

The selections are drawn from both religious (Catholic and Protestant) and secular sources.

JOHN BLOW (1649-1708) ABCL 67004, ODE ON THE DEATH OF MR. HENRY PURCELL, Songs from "Amphion Anglicus," with James Bowman, Rene Jacobs, Max Van Egmond, and Gustav Leonhardt.

"Ode" is a touching tribute to Purcell by his musical mentor John Blow, featuring counter-tenors James Bowman and Rene Jacobs.

Georg Friedrich Handel, ABCL 67005/3, COMPLETER SONATAS FOR WIND INSTRUMENTS AND BASSO CONTINUO, directed by Frans Bruggen.

Director Bruggen, probably the world's most popular exponant of the recorder, is the soloist in the "Sonata for Recorder" as well as in the "Sonatas for German Flute." Bruce Haynes is the oboe soloist.

Also available is a specially priced "Sampler:"

ABC CLASSICS: THE FIRST RELEASE, SEON SERIES, CLS 67001.

Vallejo Home Monument

The Vallejo Home Historical Monument in Sonoma in northern California was once the home of General Mariano Guadalupe Vallejo, one of California's leading figures in the middle of the 19th century.

Vallejo, who played an important role in the Bear Flag Revolt of 1846, advocated annexation of California by the United States.

The home contains family furnishings and heirlooms. It was made of adobe and later covered with wood.

The home is surrounded by a pond and gardens with fountains, and is adjacent to a museum that contains Vallejo's saddles, carriage, and military mementos.

HANDWRITING

Social Mixing Problems Here

By DOROTHY ST. JOHN JACKSON
Certified Graphoanalyst

Dear Dorothy:

I am 29 years old and am so shy that I can't mix with other people. I fell awkward and out of place and can't figure out why. I have been told I'm nice looking and feel that I am fairly intelligent. What can I do about this so I can be a person before it's too late? Or was I just born this way?

T.T.

Dear T.T.:

Shyness is not a natural trait. It was cultivated and nourished away back in your childhood. Uncomplimentary credit must go to those who were not aware of the effects of their criticism, neglect and punishment.

A strong symptom of your shyness is your self-consciousness, seen in the high part of the n and m. It's a trait that's common with most of us, but the intenseness of the trait lies in its combination with other traits. In your case, it's combined with your small tight writing. This causes you to become totally absorbed in your faults, your appearance, your mannerisms, etc. You spend too many hours criticizing yourself because,

POP MUSIC

Headline Makers in 1976

by MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures

In 1976, Peter Frampton became a superstar and a new group named Boston sold enough copies of its first LP to make some kind of history.

Bob Dylan appeared in his first TV special and Bing Crosby gave his first concert. The Beatles did not get back together.

Peter Frampton, 26 and British, who left Humble Pie four years ago to begin a solo career, made the year's most smashing tour of the United States, fusing rock and pop. He got a divorce, and signed to play Billy Shears in the movie "Sergeant Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band." His "Frampton Comes Alive" was threatening Carole King's "Tapestry" as the biggest selling record album ever. And the LP "Boston" was trying to become the fastest-selling ever. It sold 500,000 copies in seven weeks, and hit a million copies in 11 weeks.

Grammy Awards for 1976 went to "Love Will Keep Us Together," by the Captain and Tennille, as record of the year, and to "Still Crazy after all these Years," by Paul Simon, as LP of the year.

Billboard Magazine, in its Christmas issue, listed the bestselling records during 1976. Best-selling singles: "Silly Love Songs," Wings; Don't Go Breaking My Heart," Elton John and Kiki Dee; "Disco Lady," Johnnie Taylor; "December 1963," Four Seasons; "Play that Funky Music," Wild Cherry; "Kiss and Say Goodbye," Manhattans.

"Love Machine," Miracles; "50 Ways To Leave Your Lover," Paul Simon; "Love Is Alive," Gary Wright; "A Fifth of Beethoven," Walter Murphy; "Sara Smile," Daryl Hall and John Oates; "Afternoon Delight," Starland Vocal Band; "I Write the Songs," Barry Manilow; "Fly, Robin, Fly," Silver Convention; "Love Hangover," Diana Ross.

Albums: "Frampton Comes Alive," Peter Frampton; "Fleetwood Mac," Fleetwood Mac; "Wings at the Speed of Sound," Wings; "Songs in the Key of Life," Stevie Wonder; "Greatest Hits 1971-1975," Eagles; "Chicago IX," Chicago; "The Dream Weaver," Gary Wright; "Desire," Bob Dylan.

"A Night at the Opera," Queen; "America's Greatest Hits – History," America; "Gratitude," Earth, Wind and Fire; "Face the Music," Electric Light Orchestra; "Brass Construction," Brass Construction; "Tryin' To Get the Feelin'," Barry Manilow; "Still Crazy After All These Years," Paul Simon.

The two best-selling Latin LPs were "The Salsoul Orchestra" by the Salsoul Orchestra and "Unfinished Masterpiece" by Eddie Palmieri. Top-selling soul LP was "Rufus Featuring Chaka Khan" and top soul single was "Disco Lady" by Johnny Taylor. "Disco Duck" by Rick Dees was a gimmick record with charm.

"Breezin'," by George Benson, was the best-selling jazz album. Readers of Down Beat magazine chose pianist McCoy Tyner as "jazzman of the year."

Stevie Wonder signed a $13 million contract with Motown Records.

Brian Wilson rejoined the Beach Boys. David Clayton Thomas rejoined Blood, Sweat and Tears. Ron Wood officially joined the Rolling Stones. Rick Wakeman rejoined Yes.

Gregg Allman testified about drugs before a federal grand jury. His road manager was sentenced to 75 years in prison and the Allman Brothers Band broke up. Ian Mitchell, 18, who joined the Bay City Rollers in April when Alan Longmuir, 26, left, also found traveling and rollermania "a nightmare" and was replaced by Pat McGlynn, 18.

The Band opened New York's refurbished Academy of Music – renamed the Palladium – after which the Beacon Theater closed as a rock hall. And then the Band, after some 16 years, gave itself a big farewell concert at Winterland in San Francisco. Rod Stewart left the Faces to form his own band.

Loggins and Messina split as a duo to become solo artists, and Cashman and West did the same thing. Harold Melvin and the Blue Notes broke up; so did Herbie Hancock's Head Hunters.

Singer Grace Slick of the Jefferson Starship married the group's lighting director, Skip Johnson. Singer Freda Payne married doctoral candidate Stanford Abbott. Keith Moon, drummer for the Who, married model Annet Walter-LAX. Country Joe McDonald married nursing student Janice Taylor. Allman Brothers lead guitarist Dickie Betts married Cher's secretary, Paulette Eghazarian. Alice Cooper married dancer Sheryl Goddard.

Frank Sinatra married Barbara Marx. He also sang at 4,500-seat Grand Ole Opry and wowed 'em.

The Country Music Association named Mel Tillis entertainer of the year, with Dolly Parton and Ronnie Milsap top vocalists. Single record of the year was named "Good-Hearted Woman" by Waylon Jennings and Willie Nelson. Album of the year was "Wanted – the Outlaws," by Jennings, Nelson, Jessie Colter and Tompall Glaser.

Song of the year was "Rhinestone Cowboy" written by Larry Weiss and recorded by Glen Campbell. The Nashville Songwriters Association picked Ben Peters, who co-authored "Before the Next Teardrop Falls," as its songwriter of the year. Billboard said the best-selling country single of the year was "Convoy" by C.W. McCall and the best-selling LP was "The Sound In Your Mind" by Willie Nelson.

Dolly Parton was ordered to rest her voice by her doctor. Merle Haggard suddenly canceled an engagement in Reno and took a vacation from "the stress of the road." Roy Acuff, 72, suffered a mild heart attack.

Lou Adler, president of Ode Records, was kidnaped and released after payment of $25,000 ransom. Rick Stevens, 37, former lead singer with Tower of Power, was convicted of murder in the killing of two men he said were drug dealers. Isaac Hayes declared personal bankruptcy.

Stax Records went bankrupt. Al Bell, owner, was acquitted by a federal jury and his codefendant, former bank officer Joseph Harwell, was found guilty on two of 13 charges facing the pair. They had been charged with fraudulently obtaining some $18 million in bank loans.

Clive Davis presidentof Arista Records, was fined$10,000 in federal court after pleading guilty to one count of failing to report $8,500 in income on his tax form in 1972.

Nat Tarnopol, president of Brunswick Records, was sentenced to three years imprisonment and fined $10,000 in federal court. Peter Garris, sales manager, Irving Wiegan, treasurer, and Lee Shep, production manager, of Brunswick, were given two-year sentences and $10,000 fines. The four were convicted on charges related to off-the-books sale of $350,000 worth of records and mail fraud. Four members of the Chi-Lites, who have recorded for Brunswick, pleaded guilty to income tax evasion and were given $5,000 fines.

Jamaican reggae music star Bob Marley was shot in the arm by snipers in Jamaica, gave a free concert two days later, escorted on stage by policemen. Band leader Count Basie, 72, suffered a heart attack. Average White Band guitarist Alan Gorrie fell seven feet from a Seattle stage, breaking his foot, and went on with the tour.

Among musicians who died in 1976 were: Florence Ballard, 32, original member of the Supremes, heart attack; Paul Kosoff, 25, lead guitarist with Back Street Crawler, heart attack; Phil Reed, guitarist with Flo and Eddie, fall from a window; Tommy Bolin, former lead guitarist with Deep Purple, drug overdose; protest singer Phil Ochs, 36, suicide; Keith Relf, 33, former lead singer of the Yardbirds, electrocuted.

Songwriter Johnny Mercer, 66, after brain surgery; Ray Gilbert, 63, who won an Academy Award in 1947 for his "Zip a Dee Doo Dah," after heart surgery; Ned Washington, 75, who won an Oscar for "High Noon," of a heart ailment.

Conductor-arranger Percy Faith, 68, of cancer; society band leader Meyer Davis, 81.

Jazz cornetist Bobby Hackett, 61, heart attack; Duke Ellington Band violinist Ray Nance, 62; Big Jim Robinson, 86, New Orleans trombonist, cancer, was given a traditional jazz funeral with two brass bands; Princess White, 95, died backstage after singing two songs at the Emelin Theater in Mamaroneck, N.Y.; jazz pianist Vince Guaraldi, 47, heart attack.

Victoria Spivey, 68, blues singer in the 1920s.

Connee Boswell, 68, singer in the Big Band era, cancer; Merna Barry, 51, of the singing Barry Sisters.

BOOK REVIEWS

Unfunny Books By Leading Humorists

FLIGHT TO CANADA by Ishmael Reed (Random House, 179 pages, $6.95) SLAPSTICK, OR LONESOME NO MORE! by Kurt Vonnegut (Delacorte Press, 243 pages, $7.95) SOMBRERO FALLOUT, A JAPANESE NOVEL by Richard Brautigan (Simon (Schuster, 187 pages, $6.95) What's so funny)

By PEGGY BARBER

Have the disillusioning events of the '70s sapped our sense of humor? Probably not, yet it's interesting to note that the latest novels from three of America's leading humorists stimulate few giggles, much less laughs. Even the satire sags.

Ishmael Reed's "Flight to Canada," a retelling of Civil War history from the slave's point of view, is the most convincing of the lot.

Poet Raven Quicksell is the first slave on Arthur Swille's plantation to learn to read, write, and take flight. He finds fame and fortune when his poem "Flight to Canada" is published, but he makes it all the way to freedom only to find "neon signs with clashing letters advertising hamburgers, used car lots with the customary banners, coffee joints where you stand up and take your java from wax cups." Where is freedom anyway?

Meanwhile, mean master Swille is hot on Raven's trail. Swille is the epitome of decadence; into, among other perversions, incest and chains and whips. He uses the latter on his visitor Queen Victoria when a copy of Harriet Beecher Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" turns up during a search of her quarters.

Later, while Raven romps on the rumpus room couch with Quaw Quaw Tralaralara (a native American princess who's married to a businessman pirate and becomes a media event when she tightrope walks Niagara Falls backwards), their passion is interrupted by television coverage of Abe Lincoln's assassination at the Ford Theater.

Reed writes radically revisionist history, with events unfolding in a surreal time crunch; history that features slaves reaping vengeance upon their masters by substituting Coffee-Mate for their usual "two gallons of slave mothers' milk."

Unfortunately, his fifth novel is not as loose and flighty as some of his earlier fantasies, but it does beautifully, if at times tediously, prove his point – "It will always be a mystery, history. New disclosures are as bizarre as the most bizarre fantasy."

"Slapstick," Kurt Vonnegut's eighth novel, has about as much going for it as a poorly directed slapstick film – flashes of wit, loads of energy, but too many missed cues and too few laughs.

Wilbur Rockefeller Swain is a one - hundred - year - old pediatrician and former U.S. President of a now defunct United States. He tells his life story from his home in the lobby of the ruined and abandoned Empire State Building on a ruined and abandoned Manhattan Island, now more commonly known as "National Skyscraper Park" or "The Island of Death."

Wilbur and his twin sister Eliza were born "Neander thaloids" (outrageously deformed mutants "with massive brow-ridges, sloping foreheads, and steam-shovel jaws"). Banished to a country estate by their terribly rich and heartbroken parents, the hideous pair soon discover that although when apart they're typical Vonnegut dullards, when together they form a single giant genius.

Soon they've dashed off the best-selling child rearing manual, "So You Went and Had a Baby," which becomes the third most popular book ever written after "The Bible" and the "Joy of Cooking." Later, Wilbur is elected President of the U.S. by virtue of his brilliant campaign slogan, "Lonesome No More." This promise is to be fulfilled by the computerized assignment of a middle name to every person, thus creating artificial extended families and a sure cure for American loneliness.

Victory proves sour, however, since Wilbur finds himself competing for power with a King of Michigan and a Duke of Oklahoma and ruling over a plague-ravaged, quickly diminishing populace. Besides, minature Chinese have taken over most of the world, including what's left of the U.S. And it's all downhill from there, for Wilbur for his countrymen, and for Vonnegut fans.

For humor's sake, it would have been better if Richard Brautigan were still living happily in northern California – undiscovered by the mass media and mass audiences – writing simple, whimsical stories and poems for his small devoted following. His new novel is downright depressing.

"Sombrero Fallout" is about a "very well-known American humorist" (Brautigan) whose beautiful Japanese lover has left him "because the upkeep was too complicated." He can't stop crying and he can't start writing. The story he's struggling over, about a frigid sombrero falling out of the sky, finally ends up in the waste basket.

A good place for it. But alas it has a life of its own and through a weird series of events triggers a riot – complete with violence, death, the U.S. Air Force, and Norman Mailer serving as war correspondent for the national media.

Meanwhile the humorist mopes. He simply cannot pull himself together and so spends several chapters searching for a lost strand of his lover's beautiful black hair.

And that, unfortunately, is the whole sad story.

Updike Novel

MARRY ME. By John Updike. Knopf. 303 Pages. $7.95.

Jerry loves Sally. Sally loves Jerry. They want to get married. Unfortuantely, to them at least, they can't because they already are married – but to others. Jerry to Ruth Conant. Sally to Rchard Mathias. In addition, each of the lovers has several – not very endearing – children.

What to do? Well, novelist John Updike spends about 300 not terribly interesting pages studying the problem from all sides and, apparently unable to come up with a satisfying conclusion, gives the reader a multiple choice ending that, while clever, is an abdication of responsibility. The problem is not so unique that it cannot be resolved satisfactorily for the reader, if not for the characters composing the problem.

Much like Updike's last novel, "A Month Of Sundays," "Marry Me" does have some interesting portions, some of the fine descriptive writing that Updike can do so well when he puts his mind to it – "The clouds materialized earlier than usual; little upright puffs at first, like puffs of smoke from a locomotive starting its run around the horizon ..." – but once again the parts are better than the whole.

One trouble is that his characters are not very sympathetic people. Jerry is religion obsessed, given to saying such things as "... our trouble is that we live in the twilight of the old morality, and there's just enough to torment us, and not enough to hold us in." Sally is a shallow, largely amoral type with a most irritating penchant for starting her sentences with "Hey."

As previously noted, "Marry Me" does have its good moments, but they are relatively rare.

Ulan Bator In Ranks Of Most Rare, Exotic

ULAN BATOR, Mongolia (AP) – For the tourist who has been everywhere, there is still a last frontier: the People's Republic of Mongolia, where a Communist government eager for Western currency is stepping up efforts to attract foreign visitors.

Perhaps most famous for its 10-day, $10,000 hunting expeditions for wealthy foreign sportsmen, the isolated and mountainous country between the Soviet Union and China is trying to appeal now to less moneyed visitors. But Mongolia's distant location and limited tourist facilities will probably keep it for many years in the category of a rare and exotic spot for a vacation.

It is some 3,000 miles to the capital city of Ulan Bator from Moscow, the main transit point for visitors coming from the west. There are also trains from Moscow and Peking. The $350 plane ticket from Moscow covers transportation to Irkutsk, Siberia, on the Soviet airline Aeroflot and then a one-hour hop into Ulan Bator on a 50-seat Air Mongolia plane where passengers share the cabin with cargo.

In Ulan Bator, the national tourist organization – known as Juulchin – offers a single hotel room, three meals and a full-time interpreter-escort for $52.50 a day.

Ulan Bator's palaces, Buddhist temple and museums can be seen quickly, however. According to Sedgochogyin Luvsandash, deputy general director of Juulchin, the 8-10 day stay of an average western tourist usually includes a variety of outlying points.

Hunters usually go to areas where mountain sheep with horns up to 70 inches long are the big prize.

Other tourists travel 400 miles to the Gobi Desert, at about $25 a day, where they can live in native huts, visit sand dunes, meet cattle breeders and ride camels. Additional tourist spots are Karakorum, Ghengis Khan's 13th century capital 120 miles southwest of Ulan Bator and the Terelj tourist center in mountain country near the capital.

Last year about 5,000 foreign tourists came to Mongolia, compared to 2,000 five years ago and only a few hundred 10 years ago. There are about 500 Americans per year and 60 hunters.

"A hundred percent of the hunters come back with animals," Luvsandash said in an interview. "No one comes back with empty hands. They're all satisfied."

Juulchin, which has no offices overseas, is trying to work out additional contacts with Western tourist agencies. Next year, for the first time, it will start to send the agencies its own brochures about Mongolia to distribute directly to their clients.

Even Juulchin guides tend to warn visitors about extra charges that can substantially increase the cost of their tour here. Although a guide in Ulan Bator is free with the daily package, a car and driver to take the guide and his visitors around the city is not.

This winter, the rate for the car was 80 cents per mile.

A foreign hunter who shot one mountain sheep found that his bullet had gone through his target after killing it and killed a second sheep, breaking a hunting quota law. The fine was $5,000, payable immediately in hard currency.

Some travelers have had difficulty using Western travelers' checks in Ulan Bator and experienced visitors usually take a good supply of U.S. dollars or other Western currency in cash.

Despite the Mongolian interest in earning foreign exchange from tourism, however, Luvsandash claimed national pride also motivates Mongolians to try to increase the number of visitors.

Tribal, Family Ties Traced For Many Through Ghana Source

CAPE COAST CASTLE, GHANA, WEST AFRICA – The great castles European powers built along this nation's sea coast are underlain by large dungeons where slaves were held until the slave ships arrived.

It is a chilling experience to stand now in the wet darkness where generations of slaves were held in brutal confinement. Air holes near the ceiling served as listening tubes for their captors and narrow windows screened by massive bars let only thin slices of the African sun penetrate the deep caverns.

Electric lights are strung through the chambers to assist the visitors and a fetish shrine is kept by people in the area in memory of the Africans sent to the western world.

American blacks come here to search out the threads to their ancestral origins. They find fragmentary clues in facial and body characteristics, perhaps a name, a scrap of a song, a family story passed on for generations. Reliable specifics are hard to find. American whites discover the realities of a business scarcely mentioned in their history textbooks.

A pre-eminent authority is Dr. A. Van Dantzig who teaches history at the University of Ghana in Legon, near Accra.

He notes that none of the 50 or so forts, castles and lodges built along the Gold Coast – Ghana's name before independence – was built for the slave trade.

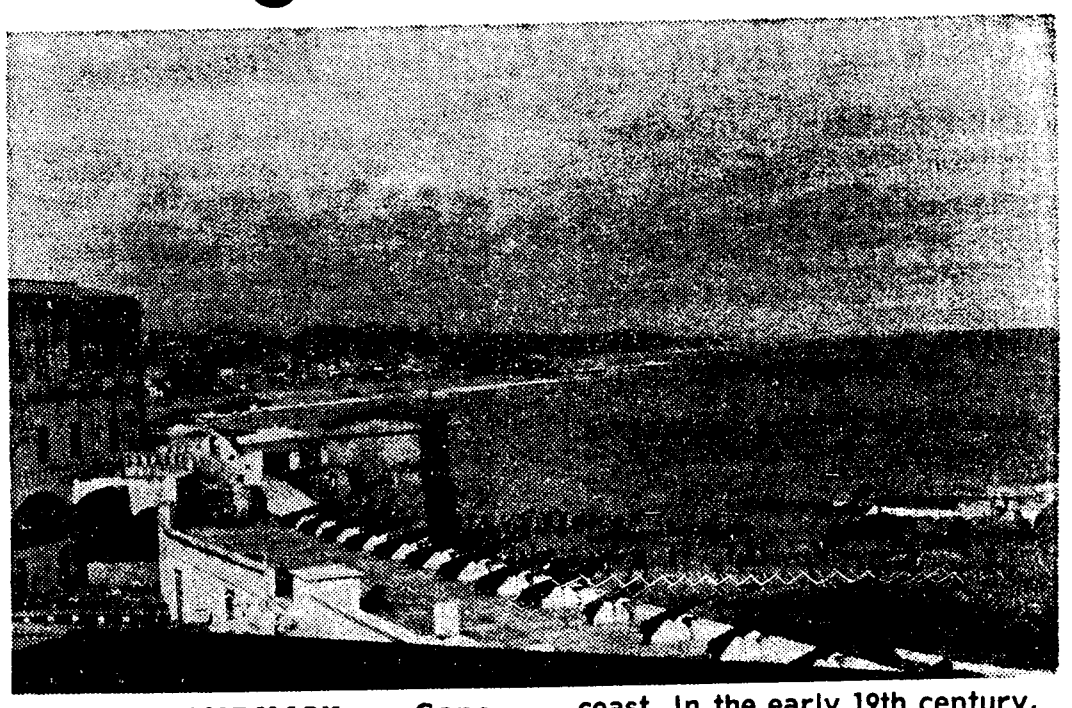
The Europeans came here for gold and it was the principal business for 200 years after the Portugese built a castle near here at Elmina in 1482. That castle's massive hulk and protective moats were a reaction to the European fear of the Turks who had recently taken Constantinople, establishing a bridgehead on the European continent. Elmina's size and strength made it appropriate for its later use as a slave castle.

The Dutch captured Elmina in 1637 and after an unsuccessful attempt to make gold mining profitable, turned to slavery, a strong custom in the region.

By 1680, Dr. Van Dantzig writes, "the slave trade in this area had become a large business and by 1720, slaving exceeded the traffic in gold."

Slavery continued at a high level until its abolition in the early 1800's.

The castles then under British control became an effective tool in the suppression of slavery and they were a refuge for people in the area when groups from the interior came on slaving raids. The slave trade continued on a regional basis until well into the 20th century.



"It is difficult," Dr. Van Dantzig writes, "to say from which areas most of the slaves came. In the early 18th century, the short-lived Akwamu empire in southeast Ghana was the main slave-supplier, selling victims of internal wars and from conquered areas.

"Later, the Ashanti became the main supplier, selling slaves from their northern borderlands (Gonja, Dagomba, Mamprugu) while they often asked payment in slaves from tributaries all over central Ghana.

"There were also a number of coastal people (Ahanta, Fante, Ga, Adangbe, Ewe) who were sold as slaves on account of crimes or were pawned for a debt not paid in time."

The trading, raiding, migratory customs of many of the people make contemporary efforts to trace origins very difficult. Other hazards to geneological detective work are presented by the slaves' custom, according to Dr. Van Dantzig, of placing people from the coastal area, especially the Fantes, who knew European languages, in command of other slaves. Those "bombas" became influential people on both sides of GHANA LANDMARK – Cape Coast Castle's huge gun battery overlooks the Atlantic Ocean and fishermen bringing their nets ashore, a scene unchanged since the British built this seat of colonial power in the 17th century. Under the guns is a series of large dungeons in which slaves were held until slave ships anchored off the coast. In the early 19th century, when the traffic in trans-Atlantic slavery was suppressed, the castle became a refuge for the local population when slaving parties came on raids from the interior. The castle is now a museum, a comfortable half-day trip from Accra, the capital of Ghana.

Check Your Coins

By LEE MARTIN, N.L.G.

How many items can you buy for one cent? It's almost impossible to buy anything with our smallest denomination! "Penny" candy now costs at least two cents. A stick of chewing gum which was once available for a cent is rarely sold individually and would probably sell for at least three cents. Even parking meters, once the bastion of the copper coin, are now practically unanimous in demanding a nickel, dime or quarter.

Among the items purchased in a test were two nails, a piece of string (very small), a stamp, a washer, a piece of paper, plus a plastic toy. To put it mildly, none of the purchases was important enough to demand retention of the cent as a unit of commerce.

If you are able to buy something for a cent, won't you drop me a line? Write Lee Martin, Box 667, Beaumont, California 92223. It will make an interesting column and I assure you will be a challenging experience for you.

Should the cent be retained? It's a nostalgic bit of Americana. The Lincoln image on the coin has been around since 1909 although the reverse was changed in 1959. With the price of copper apparently going to surpass the face value of the coin in 1980 (if labor is included in the costs), it seems likely that the cent as we know it will become a memory.

Another alloy may be produced in its place. Copper appears destined to join silver as a memory. Aluminum coins from other nations are lightweight and easily damaged but they probably are forerunners of what you will be using in 1980 unless inflation reverses itself.

The common date Lincoln cents made prior to 1959 are seldom seen in circulation. They're detectable by the Wheatline reverse instead of the Memorial reverse seen on the current coins.

Dealers are charging at least a dollar a roll for common cents with a Wheatline reverse and I've seen prices at $2 or $3 a roll depending upon the course. It all adds up to collector demand for a coin regarded as too common to pay attention to just a few years ago. It's the same situation we once faced with our 90% silver coins which now bring at least three times face value.

With the excitement of the Lincoln cent, a natural question comes to mind. Should you store bags of cents in the hope of future profits? A single answer is impossible. Copper tarnishes easily and doesn't store well. Bags of copper coins produce no revenue and the money in a bank does. However, the possibility that Lincoln cents in ten years from now will be exceptional investments might counter the theory that ordinary copper coins are poor investments.

If you decide to store cents, select uncirculated ones or if you intend to take older coins from circulation, choose those that are in the best condition. When the time comes to sell, you will find buyers; but if worn coins are offered to a collector, he will look elsewhere.

The most logical action is to visit a local coin dealer and buy the short mintage coins. They are reasonably priced because today's market is relatively inactive. When the cents actually are replaced, that would be the time to sell whatever purchases are made today.

Our Lincoln cents are sixty-seven years old. It's doubtful if they will live to the ripe old age of seventy. Owning them may help your Social Security!

STAMPS

A modification in ordering first day cancellations of new U.S. stamps will go into effect with the first new issue of 1977. The commemorative on top of the year's listing is the "Washington at Princeton" stamp scheduled for release on Jan. 3 at Princeton, N.J., to hail the 200th anniversary of the victory by Gen. Washington's forces ending the successful New Jersey campaign.

Beginning with this issuance on Jan. 3, collectors have the option of obtaining the first day covers in two ways. They may use the regular request system of enclosing the proper remittance with orders – or the new system which is almost a "do-it-yourself" program.

Under the new option, collectors may purchase their own stamps at their local post offices and affix the stamps to their own envelopes. Within 15 calendar days after the first day of issuance, the envelope must be forwarded to the Postmaster – in this case it is the Postmaster, Princeton, N.J. 08540 – for cancellation and return through the mail.

By affixing their own stamps, collectors have control over centering, perforations and arrangement of the stamps. Since the stamps are already affixed, the processing system at the first day city is simplified and the Postal Service can provide faster return of the envelopes to the customer. Also, the individual ordering the stamps does not have to get a money order to cover the cost of the items involved.

The first stamp on the U.S. agenda for 1977 has a basic design based on the 1779 portrait by Charles Willson Peale, who fought at Princeton as a first lieutenant with the Philadelphia militia. The painting shows George Washington in full uniform, standing with one hand resting lightly on a captured cannon. In the right background, an orderly holds a horse. Also noted is a flag with a circle of 13 stars. In the distance at the left, Hessian prisoners are being marched from Princeton's Nassau Hall.

History buffs will recall the famous Washington campaign. After the historic crossing of the Delaware and the defeat of the Hessians at Trenton on Dec. 26, 1776, Washington again crossed the Delaware and outmarched Lord Cornwallis to set up the decisive triumph at Princeton.

Beneath the painting, in one line of type, appears, "Washington at Princeton 1777 by Peale." Below that is "US Bicentennial 13 cents." The lettering is the same as previous Bicentennial series stamps based on famous paintings.

If you would prefer the new system of affixing your own stamps, here is what you must do. Address your envelope as desired. You may use the peelable return labels or write the address in pencil or pen. Stamps must be affixed in the upper right corner of the envelope, approximately 1/4 inch from the top and 1/4 inch from the right edge. Return addresses should be placed low and to the left.

Orders must be postmarked by Jan. 18 and should be addressed to: "First Day Cancellations, Postmaster, Princeton, N.J. 08540." No remittance is required.

For the regular method, as collectors have done in the past, enclose your remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed. Address your order to: "Washington at Princeton Stamp, Postmaster, Princeton, N.J. 08540." Do not send cash or stamps.

It will be interesting to find out how many collectors will opt for the new method.

basically, you fear the criticism of others, seen in the t loops.

Your shyness can be healed but you are the healer.

It's through your own efforts and desire that you have to rearrange your thinking. Basic is that worn-out fact that you have to push out to be with people. I would suggest the YWCA in your community for a starter because your writing says you have a vital need for physical activity, seen in the ballooned p loops. They are a warning signal of your need to flex your muscles. Participation in sports offered by this organization would not only satisfy this bodily need, but would have a way of blowing out a lot of the dusty shyness which is clogging your personality. With your eye on the ball, you can keep your mind off yourself.

True, it's all easier said than done. The first few weeks will be painful but don't give up. You have to hang in and force yourself to mingle, if you want to get well.

When you feel unsure of yourself, while recuperating, just smile. This is very disarming.

But, most importantly, reevaluate the importance of what has happened to you in the past as compared to what you want to be now and in the future. You have a good analytical mind, seen in the v formations along the line. Use it to examine your future rewards instead of picking your ego to the bone.

You can overcome your shyness if you do something about it. Thousands of others before you have done it. You can do it, too.

San Bernardino County Parks Offer Wide Opportunity For All

The Christmas rush is over, and many people are looking for wide open spaces to spend a few days of fun and relaxation. Some of the best places to enjoy leisure time activities can be found within San Bernardino County's Regional Park System, and the time to enjoy them is now.

San Bernardino County operates a network of nine regional parks. Each facility has a personality of its own, offering a wide variety of recreational opportunities, and open all year long.

Prado Regional Park is the newest facility the county operates, having just opened in October of this year. Located in the Chino-Ontario vicinity, this park may be reached by taking the Euclid Avenue exit off Interstate Route 10 and following it south for 8 miles to the entrance gate. The park can also be reached from Highway 71 by traveling 3 miles north on Euclid Avenue.

Once inside, there are many features to enhance the park visitor's stay. Several individual and group picnicking areas border Prado's two ponds and many open play areas. For overnight stay, a modern 50-unit campground provides a chance to get away from it all, "close to home." Across Euclid Avenue, golf enthusiasts can enjoy El Prado Golf Course with its two 18-hole championship courses, pro shop, and restaurant.

Another close-to-home recreation facility is Cucamonga-Guasti Regional Park. Located in the vicinity of Ontario, this park may be reached by taking the Archibald Avenue exit off Interstate 10 and following the sign one block to the park entrance.

Fishing is the name of the game during Cucamonga-Guasti's winter months. From November to April, the park's two lakes are stocked regularly with Rainbow Trout. Fishermen will also find Channel Catfish the year round. Those who wish to explore the water at a leisurely pace, may rent a pedal or rowboat in the park's larger lake. Family, group, or club picnics are always a favorite pastime, and the park contains numerous picnic areas. Each site comes complete with its own table and barbecue.

Glen Helen Regional Park was the first facility planned and developed by the County. Opened in 1968, its lakes, trails, and campground encompass 500 acres in scenic Cajon Pass. Located 10 miles north of San Bernardino, the park can be reached by taking Interstate 15 to the Devore Road exit and following the signs one mile west to the park entrance.

Fishing is also a major pastime at this park. The facility contains two large lakes and several small ponds. The lakes are stocked with Rainbow Trout and Catfish.

Another popular feature of the park is its ecology trail. Winding through a heavily wooded area, this section features several varieties of wildlife and plant growth.

A grassy picnic area is located along the shore of the park's largest lake. It features several individual sites, along with areas accommodating large groups.

The next park, Mojave River Forks, is primarily a campground facility. Located ten miles northeast of Silverwood Lake on California Highway 173 via Highway 138, Mojave River Forks is situated in the Summit Valley area.

The fully equipped campground is a favorite spot for weekend boaters utilizing Silverwood Lake. Totaling 90 sites, the park features 25 complete hookup sites and one large group camping area.

Through Cajon Pass and onto the high desert, the next stop is Mojave Narrows Regional Park. Located in the Mojave River Basin, and three miles south of Victorville, the park may be reached by taking the Bear Valley Road exit off Interstate 15 and following the signs to the park entrance.

The Narrows offers fishing 12 months a year in the Horseshoe Lake. Anglers can either try their luck from the shore, or rent a boat and fish in deeper waters. Several individual and group picnic sites are scattered throughout the area. Each one comes complete with table and barbecue. A recent addition in the park's 800 acre wildlife area is a specially designed trail for the handicapped. This competely paved pathway winds through a heavily wooded area for almost a mile, along which visitors may see several types of plants and animals.

Camping clubs will enjoy a new 87-unit campground located within the park and near Horseshoe Lake. This facility, complete with restrooms and hot showers, provides a good basecamp for restful weekends and club get-togethers.

Calico Ghost Town is perhaps the best known regional park, having been part of the system since Walter Knott gave it to the county in 1966.

A silver mining boom town of the 1880's, Calico can be found 10 miles northeast of Barstow, just off Interstate Route 15. The townsite has been restored in the vein of its historical past and offers the visitor a view of the wild west during its heyday.

Today, one can walk the tunnels of Maggie's Mine, ride a tram and railroad, visit the museum or the Mystery Shack, and even participate in an 1880 stage show at the Calikage Playhouse. There are many interesting shops and food parlours, where varieties of western style goods, snacks, and merchandise may be bought. For extended stays, there's a modern 110-unit campground nestled in a secluded canyon below the town, offering a centrally located basecamp for desert explorations of nearby Calico Dig, Doran Canyon, and Rainbow Basin.

Just down the road from Calico Ghost Town, a truly unique regional park facility to be found anywhere is the Early Man Archaeological Site. Known as "The Calico Dig," this complex consists of two master pits where discoveries have pushed man's existense on this continent back at least 50,000 years. The Calico Dig is located six miles north of Calico Ghost Town, and free guided tours are available every day of the week, except Tuesday.

For nature lovers, Morongo Regional Park, located in Morongo Valley, is a 160-acre wildlife reserve. The park entrance is located just east of Highway 62 in Morongo Valley. Nature study is the main pastime at this facility. Left in a natural state, Morongo is home for over 200 species of birds and 150 varieities of plant life. An interconnecting trail system runs throughout the park's many varied environmental communities. Here, one may get a close-up look at anything from a Vermillion Fly Catcher to a wild Turkey Vulture.

The final stop within the county's park system is Park Moabi Marina, located on the Colorado River, 11 miles southeast of Needles off Interstate 40. Moabi is considered by many as the railhead of the lower Colorado.

There are several ways to enjoy one's stay at this facility. Fishermen will discover Catfish, Bass, Trou, Trout, and Bluegill awaiting their hooks, and for those wishing to discover the River, houseboats may be rented at the Marina for weekend or week-long cruises. Topock Gorge, beginning just beyond the park boundaries, is the most spectacular Colorado scenery to be found south of the Grand Canyon. Maobi's facilites also include a fully equipped campground, boat storage, launching ramp, and a general store where groups will find everything needed for an overnight or extended visit.

World Team Tennis Due

By ART PARRA

It just seems like yesterday when the Virginia Slims Tennis Classic of Mission Viejo was part of the "You've come a long-way, baby" series.

Unfortunately, the appearance of world class women players in our south county area didn't last long. More than adequate crowds were on hand for the outdoor meet, but the biting cold weather turned out to be too much for the delicate scantily clad netset girls.

The popular Virginia Slims tour, beginning its eighth year this week with a tournament winding up today at Washington D.C., will not be in Southern California until February 14-20 when the Slims play at the Los Angeles Sports Arena.

Stops in Hollywood, Florida; Houston, Texas; Minneapolis, Minn.; Seattle, Wash.; Chicago, Ill. all preceed the southland invasion.

After Los Angeles it will be tournaments in Detroit, Mich.; San Francisco, Calif.; Dallas, Texas; Philadelphia, Pa. and climaxed by the $150,000 Virginia Slims Championship to be held at Madison Square Garden in New York. This classic has been held at the Los Angeles Sports Arena in the past. The power of Madison Avenue is obvious again.

Each of the regular season tournaments are worth $100,000, up $25,000 from last year. The Virgina Slims Championship is considered the first jewel in the Triple Crown of Women's Tennis and only eight players will qualify. Points earned in the Silver Ginny singles action wpll determine the eight finalists.

Looking back over the first seven years of the Virginia Slims Circuit it is quite obvious this is a different game from the one played at Houston with a single, 8-player, $5,000 tournament. The increase in prize money is indicative of fan interest, spurring the boom. Last season, the circuit attracted 339,920 paying customers. This represented a 37-percent increase over 1975.

Chris Evert is expected to dominate again this year. Virginia Wade, Martina Navratilova and Rosemary Casals can threaten but that is just about all. Evonne Goolagong won't see action this season due to a scheduled arrival from Mr. Stork.

This is one year many of the young players being developed will start making some big money. It's a cinch they have generated new excitement in women's tennis. Sue Barker (20); Terry Holladay (21); Mima Jausovec (20); Natasha Chmyreva (18) are the best from a crop of outstanding young players.

Several others will bear watching. Included are Regina Marsikova (18) (Czechslovakia); Marise Kruger (18) (South Africa); and Greer Stevens (19), Beth Norton (19), Kathy May (20) (all of U.S.).

Seeing the Slims action for the first time this year will be the communities of Seattle and Minneapolis. Hollywood, Fla. is back on the trail for the first time since 1974.

BUFFUMS-KODEL BACK

Orange County tennis clubs, public and private, will rejoice with the news released this week from Buffums' Department Stores.

The Third annual Buffums-"Kodel" Mixed Doubles Tennis Tournament is scheduled for April 15-18 at the Billie Jean King Tennis Center in Long Beach. Once again it will be a co-sponsored affair by Buffums' and Eastman Chemical Products, Inc., marketers of Kodel polyester fiber.

Gary Brown, tournament director, has announced all clubs, parks and schools in the Palos Verdes, Long Beach and Orange County area are invited to run preliminary tournaments until April 1. Players may enter free of charge, regardless of ability but must be 19 years of age or older.

The winning mixed doubles from each club preliminary will then represent respective affiliations in the April championship tournament. (Players should contact their club, park or school for further information.)

Winners of the tournament will receive trophies, prizes and a perpetual award for the club to display one year.

In addition, the winning team will represent the greater South Coast area in the fourth annual "Kodel Cup," a classic played in the east featuring winners from 24 cities throughout the nation.

"Kodel Cup" champions received a berth in the mixed doubles division of the U.S. Open at Forest Hills this fall.

Six Orange County teams took part in the action last year. Huntington Beach Tennis Club, Huntington Seacliff Tennis Club, Newport Shores, Westminster Tennis Club, California State University Fullerton andPromontory Point Tennis Club all participated.

Promontory Point, represented by Gail Glasgow and Dennis Trout came as close as possible to going all the way before losing in the final round to

Tequila Plant Guadalajara Attraction

The story of tequila goes back 103 years in Mexico, and its name is Sauza. The largest tequila producer and seller in that country is the Sauza company, whose plant outside Guadalajara is open for tours to the public.

But the ritual and public life of Mexicans have been closely associated with liquors made from the cactus for as long as Mexican history has been recorded. The Aztecs drank pulque, and tequila was the first spirit ever distilled in America. The Spanish introduced the refined product, and the Margarita, which was invented by Ensenada resident Daniel Negrete of El Grande Chaparral restaurant in that city was named for Negrete's girl friend. The reason, according to Sauza representatives who paid a recent visit to The Register, that people associate salt with the fiery liquid, is that Margarita always had salt with whatever she ate or drank. The Margarita was designed for use with a lime, but she added the salt. The salt stayed and today traditional Margaritas are served in chilled glasses encrusted with salt around the top.

These and other oddments came up when the Sauza people came to call. It is their job to popularize the Mexican drink here, and they have a musical trio that performed at the August opening of Las Case Tequilla in Roland Heights, out on Fullerton Road.

Virtually all Americans think it's cactus. Many residents of southwestern United States know it as the century plant, Mexicans call it mezcal or maguey, and botanists classify it as agave. But by whatever name it is known, only one of perhaps 400 species of this prolific plant produces one of the most famous spirits in the world: tequila.

Formerly consumed almost exclusively in Mexico – which is its sole producer – tequila is now exported to more than 70 countries throughout the world, including Russia. In the United Sates, which is the biggest customer by far, tequila has grown in popularity faster than any other liquor in recent years. The tequila vogue can be attributed to the advent of the famous Margarita cocktail, the liquor's great versatility, and the consumers' gradual shift toward lighter beverages. Mexico's romantic reputation probably is a factor, too. However, outside Mexico, little is known about tequila itself. Most people think that it is unusually potent, but the sober truth is that most tequila sold in this country is only 80 proof, or 40 per cent alcohol, which is about the lowest content of any hard liquor on the market.

The history of tequila goes back centuries before the Spaniards conquered Mexico in the 1500s, when the ancient Indians learned how to ferment the "honey water" of the maguey plant to make a mildly alcoholic beverage used primarily for religious occasions. The Spanish conquistadores, who favored stronger drink, began to distill the juice of the strange new plant and called the produce mezcal. The name tequila comes from the town of Tequila (named after an Indian tribe), located about 30 miles west of Guadalajara in the beautiful high country in the state of Jalisco. Technically, all tequila is mezcal, but not all mezcal is tequila – only that which comes from the general area of Tequila.

Tourists are welcome to tour the Sauza headquarters and bottling plant in Guadalajara Monday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.; complimentary cocktails are served from noon to 1:30 p.m. (address: 3273 Av. Vallarta).

Ghana Families

the Atlantic while the people under them often came from different regions.

A further complication is that frequently slaves from Togo and Benin, the old Slave Coast, were brought to Elmina and Cape Coast to be held for shipment across the Atlantic.

He calculates that of the "widely accepted" estimate of 18 million Africans sold in slavery, perhaps one million came from what is now Ghana. Because of the castles' importance as West African trans-shipment ports, a larger number were actually shipped from here.

If the specific evidence of individual family connections has disappeared in centuries of ethnic movements, the atmosphere within these old castle walls will evoke strong images of the past.

In the great dungeon vaults a visitor senses the oppressive mood of that time and place when African sold African to European and the dungeons were periodically emptied to fill the holds of slave ships anchored off shore.

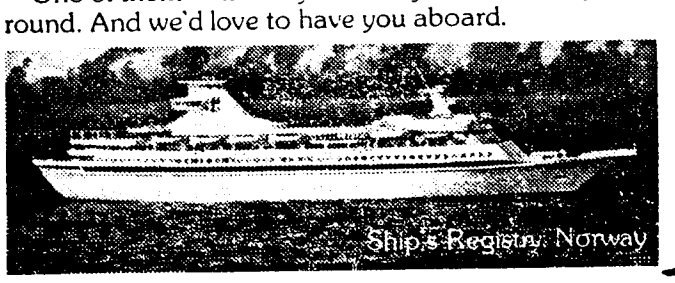
Get your Caribbean cruise off to a flying start.

Take off on a Royal Caribbean Air/Sea Cruise. Aboard Sun Viking or Nordic Prince—the two most popular two week cruise ships in the Caribbean.

You'll see eight of the Caribbean's most asked-to-see islands. Places like St. Thomas, Curaçao and San Juan. Plus Caracas on the continent of South America.

You'll enjoy bathing by the seaside in a refreshing salt water pool. Almost an acre of deck under the gentle Caribbean sun. A dining room that's a Restaurant Francais one night, an English Pub the next. Entertainment that changes everytime we entertain. (You'll never see the same act twice. Unless you give it an encore.)

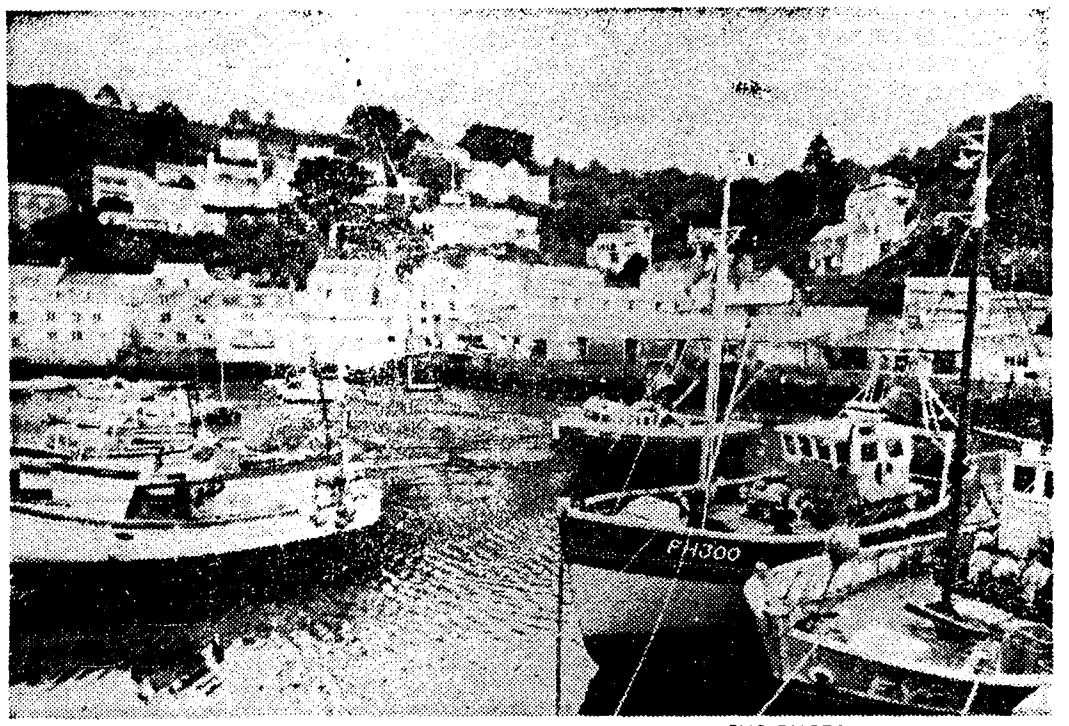
If you thirst for more, we have the top bar in the Caribbean: the Viking Crown Lounge – 10 stories above the sea.



And a Royal Caribbean Air/Sea Cruise is one vacation where you can really unwind. Because you'll know what it's going to wind-up costing before you go.

Where else, for example, does the cost of your vacation include the cost of all your food and entertainment?

Fact is, our price includes a 14-day cruise, round-trip air fare to Miami, airline security charges, ground transportation in Miami, and all transportation and port taxes.



That's a lot of vacation for the money. So, see your travel agent. And tell 'em you want to take off for the Caribbean. On Sun Viking or Nordic Prince.

One of them sails every Saturday from Miami, year round. And we'd love to have you aboard.

PIRATE'S COVE – Pirates once sailed from this small harbor of Polperro in Cornwall, England. The village became famous for its smugglers and a museum now commemorates their battles against British revenue agents.

Pirate Legends, Pride Live On In Quiet Cornwall, England

By Neil Morgan

POLPERRO, England – The seaports of Cornwall are mere slits in the cliffs. Sheltered within are the Cornishmen and their boats, each in their own way jaunty and heroic and secretive.

At the Three Pilchards, a quayside pub in Polperro, the local whom I treated to a pint laughed scornfully when I relayed an opinion expressed in a London newspaper that smuggling has all but disappeared from the Cornish coast.

"You have eyes of your own," he said. "Place yourself in a small boat off this coast here any night and see for yourself.

"You don't think these boats are out fishing for shark, do you? It's not far across this Channel to France, you know."

In Polperro, a Smugglers Museum memorializes the daring of coastal smugglers. They provide the prime commerce of these ports in the 18th and early 19th centuries.

"The smuggler is as active and daring today as ever he was in the past," proclaims an exhibit at the Smugglers Museum.

But British officials in London say that while this may be true, the action has moved to big city airports, where hard drugs and diamonds are the game.

The cargoes landed on the Cornish coast where brandy and wine, precious metals and lace, tea, even fisherman's salt from Portugal, brought in cheaper than it could be had at home when the salt tax was introduced in England late in the 18th century.

The smugglers were known as fair-traders, a nicety of phrase that derived as logically as the smugglers from their prior occupation as pirates. That role was tacitly encouraged by the Crown during the Hundred Years' War, when Cornish ports like Polperro supplied the ships to carry Plantagenet armies across the Channel.

Along the way they often found it convenient to board and loot or even sail home a French vessel as booty.

For Cornish pirates gone straight, smuggling seemed fair trade, and the phrase has remained.

The villains of the time were the British Revenue's "preventive men," who sought vainly to control smuggling on the Cornish coast until 1856, when the 'Coastguard Act was passed and the coast watch passed to the more efficient Admiralty.

The epitaph to the preventive men is etched in wood in the Smugglers Museum here: "Never were so few hated by so many."

Instead of following the suggestion of my cynical friend at the Three Pilchards, a proposal that seemed larded with hazard, I made a thoughtful tour of the Smugglers Museum.

It winds down through cellars that once served as stables for the pack ponies used to transport illicit merchandise from the waterfront to hiding places in houses and barns along the coast near here.

I found a reverent tribute to Tom Potter, Polperro's most famed smuggler, who was respected by all.

Potter's boat, a fast lugger called the Lottery, did battle off Looe one day with the preventive men, and one of the Revenue agents was killed.

In the manhunt that followed, Potter and others of the crew came ashore to visit their families at night.

They escaped detection until one crewman, Roger Toms, turned informer and identified Potter as the man who had fired the fatal shot.

In time a detachment of soldiers surprised Potter in his own cottage. Convicted of murder at the Old Bailey, he was hanged, and became forever a hero in Cornwall. To this coast.

Daphne du Maurier, who lives on this coast, writes that at Polperro, "the whole village engaged in smuggling, with small thought of dishonesty or shame. It was a part of life in which everyone joined, fishermen, blacksmith, farmer, and the Excise men themselves. Ships were built for the purpose in yards . . . above the harbour, and one vessel was so successful that she made 500 trips across to the Continent to bring back contraband."

With the tremendous tennis activity in Orange County, there should be more than 30 teams taking part this year from Registerland alone. This would include tandems from the University of Irvine, Newport Beach Tennis Club, John Wayne Tennis Club, Saddleback Tennis Club, Mission Viejo, San Juan Capistrano, San Clemente, El Niguel, Lake Forest, Santiago, Tustin, Friendly Hills, La Habra, Disneyland and many others.

Marquise de Sade's Town Quarters Posh Girls' School

Lawrence campus. But his summers are invariably spent in sunny Lacoste. "I always thought this would make the ideal place for a summer school for artists," says Pfriem, "but it took a long time to put it all together."

Students range in age anywhere from 16 to 60-plus. The older ones have a considerable disadvantage when trying to climb Lacoste's steep, cobbled roads. The majority are affluent, nubile 20-year olds, however, whose wardrobes consist of skimpy cutoff and halters and bikinis.

Probably only half know some French when they arrive. The remainder spend considerable attempting to learn — often in effective if not bizarre ways.

One particularly attractive girl went to the heart of the matter. She became the constant companion of the handsome, 30-ish mayor who spoke very little English. Upgrading her hold on the language, she became the envy of any number of others around her.

The mayor claims the summer visits of the students have "enlivened the intellectual life of Lacoste" which many admit seems to have "stopped with de Sade."

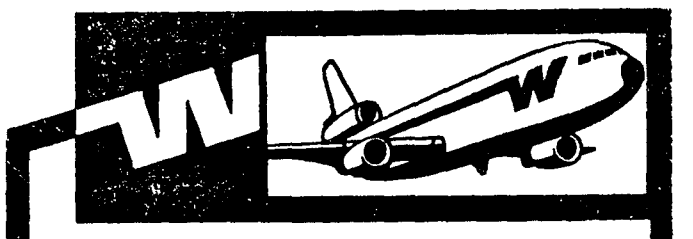
Pfriem's own terrace in the heart of town — and one with the most picturesque view — is the functioning center of the school. From it the artist's eye is teased by the crenellations of the chateau as well as the tile roofs and spires of nearby Bonnieux.

Adjoining studios are set up for a variety of art classes and the terraces provide space for models to pose, for visiting gurus to lecture and for an occasional student injured in Solex (motor bike) accidents to convalesce.

When life in the tiny town palls, there are excursions to surrounding towns, artists' studios, historic chapels for Gregorian chants and the local pizzeria, a small restaurant-motel carved out of the side of an old quarry.

Yet all the roads lead to the marquis' crumbling chateau. One is reminded of his dismay when he was incarcerated in a mental institution toward the end of his life. He wrote his notary, "what has happened to my poor castle? And to my park?"

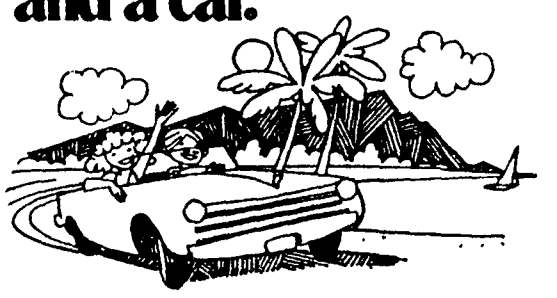
"It wasn't demolished during the revolution," says M. Andre Bouer, the present owner in charge of renovation. "It was ransacked then, of furniture, paintings, tapestries, anything worth taking. But it wasn't until later in the 19th century that the farmers who owned it tore it up, mostly for firewood."



M. Bouer would like to see it restored so that it can become a place for free study for students of history and architecture.

Since both chateau and town are official French historical monuments, perhaps Bouer's dream, like Pfreim's, will eventually come true, although de Sade's remaining relatives in the area "would like his name effaced from the earth."

Other than the Sarah Lawrence students. Bouer has the help of a group of international students who work for two weeks at a time through the auspices of the Franco-American Committee for Educational Travel and Studies (FACETS).



They live in Lacoste's former jail, spend long, grueling days digging and carting heavy stones in the scorching sun. At night the music from their harmonicas and guitars floats through the sensuous air as an occasional seance is held in the shadow of the chateau under a full moon.

Although an unusual number of students know little about the marquis or his life, a visit to the town sparks the idea that one cannot live here long without finding out something about him or his ominous influence on Lacoste.

TRIP OF THE WEEK

Palm Spring - Where The Action Is

Each year Palm Springs assumes the proportions of a three ring circus as January and February are the best of the high season here.

This trip of the week is more of a calendar of events for those who might want to spend some time at the spa, or for those who need advance notice. Perhaps a winter vacation at Palm Springs is convenient. But make reservations early — everyone heads that way at this time of year.

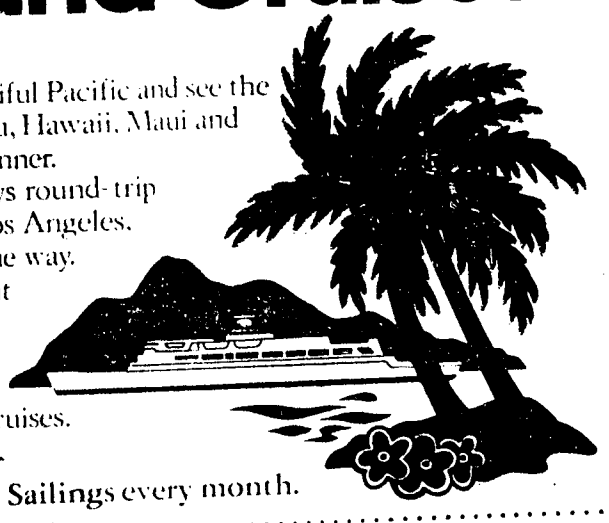
First major and colorful event, provided there is snow, are the sled dog races atop Mt. San Jacinto. Dates are Jan. 15-16 and 22-23, and more than 20 top dog teams compete, many of Orange County. Check with the Palm Springs Aerial tramway folks first, though. They're in the book. Call long-distance information operation for Palm Springs.

Each year Palm Springs stages its hunted Police Rodeo and Parade, which procession is always headed by film star, usually a local resident during the season. The parade will be held this year on Jan. 29 and the rodeo Jan. 29-30.

January will be hardly over before the famous and 18th annual Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic will be held. Dates are Feb. 9-13. The proximity of these two events makes Palm Springs look ideal for a winter vacation.

But the area is within two hours driving distance of almost any Orange County location, and may be reached via Highway 60 and Interstate 10 from Riverside to the Palm Springs cutoff, Highway 111.

Lake Cahuilla in Riverside County's newest park, features fishing, boating, swimming, picknicking areas with barbecues and tables and a concession stand. The lake is stocked by the fish and game people, and a license is required. Non-powered boats only are allowed on the lake. The park and lake are within easy driving distance of Palm Springs in Indio, south of Highway 111 on Jefferson Street. If staying in the area for a weekend, try stopping off at the lake for a quick look. Hours are open daily from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. and admission is 50 cents per car. Fishing is $1 for adults, 50 cents for kids.



Also in the area is Desert Hot Springs with its variety of hot mineral pools and baths, several major date farms (Shields, and Sniff's, both on Highway 111 in Indio) the famed Cabot's Indian Pueblo in Desert Hot Springs (adm. $1 for adults, children 5-16, 50 cents), and the Moorten Botanical Gardens, 1701 S. Palm Canyon Dr.

The Palm Springs Desert Museum, 101 Museum, Palm Springs, is open September through June. Admission $1, but children, members and students are free. The museum has a 360 acres park called the Living Desert Preserve out in the Colorado Desert.

There are three and a half miles of guided desert trails, rare Big Horn Sheep can be seen in an adjacent enclosed compound. The preserve is nine miles from the center of Palm Springs at 47-900 Portola Ave., Take Highway 111 to Palm Desert, Portola is the third stop light coming from Palm Springs. Turn right on Portola, go about 1 1/2 miles and the preserve is on the left. Adults pay $1 for admission, but children under high school age are free if accompanied by an adult.

In the preserve are gardens, a palm oasis and a bird display.

Hawaii 4-Island Cruises.

Sail across the beautiful Pacific and see the friendly islands of Oahu, Hawaii, Maui and Kauai in the grand manner.

WALTER SCOTT'S
Personality Parade

Want the facts? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Want informed opinion? Write Walter Scott, Parade, 733 3rd Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. Is there any possibility that Gerald Ford will run for the U.S. Senate? Have any former U.S. Presidents run for legislative office?—C.B. Branch, Alexandria, Va.

A. Ford will retire to write his memoirs, play golf, take an active role in the Republican party, possibly accept a college presidency if it is offered. John Quincy Adams, the only President's son to also become President, returned at age 65 to serve in the House of Representatives. John Tyler, the first U.S. Vice President to ascend to the office of President through the death of the Chief Executive (William Henry Harrison), was elected on Nov. 7, 1861, to the House of Representatives of the Confederate Congress. In 1872 former President Andrew Johnson ran for the U.S. Senate from Tennessee but was defeated. In 1874, however, he ran again and won, the only former President to become a U.S. Senator. He died a few months after serving in the Senate.

ORSON WELLES

Q. Is Orson Welles incurably fat, or why won't he reduce at one of the noted hospital-run "fatty clinics"? Does he wear those ugly outfits to hide his obesity?—J. J. Horton, Heath Springs, S.C.

A. Welles has been obese for decades and sees no reason to change. The clothes he wears permit him to maneuver.

Q. What's the nation's biggest industrial corporation? — Roberta Graham, Denver, Colo.

A. American Telephone and Telegraph Corporation (AT&T) is worth $80.2 billion, more than any other corporation in the world. It employs 940,000 people, has 3 million shareholders, comprises 23 operating phone companies in addition to Western Electric Co. and Bell Telephone Laboratories.

Q. When Lady Bird Johnson contributed $1000 to the reelection campaign of Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, how did she list her occupation—as housewife?—R.L., Ft. Worth, Tex.

A. According to the Federal Election Commission, she listed her occupation as "rancher."

Q. Has Harold Wilson, former Prime Minister of Great Britain, ever described Idi Amin, President of Uganda, as "a demented, syphilitic nut"?—N. Rich, Lawrence, Kan.

A. Not exactly. In a television interview, Wilson once described Amin as "a nutter," an English colloquialism meaning mentally unstable.

"MISS LILLIAN" CARTER HUGS SON JIMMY

Q. Did President-elect Jimmy Carter's mother, "Miss Lillian," ever work for Joseph P. Kennedy, father of President John F. Kennedy?—Lee Brown, Dallas.

A. Mrs. Lillian Carter never worked for Joseph P. Kennedy.

Q. What disposition has been made of Robert Waterfield Jr.—the son of actress Jane Russell—who was charged with manslaughter?—L. V. L., Chicago.

A. Robert "Bucky" Waterfield, 20, adopted son of Jane Russell and football quarterback Robert Waterfield, was convicted some weeks ago of killing 26-year-old Mexican farm laborer Oscar Hernandez, who was dancing in a bar in Santa Barbara County, Cal. Waterfield, one of Miss Russell's three adopted children, claimed he had downed 24 cans of beer before firing off seven shots from his gun and could not remember the incident. Before sentencing him on a manslaughter charge, the judge in Santa Maria, Cal., hearing the case said that young Waterfield "appears to have a serious alcoholic drinking problem." Young Robert has been ordered to undergo three months of psychiatric observation before receiving a sentence.

Q. When Philip Agee, the former CIA spy, worked for the U.S. government in South America, did he use his real name or a cover name?—H. T., Dallas.

A. Agee worked for the CIA in South America under the cover name Jeremy S. Hodapp.

Q. Cindy Breakspeare, the 21-year-old girl from Jamaica who won the Miss World beauty contest—is it true that she is a masseuse in a Kingston bathhouse and that she lives with a guy who has fathered nine children by seven different mothers?—L.T., Key West, Fla.

A. Before she won the Miss World beauty contest, Cindy Breakspeare, 21, ran a health club in Kingston, Jamaica, where she went steadily with Bob Marley, a musician she describes as "just one of my boyfriends." Marley, 29, son of a British army captain and a Jamaican mother, is separated from his wife Rita, 29, has nine children by seven different women.

Q. Did Winston Churchill, the late Prime Minister of Great Britain, ever declare bankruptcy?—Dana Fox, Seattle, Wash.

A. Churchill was about to declare personal bankruptcy in 1938, had made preliminary arrangements to sell his home, Chartwell, to pay off $150,000 in debts. He was saved by Sir Henry Strakosch (1871-1943), an Austrian-born South African gold magnate who became a British subject in 1907. Through the intervention of Brendan Bracken, Churchill's secretary, Sir Henry took over Churchill's debts, managed his investments, let Churchill keep Chartwell, which he had purchased in 1922 for 5000 pounds.

Q. Francis Gary Powers, the spy flier who was shot down over Russia in 1960, thus breaking up the Eisenhower-Khrushchev summit meeting—is he still alive and well?—B. J. Jenkins, Ft. Jackson, S.C.

A. Powers is a helicopter pilot for KNBC-TV in Los Angeles. After Powers was shot down over the Soviet Union, he was tried in Moscow, sentenced to jail for 10 years but released after two in exchange for a Soviet spy we had captured in Brooklyn, N.Y.

Margaret Truman Daniel and husband Clifton Daniel, associate editor of The New York Times. They have four sons, who range in age from 19 to 10. She has four books, too; her new one is "Women of Courage."

Margaret Truman Daniel— An Independent Lady From Independence

by Lloyd Shearer

LOS ANGELES.

President Harry Truman's only child, Margaret Truman Daniel, 52, breezed through here the other week, plugging her new book, Women of Courage.

It is a collection of profiles of a dozen American women—some famous, others unknown, but all with guts and gumption.

"The book took me two years," she explained, "and it shouldn't have taken so long, but I had to commute between Washington, D.C., and New York City to get the research done with Alice and Tom Fleming," who helped organize the book.

Mrs. Daniel is the wife of Clifton Daniel, former Washington, D.C., bureau chief for The New York Times, who was recently transferred back to New York and will retire from The Times this September. She is also the mother of four sons: Clifton Truman, 19; William Wallace, 17; Harrison Gate, 13, and Thomas Washington, 10. Clifton works for the CBS news department "and simply loves it." William and Harrison attend prep school. And Thomas attends a boy's school in New York.

None of Mrs. Daniel's children has ever attended a public school, "and I'd rather not invade their privacy by telling you where they go," she says. "Our oldest son went to college for a year but then took a year off to work for CBS. He lives with us in New York [a Park Avenue triplex]."

Women of Courage is Mrs. Daniel's fourth book. "I wrote this one because my publisher thought it was a good idea, my agent thought it was a good idea, and I thought it was a good idea," she explains. "Now I'm busy promoting it. You just can't write a book nowadays without going out and selling it, too."

Mrs. Daniel is a "soft-seller." She claims to be stubborn and opinionated ("much more opinionated than my father was"). But she refuses to confirm or deny that she voted for Gerald Ford.

"I'm a private citizen," she declared. "I've got a right to vote, and nobody needs to know how. It's just sort of a principle with me not to tell.

"What I will say is that I'm always optimistic about our system of government. It was really put to the test with Watergate—and it works. We came through. I think it was Chief Justice Burger who said, after he had sworn in Mr. Ford, 'Well, now we know the system works.'"

Margaret Truman—who delayed marriage and subsequent motherhood until she was 32—lived in the White House for seven years, a time she once regarded as a "mild form of imprisonment."

'The Great White Jail'

"I used to call it 'The Great White Jail,'" she recalled, "but it's much more of a jail now than it was then [1945-52]. For example, no Secret Service agent accompanied me when I went out on a date. My gentleman friend would merely drive up the White House roadway to the front door, park his car and come in. He'd walk through the entrance, take the elevator up to the second floor and just collect me.

"And when I attended George Washington University I had no Secret Service protection, either. As a matter of fact, there was very little gasoline during the war, and I rode the bus to school for two and a half years. Later on I got a limousine to go to college in, and I thought that was beautiful. But while I was on campus I was just another student. No Secret Service protection—except one time.

"Charlie Ross, who was my father's press secretary, decided they wanted pictures of Margaret Truman going to school. 'Let's do it and get it over with,' Charlie suggested. So I agreed. But one of my professors was kind of fussed about the whole thing. He didn't like it very much, having photographers in his class. He was Dr. Sheppard and he taught English literature and he was a wonderful teacher. He had a 75th birthday—or maybe it was his 70th—not too long ago, and I wrote him a note. Anyway, there was one picture of me sitting in class listening to him. And it was circulated everywhere. Soon he started getting letters from students he hadn't heard from for 20 or 30 years."

Margaret Truman majored in history when she attended college, "because my dad was a history buff, and he really taught me about 50 percent of all the history I learned—at least 50 percent," she says. "He had the most fantastic knowledge of history of any man I've ever met." And that includes her husband of 20 years, Clifton Daniel—from Zebulon, N.C., once with the Associated Press, and a very widely traveled and knowledgeable man, indeed.

Margaret Truman, who went to Washington at age 9 and lived there off and on for 21 years, abandoned a concert singing career in the 1950's and conducted her own radio show, Authors in the News, for seven years. She remembers those years fondly and says, "I'd like to have my own show again, a general TV interview show. I know I'm asking for trouble, because it's a lot more work than radio. But I wouldn't mind that. There's so much you can do with videotape nowadays. You can tape so far ahead. And I really have enough time to do it."

Mrs. Daniel has a cleaning lady who comes in twice a week and a housekeeper who's a good cook. "And, besides, Clifton is a very good cook, and I have a theory about cooking which holds that any idiot who can read can cook. There are some people who cook much better than others—like my husband, who is not an idiot by any means, and Craig Claiborne and Jim Beard, who are superb cooks. But they love it. Clifton likes to cook on a weekend after I get all the ingredients together."

No domestic scientist

Margaret Truman Daniel has never been content with being "only a housewife and mother."

"I remember one time," she narrates, "when I met Winston Churchill and Jan Christiaan Smuts, the great statesman from South Africa. Mr. Smuts was very blue-eyed and funny and said to me, 'What are you studying in college?' And I answered, 'History and English literature.' And he said, 'No domestic science?' And I said, 'Domestic science? What on earth is that?' And he said, 'Shouldn't you learn to become a mother, a wife and how to cook and take care of a house?' And I promptly answered, 'No, sir. That's the last thing I want to do.' In those days I didn't get autographs from famous people often, but I wanted his. So he wrote on his placecard 'To the future domestic scientist' and signed it."

'Not a blind voter'

Although Mrs. Daniel is a registered Democrat, she says, "I'm not a blind voter. From time to time I've voted for a Republican." Nelson Rockefeller is one. New York Sen. Jacob Javits is another. Mrs. Daniel was also happy to note how both Jimmy Carter and Gerald Ford invoked her father's name, record and reputation for integrity in their Presidential campaigns. Of the Truman renaissance, she says, "I've thought about it quite a lot, and frankly I haven't been able to decide. My dad died the day after Christmas in 1972, but I'm glad he lived long enough to see a reassessment of his accomplishments. One day he read a very nice editorial about himself in the Kansas City Star. And I said, 'Did you see that editorial?'

A family gathering in Bermuda in 1961: Former President Harry Truman and wife Bess pay lap service to grandsons Clifton and William, then 4 and 2, while parents Margaret Truman Daniel and Clifton Daniel proudly look on.

And he responded with, 'I must have done something wrong!' The Star never was for him."

Mrs. Daniel believes that "it's partly nostalgia which accounts for the reexamination of the Truman years. History takes care of a lot of things."

One memory she is not particularly nostalgic about concerns the time her father said he'd rather have grandchildren than a prima donna in the family. "I was on a concert tour," she recalls, "and I read that quotation in the newspaper. I really hit the roof. I think Dad despaired of ever having any grandchildren. But he finally got some. Do you know the story of how he found out about his first grandson?

"My husband called him in Independence when the oldest one was born. Mother had gone to the hairdresser, but Dad didn't even call her there. He waited until she came home. When she came up the walk, he said, 'Ah! Margaret's just had a boy.' Very calmly like that. And she said, 'What! Don't just stand there. Go and call and get train tickets. We're going to New York immediately.'

"Dad was very calm. He got the tickets, and they were on the train that night or the next day. They visited me at Doctors Hospital, and Dad went in to see his oldest grandson. And this is a very funny picture. He was surrounded by reporters, and the father of the baby is out on the edge, cropped out of the photos. The Daily News took a picture of Dad holding this impromptu press conference about his grandson, and his son-in-law is way outside of this circle. All Clifton wanted to do was take his father-in-law back to the hotel. But he couldn't get him to leave because Dad wanted to talk about his grandson. Dad said his grandson had red hair. He never had red hair. He had masses of black hair. So much black hair that I said, 'Take him back. He can't be mine.'"

President Gerald R. Ford, Margaret Truman Daniel and actor James Whitmore chat at Ford's Theater in Washington following a performance of "Give 'em Hell, Harry!" in which Whitmore played the late salty-tongued President.

Bess still checks up

Harry Truman was 73 when his first grandchild was born. He died at age 88. His wife Bess, 91, still resides in Independence, Mo., where she suffers from chronic bursitis but, according to her daughter, "is just as sharp as she ever was and just as stubborn and checks up on me regularly as if I were 10 years old."

Mrs. Bess Truman has been under the protection of the Secret Service since the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in 1963. Until then there was no Secret Service protection for any former U.S. President or First Lady.

She still refuses to be interviewed by newspersons, however, a policy she has maintained ever since 1945.

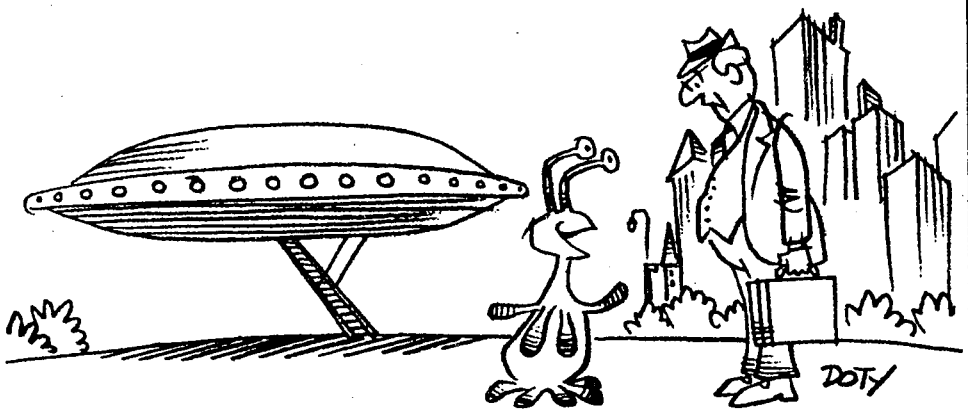
Her daughter's explanation is: "Mother followed Mrs. Roosevelt into the White House, and that was a pretty hard act to follow. She had no intention of trying to pick up where Mrs. Roosevelt left off. In fact, Mrs. Roosevelt never stopped. She kept on. She was called the First Lady of the World before she died, which she deserved.

"But my mother felt very strongly that she should make a home. Although she wouldn't be interviewed and would not make speeches, she had to shake thousands of hands and entertain thousands of people, which she did very politely and very nicely.

'Wicked sense of humor'

"She still won't give interviews because she doesn't like the idea of answering questions about her personal life. She says that's her business and nobody else's. The truth is she has a wicked sense of humor about everything. But she's always been a lady, although I'm afraid she hasn't been able to instill too much of that in me."

Margaret Truman Daniel is not only a lady but a gentle, diplomatic one with a fierce loyalty to the memory of her father, who is now being lionized as the U.S. President responsible for some of the best years of our lives.



Observations™

Perspective on the World. That's what Anthony Quinn has, thanks to his extensive travels. He'll share his perspective with you as he narrates the "Mobil Showcase" TV series, Ten Who Dared, about some of history's most remarkable explorers. And the on-location filming of much of the action will transport you from Columbus's Spain to the South Pole, where Roald Amundsen and four companions survived a frozen ordeal to win a place in history.

Some Victorian! Mary Kingsley wasn't your typical Victorian Englishwoman. When both her parents died after she had spent her first 30 years caring for her invalid mother, Miss Kingsley decided to carry on her father's work in natural history. Her travels among the Fang people of West Africa in 1893 make for an amazing adventure. But her journey was a short one compared with the 999 arduous days that newspaper reporter Henry Morton Stanley spent exploring the length of the Congo River.

The West. The Sierras and the deserts of North America provide the locale for the story of Jedediah Smith. In 1826 Smith, a fur trapper, became the first white man to cross the frontier from Utah to California. A very different locale—the lush and deadly Venezuelan jungle—is the setting for the adventures of Alexander von Humboldt, who became known as the father of geography. And in the Peruvian Andes, the greed of Francisco Pizarro destroys the Inca civilization.

"COULD YOU DIRECT ME TO THE EXPLORERS CLUB?"

Around the globe. The other explorers depicted in the series are: Captain James Cook, the mariner who charted vast areas of the South Pacific; Robert Burke and William Wills, whose crossing of Australia has been called "the most disastrous success" in exploration history; and Charles Doughty, the first Christian Englishman to live among the Bedouins without denying his faith.

Enriching your life. These ten hour-long documentary dramas will shrink your world and bring history into your living room. They're entertainment—and education—for the whole family. Check your local TV listings for the first episode, Christopher Columbus, which will be shown on most stations later this week. And watch for this symbol, just as a reminder.

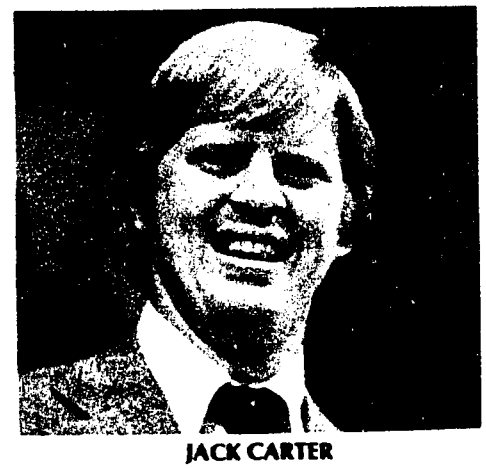
Keeping Up... With Youth

by Pamela Swift

Read and Write

If you're wondering what sort of career you should carve out for yourself, send for a free copy of "Jobs in 1985," which the Department of Labor will issue in February. Send a postcard to: Consumer Information Center, Dept. 529E, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.



The booklet points out that the supply of college graduates will probably exceed the demand through the mid-1980's. Thus, some will find themselves overqualified and dissatisfied with the jobs they get.

According to the Labor Department, persons with vocational training in the crafts may be in greater demand than those with college degrees. Employers may hesitate to hire college grads as laborers because of the risk of job dissatisfaction. Moreover, college grads in the 1980's may face increasing competition for para-professional and technical jobs. And if you plan to become a teacher, think twice. In the 1980's there will be more teachers than openings.

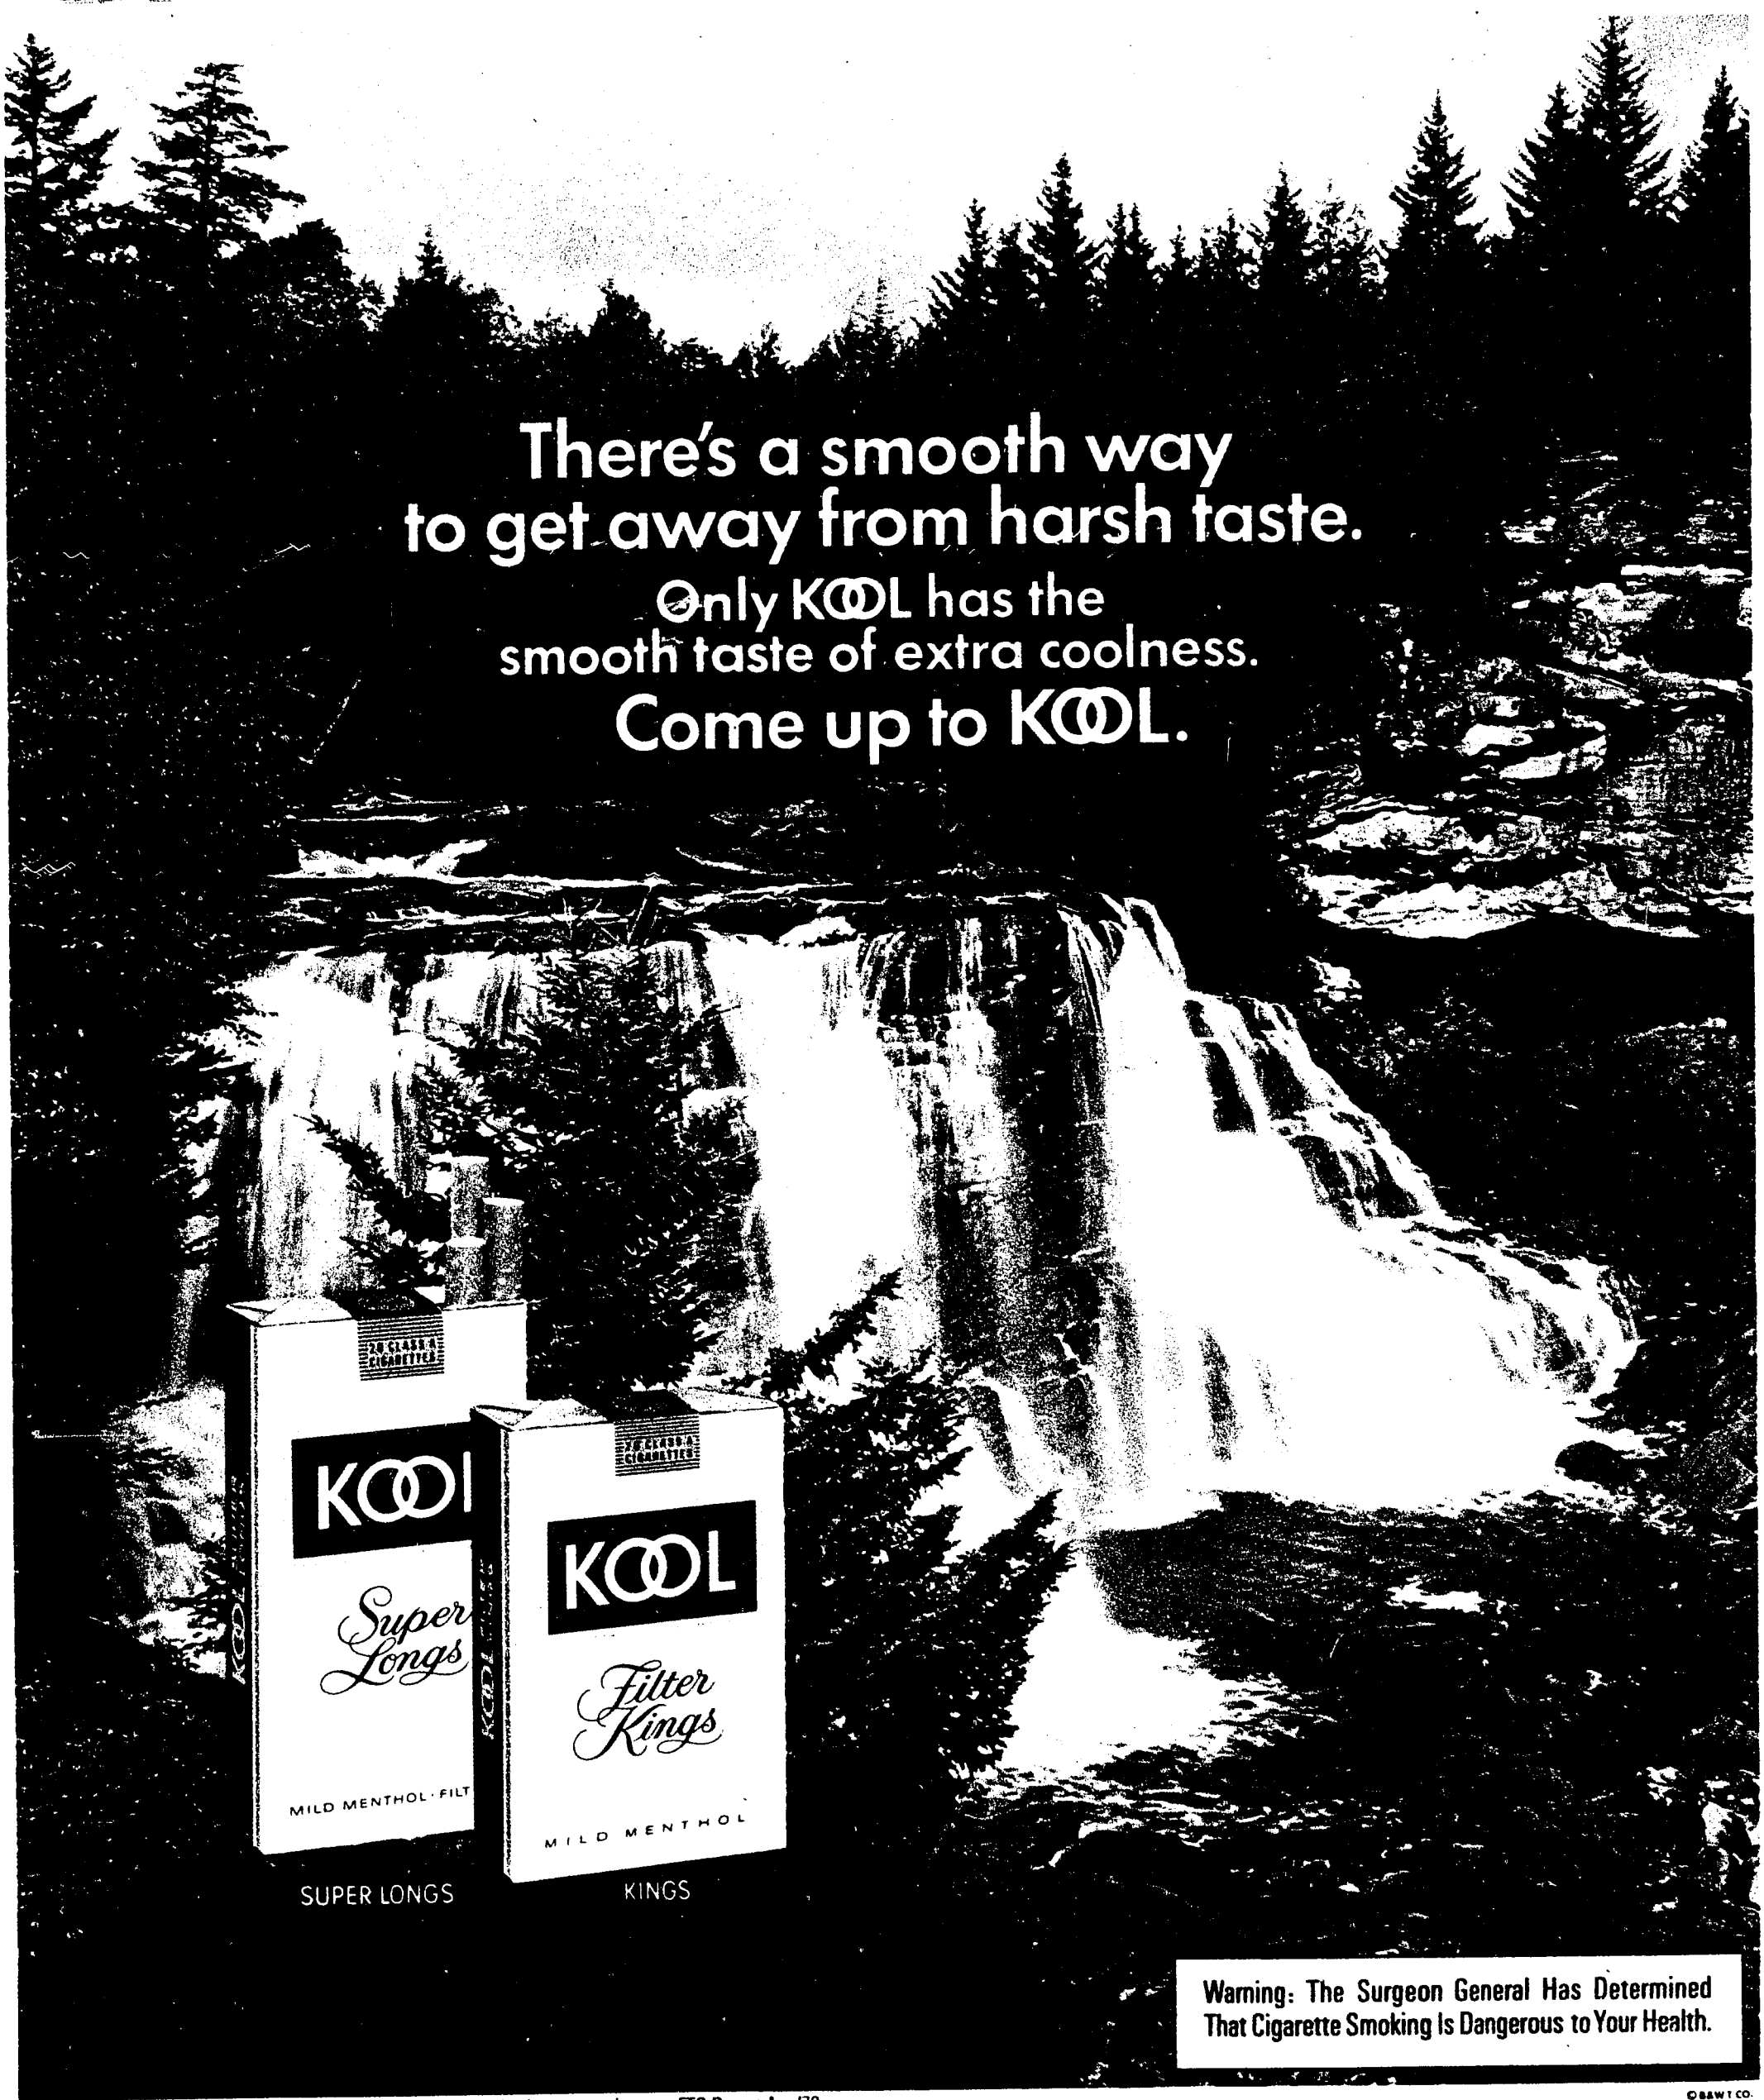
What looks good on the job front? There will be a need for social workers, merchandisers, retail buyers, salespeople and computer programmers. Employment should be good as computer use expands in the health and education fields.

JACK FORD

JACK CARTER

Marijuana Update

The 1976 Presidential campaign was a first in a unique way.

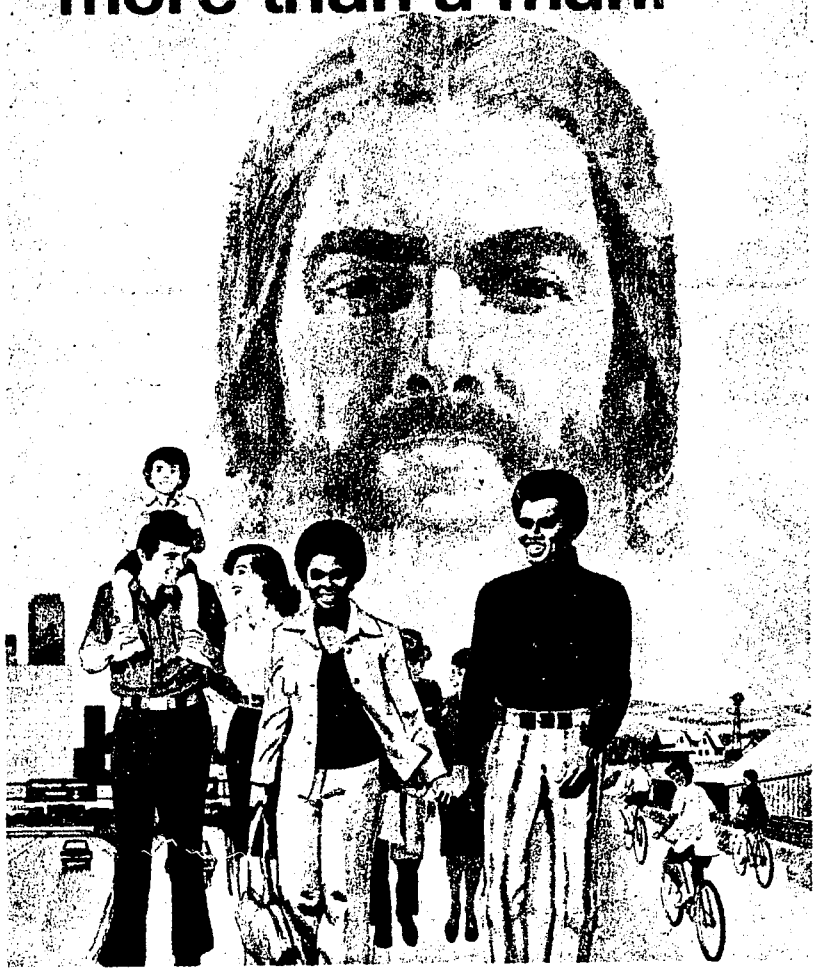


Both Ford and Carter shared something with millions of American parents: their children had smoked pot.

Michael Ford, 26; Jack Ford, 24; Jack Carter, 29; Chip Carter, 26, and Jeff Carter, 24, all admitted to having sampled marijuana. Each said he no longer smokes the stuff. Jimmy Carter, of course, is on the record as favoring the decriminalization of marijuana.

The simple truth is that marijuana is no longer the bugaboo it once was. Even Egil Krogh—the straight arrow who was Nixon's architect for "Operation Intercept," the ill-fated marijuana blockade of the U.S.-Mexican border—testified some weeks ago before the Senate Permanent Investigations Subcommittee: "It is wrong to jail young people for possessing pot." He now supports marijuana decriminalization.

Many localities are changing their attitudes and enforcement priorities concerning pot. Peter Bensinger, chief of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration, declares that marijuana is no longer a federal priority. The Feds are more interested in stopping the flow of heroin across the border. Marijuana, however, is far from being legal.



Last year, 416,000 Americans were arrested for marijuana-related offenses. Seven out of 10 drug arrests are still for marijuana. But many judges are now assessing small fines for possession of limited amounts.

Jesus Christ, more than a man.

Like any man, Jesus Christ ate and slept. But he did other things beyond man's power. Like walking on water. Like raising the dead to life.

In view of this, it seems strange that some would say or sing, "He is only a man." Given the evidence, one ought wonder at least whether he was in fact God as he claimed.

If Christ is indeed God, wouldn't that imply that he is more than a remembered hero or teacher? Wouldn't that imply that in some way he is alive, present and active in today's world? If so, could one afford to ignore him? Or have the fuzziest notions about him? Is your present unhappiness perhaps the result of never really coming to grips with the Jesus-God question and its meaning in your life?

These are important questions. They will not go away. Somehow, they have to be answered. To help you with the answers, we would like to send you a free booklet: "Savior of All Mankind." We think you will find it helpful. Write today. No one will call.

It's not just a good idea. It's the law.

Ad Council

Physicians and patients are both to blame for the widespread misuse of prescription drugs. Patients are often confused by directions and afraid to question doctors.

Know Your Medications, Stop Taking Risks!

by Lawrence Galton

In a Midwestern city, a 10-year-old boy suffers heart damage from rheumatic fever—all because of failure to take a prescribed antibiotic long enough during an acute strep throat to knock out the infection completely and prevent onslaught on the heart.

In a town in upper New York State, a man is admitted to a hospital because of severe nosebleeds and vomiting of blood after taking excessive amounts of a prescribed anticoagulant drug needed to thin his blood and help prevent clots.

On the West Coast, a woman with bronchial asthma is rushed to a hospital with severe heart palpitations. Physicians are puzzled until they discover she used, at too frequent intervals, a prescribed spray for asthma.

These are just a few cases that illustrate a problem that lately has become of urgent concern: the failure of great numbers of people to use drugs properly, to use them at the right times and in the right amounts or even to use them at all, to understand their effects and possible dangers of improper use.

And the problem is by no means solely one of patient fault.

POOR PRESCRIBING PRACTICES. At the University of Rochester Medical Center, investigators in a pilot study interviewed outpatients and found 51 percent not to be complying with written prescriptions. Half of these said they simply did not understand the instructions given for their use.

The investigators then did an extensive study which showed graphically how the poor prescribing practices of physicians can confuse patients.

Consider the label on a bottle of prescription pills that reads, "Take three times a day, with meals."

The question is: before each meal, in the middle of or after each meal?

It can make a difference. Some medicines are best taken on a full stomach to minimize irritation, others on an empty stomach to help the body absorb them.

Not with meals

Penicillin G, for example, is one drug that should be taken on an empty stomach for optimal absorption. Yet the investigators found that 89.5 percent of patients who had received a prescription for penicillin G calling for use three times a day and at bedtime interpreted that to mean with meals and at bedtime.

Looking into how patients interpreted instructions on nine other prescription labels, the investigators found "a surprisingly wide range of interpretations, a high frequency of misinterpretations, and a significant potential for failure or illness as a consequence of mistaken interpretation."

Isolated situation? Hardly. In recent years, many studies have indicated a high rate of noncompliance or faulty compliance because of poor prescription writing or failure of communication between doctor and patient.

Commonly, physicians have blamed the patients. In one study, 67 percent of physicians tied noncompliance to the "uncooperative personality of patients." Many others cited inability to understand recommendations.

Docs didn't tell

But a recent study emphasizes the doctor's role. Directed by Dr. Barbara S. Hulka of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, it covered 357 patients being treated by 46 physicians in private practice in Fort Wayne, Ind. The patients had either diabetes or congestive heart failure—conditions requiring continued drug treatment, sometimes with more than one drug.

The study showed patients failing to take 18 to 19 percent of the drugs prescribed, taking 19 to 20 percent more drugs than the doctors had ordered, and timing drugs incorrectly in 17 percent of cases.

Dr. Hulka and her co-workers found nothing about the patients—social class, educational background, or other characteristics—to account for the errors. And, significantly, they found that "when patients were informed as to what was expected of them, their behaviors conformed to that expectation more than 85 percent of the time."

When the Hulka study was published in the American Journal of Public Health, an accompanying editorial emphasized that "to characterize the patient as the willful culprit—as 'noncompliant' or worse, a 'drug defaulter' —is to ignore the responsibility of the practitioner."

A CAUSE OF NEEDLESS SURGERY. Just a few months ago, Dr. Ezra A. Amsterdam of the University of California, Davis, reported on a check of 115 patients with angina pectoris, the chest pain associated with heart disease. All 115 had been considered refractory to medical treatment and had been referred for special tests as candidates for major heart surgery.

An ounce of prevention

The check revealed a startling fact. Nitroglycerin is a highly effective and safe drug that, when used properly, not only can stop angina attacks when they occur, but often can prevent them from occurring.

Yet the study showed that only 25 percent of the patients had ever been told by their physicians about the prophylactic use of nitroglycerin. "Far fewer angina patients," Dr. Amsterdam says, "would be considered refractory if given appropriate medical therapy."

Dr. Peter M. Yurchak of Harvard Medical School agrees emphatically, observing that medical treatment of angina is "effective if it's optimal, but most patients don't receive optimal treatment. Unless internists and cardiologists are willing to spend the time on optimal treatment, then they pass the baton to their surgical friends."

Heartburn is a common affliction—in some cases, a severe one—as large amounts of acid back up from the stomach into the esophagus, burning tissues there. Antacids and positional treatment are mainstays of therapy.

But Dr. Marvin M. Schuster of Johns Hopkins School of Medicine, Baltimore, reports that too often antacids and positional treatment are not given an adequate trial, and "the patient is then called nonresponsive and is referred to a surgeon or gastroenterologist."

Posture counts

Says Schuster: "Positional therapy is often not explained clearly enough. Most intelligent patients will cooperate and improve if they understand that their shoulders should be elevated 30 degrees [in bed] and why. Simply telling the patient to use two pillows may be taken to mean two pillows behind the neck, which only aggravates the reflux [of acid]."

10 IMPORTANT HEALTH DISCOVERIES

RECENTLY REPORTED IN PREVENTION MAGAZINE

Take your choice of any three reports—free—with your money-saving trial subscription.

1. MIRACLE MINERAL. How can one common mineral—magnesium—help protect against ailments as different as heart disease, nervousness, weakness, and allergies? The answer—just discovered—is both surprising and simple.

2. NEW HOPE FOR EMPHYSEMA VICTIMS. The astonishing report of an M.D. whose five-year experiment with twelve emphysema patients—many of them near death—was remarkably successful.

3. DEPRESSED? SLEEPLESS? Read about Tryptophan, a new natural weapon against these common problems. This harmless amino acid, or protein building block, has been shown to be as effective as drugs, while producing none of the drug side effects.

4. ADVICE FROM A 76-YEAR-OLD DOCTOR. This vigorous Chicago physician, a Professor in Obstetrics and Gynecology, practices "food pharmacology"—his own highly successful approach to achieving strength and tranquillity.

5. THE "HONEST CARBOHYDRATES" DIET. Many doctors aren't yet aware of the new diet plan that simultaneously reduces weight, blood fats, insulin requirements, and the complications of diabetes. But one doctor at a Philadelphia medical college says, "The evidence supporting this diet is indisputable."

6. HELP FOR PAINFUL KNEES. If running, hiking, or even walking sets your knees on fire, chances are that your trouble isn't in those joints at all. A podiatrist reveals the truth—and a recommended treatment.

7. NEW HEART ATTACK PROTECTION? Rhode Island researchers have uncovered dramatic evidence that vitamin E may significantly reduce "platelet aggregation"—the clumping together of tiny bodies in the blood that causes strokes.

8. RELIEF FOR KIDNEY STONES. Four Paris researchers have reported—with what they term "absolute certainty"—new findings that indicate magnesium is a safe, "totally effective" means of preventing or controlling the excruciatingly painful condition of kidney stones.

9. VITAMIN E AND MENOPAUSE. In a special survey, over 2,000 women confirmed medical research indicating that vitamin E relieves menopausal problems. This fascinating report from a biochemist details the personal experiences of some of these women.

10. ZINC FOR ULCERS. A new hospital study shows that zinc—a mineral known to be important for healthy skin—also helps to heal (and possibly prevent) common stomach ulcers.

These days, how healthy you are—Can depend on how much you know about the discoveries being made every day on the frontiers of medical science.

That's a major reason why Prevention is the most widely-read health magazine in America. Its 1,700,000 subscribers know that they will find in Prevention, new information the general reader can get nowhere else.

It was Prevention that warned about artificial sweeteners in 1952—eighteen years before the government ban. Prevention condemned DDT two decades ago. And Prevention alerted readers to the dangers of aerosol sprays in 1958—long before the current warnings sounded by health authorities.

Prevention* recognizes, of course, that you can't prevent all disease. And when you're sick, you'll see a doctor. But if you can get health-protecting facts beforehand—think how much better off you may be!

That's why we invite you to subscribe to Prevention at the low introductory rate of $5.85 for 12 monthly issues—with the guaranteed, no-risk privileges described in the coupon.

Discover Prevention. In its idea-packed pages, you may well discover your own way to a healthier, happier, longer life!

A Limited Edition Collection.
Available by Advance Subscription Only.
Limit: One subscription per person.
Subscriptions close: February 22, 1977.

The complete collection honoring The Presidents of the United States will be handsomely displayed in a luxurious album provided to collectors at no additional cost.

From the time of George Washington, the Presidency of the United States has been a place for a brave heart and a strong spirit. An office of awesome responsibility. For the President is defender of the Constitution and guardian of the ideals first proclaimed in the Declaration of Independence.

The thirty-seven men who have shouldered this burden have been ordinary people, called by their countrymen to be shapers of America's destiny. Each the hope of future generations. The holder of what has become the most powerful office on earth.

Some strong and truly titans of their times, some weak; some movers of history, others swept by its tide; their story — the history of the Presidency — is the heritage of every American.

An official commemorative collection.

Now, on the eve of the inaugural of the first President of America's third century as a Nation, it is fitting for us to remember — and to honor — those men who, far surpassing even the most optimistic dreams of our Founding Fathers, have made the White House the focus of our history. The citadel of our freedom. The living symbol of America to us and to all the world.

To do so, in a lasting and significant way, The White House Historical Association — dedicated to enhancing every citizen's appreciation of the White House — has authorized the renowned Fleetwood Company to issue a collection of thirty-eight engraved Philatelic Commemorative Covers individually honoring all of The Presidents of the United States.

This is the first and only such collection ever to be authorized by the White House Historical Association and will be extraordinary in every respect.

A dignified and worthy tribute.

Historically accurate to the smallest detail, each Cover will focus on one President. Superbly produced on luxurious laid-fiber paper — the traditional paper of our Nation — each will be vividly cacheted with the President's portrait from the Official White House Collection. Masterpieces by such greats as Gilbert Stuart, Rembrandt Peale, Samuel F. B. Morse, they capture each President's character and vision with uncommon sensitivity.

Moreover, they will be handsomely engraved with the Presidents' signatures. Signatures that have been written with firm and determined hands in testament to the aspirations of a whole Nation; in witness to the great turning points of our history. Abraham Lincoln's, which freed the slaves. Thomas Jefferson's, which doubled the Nation's size. Theodore Roosevelt's that busted the trusts. And John F. Kennedy's that set America on course for the moon.

Appropriately, each will be officially issued and postmarked during 1977 on the exact anniversary of the President's birth at the place where he was born. Places now enshrined in our history.

The complete collection will be a dignified and worthy tribute to the lives, the times, and the achievements of our Presidents. From the youngest, John F. Kennedy, to the oldest, William H. Harrison, they are men who have had unshakable faith in America and its future, in its people and in its principles. Men who became part of our proud heritage as The Presidents of the United States.

One single, strictly limited edition.

The Presidents of the United States will be issued in a single, strictly limited edition. And the total number will be forever limited to the exact number of original subscriptions postmarked not later than February 22, 1977, with a limit of one collection per subscriber.

To assure the authenticity of this limited edition, each Cover will bear the imprimatur of the White House Historical Association and the distinctive hallmark of The Fleetwood Company — recognized since 1929 as America's foremost purveyor of Philatelic Commemorative Covers — which has been authorized by the White House Historical Association to produce the complete collection.

Handsome Collector's Album included.

Collectors who take advantage of this opportunity to acquire The Presidents of the United States will also receive, without additional cost, a handsomely bound collector's album. With narrative by historian David C. Whitney — one of America's most prominent authorities on the Presidency — this lavish, over 200-page album will bring each President and his times into vivid perspective. Privately prepared exclusively for individual subscribers to this collection, it will be a truly impressive addition to your library and a superb way of appreciating and protecting this most significant collection.

Convenient plan of acquisition.

Subscribers to The Presidents of the United States will receive issues at the convenient rate of three per month, beginning in late February, 1977, and concluding in January, 1978, with five issues. The original issue price of $2.50 per Cover ($7.50 per month) will be guaranteed for the entire collection. And to ensure the highest standards, each shipment will be delivered, unblemished by addressing, in a protective package. The album, provided at no additional cost, will be shipped in August, 1977.

Subscription Deadline: February 22, 1977.

An Official Collection and one of historic importance to all Americans, The Presidents of the United States is certain to become a highly prized and admired collection in future years. One that will in a real sense be inspiration and pleasure for you to own; and an heirloom your children and their children will appreciate in years to come.

But please remember that there will be only one, limited edition of this collection, and that this is the only time that you will be able to acquire it. To take advantage of this opportunity, postmark your application no later than February 22, 1977. And mail it directly to The Fleetwood Company, 1 Unicover Center, Cheyenne, Wyoming 82008.

What To Do About Feminine Itching

A doctor-tested medication brings prompt temporary relief.

If you suffer from external feminine itching, there is now a creme medication specifically formulated to bring you fast, temporary relief. It's called Vagisil™ Creme Medication and is available without a prescription.

Doctor-tested Vagisil is a gentle, easy-to-apply medication that helps stop external feminine itching and burning almost instantly. Leaves a cooling, protective film to help check bacteria, soothe irritated membranes, and speed natural healing.

Vagisil Creme Medication is delicately scented and greaseless. It's also nonstaining. You'll find Vagisil everywhere that feminine hygiene products are sold. Vagisil

And now, some words about not wearing safety belts.

MEDICATIONS CONTINUED

And Schuster goes on to add: "One pitfall with antacids is that patients are often told to take a tablespoonful three or four times daily before or after meals —at which times the antacid is useless because there is a natural buffer in the stomach during eating. Rather, patients need the antacid an hour or two after eating, when the stomach is empty."

THE DIMENSIONS OF FAILURE. The degree of patient failure to use medicine properly or at all is staggering.

Strep throat infections can cause rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease, both preventable by proper use of penicillin. But studies have found 34 percent of patients not taking it.

PAS is a valuable drug for tuberculosis. But investigators, not relying on what patients reported, checked on urine samples—if the drug is taken, some of it appears in the urine—and found none detectable in the urine of 50 percent of patients.

Some don't take it

Some studies of diabetics have found half or even more making errors in insulin dosage. Oral iron to avoid anemia in pregnancy is effective—but 30 percent of pregnant women don't take it when prescribed. Psychiatric patients—under treatment for depression, anxiety, other conditions—commonly fail to comply. In one study, only 48 percent were using medication at all or as directed.

Most cases of epilepsy can be controlled. But a study of epileptic children showed that only 25 percent had appropriate levels of anticonvulsant medication in their blood.

TWO IMPORTANT REASONS. Recently, Dr. Richard N. Podell and an associate at Columbia College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York, and Overlook Hospital, Summit, N.J., focused on two major reasons for misuse of or failure to use prescribed medications.

One involves unanticipated side effects that can be confusing or frightening—and failure of patients to tell their physicians about the disturbances.

Don't 'act dumb'

Says Dr. Podell: "The patient sometimes does not know that the side effect is related to the medication and he may fear he will offend the physician by complaining. There are many circumstances in which the patient 'acts dumb' before the physician. Our impression is that patient reluctance to express these concerns is especially common when the physician's actions are intimidatingly authoritarian. Obviously, if the physician does not learn about the side effects, there is little he can do to correct them; noncompliance is then likely to result."

A second problem is failure of patients to ask questions. In one study, only 24 percent asked three or more questions about their medication. The fault of the patients? Perhaps to some extent—but, as Dr. Podell points out, "It is not quite this simple. The physicians often subtly discourage patients from asking questions."

Pharmaceutical firms are looking into gimmicks to help children and adults take their medicine properly. One new system called "Memory Dose" puts pills in individual packets labeled with clear, precise instructions for their use.

In this study, in only 19 of 221 instances did a physician even bother to ask a patient if he had any questions. In 13 percent of cases, the physician ignored the patient's first question. "More important," observes Dr. Podell, "many mannerisms signaled the patient that further questions would not be welcome. These included obvious clock-watching, looking toward the waiting room to see how many more patients were there."

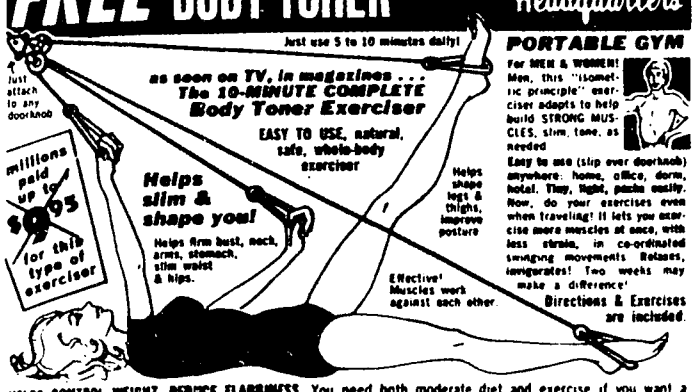
WHAT CAN BE DONE. In the Acute Disease Clinic of Children's Hospital, Buffalo, N.Y., when only 5 percent of patients were found to be complying with a 10-day course of antibiotic treatment for middle ear infection, a program was set up in which hospital pharmacists gave patients' parents complete verbal and written instructions on medication. Labeling was precise and detailed, and parents received a calibrated measure for the medication and a calendar to record doses. These measures raised full compliance tenfold.

Right now, under study by several major pharmaceutical companies as a means of improving compliance of both adult and child patients is a "Memory Dose" dispenser system developed by the Medical Dispenser Co. of Atlantic Highlands, N. J.

The compact dispenser can be loaded in seconds with a blister-packaged cartridge of a premeasured quantity of tablets or capsules. An appropriate date/time regimen is preprinted on each cartridge, and the regimen shows through two adjacent windows on the face of the dispenser. One window indicates when the last dose was taken, the other when the next dose is needed.

Perhaps the growing concern within the medical profession and increasing efforts to educate physicians to recognize and do something constructive about the frequency and dangers of patient noncompliance will bear fruit.

Meantime, what can you do?



It's your body

You can recognize that, whenever you have a health problem, the more you know the better—about the problem itself, about the reason for any medication and how it works, about exactly how much to take and when and for how long. Know also about any expectable side effects which need not be alarming and others which call for immediate reporting to your physician, who, often quite readily, can eliminate them with a change in dosage or a change to another effective drug less likely to produce undesirable effects.

You have every right to expect your physician to answer your questions, even to anticipate many, to give you adequate information even without your questions, and to write his prescriptions so they are precise and fully understandable.

A hasty scrawl of an uninformative prescription instead of all of the above is bad medical practice. It could well be called a substitute for medical practice. Don't accept it. If you can't get what is right, go elsewhere. But chances are increasingly good that with firm persistence on your part, you may well get good medicine in the same office where you may not be getting it now.

my FAVORITE jokes

by DAVID SAYH

EDITOR'S NOTE: David Sayh recalls the first time he auditioned at Catch A Rising Star in New York, one of the few clubs where inexperienced entertainers can break in their material: "When I first went to audition, I waited on line in the cold for about three hours just to get a number. I felt like I was in the bakery on Sunday morning."

David is frequently the emcee at Catch A Rising Star and has performed at the Bijou in Philadelphia, Valley Forge Music Fair in Pennsylvania and on the Playboy circuit.

Here are his comic observations:

I grew up in the South Bronx, one of the highest crime-rate neighborhoods in the world. You call the police emergency number—they put you on hold and play music.

They were looking for everybody in my neighborhood. We used to get arrest warrants in the mail addressed to "Occupant."

I got into one of these finish-high-school-at-home programs and everything was going real well for three months. And then I got a letter that said my home was no longer in my school district. They wanted to bus me to somebody else's house for the remainder of the semester.

When I was a kid and my mother got me bedroom slippers, I never had the cute, little furry ones with the clowns on them like other kids. I always had Taiwan specials with soles made of old tire treads. They were $3 a pair, plus 50 cents for balancing. And they wore real well—except every 20,000 steps you had to take your toes in for realignment.

On the back of shaving cream cans there are actually directions on how to shave. A can will say: "Wash face, press center top of can to release lather, spread lather evenly over face, shave." Who needs directions on how to shave? Do you wake up one morning after shaving for 28 years and say, "Hey, I forgot how to shave"? The next thing I expect is to pick up a bar of soap and see directions on how to take a shower: "Adjust water to desired temperature. Allow sufficient time for water temperature to stabilize, since failure to do so may result in erratic operation of faucet controls. Lather entire body, wash vigorously, rinse thoroughly. Note: For best results, remove all garments."

New Yorkers are incredible. You ask them directions—if they don't know, they make 'em up. I asked a guy, "Excuse me, do you know how to get to the Grand Canyon from here?" He said, "Yeah, just make a U-turn."

What about people out West; ever ask them for directions? You're in the middle of the Mojave Desert, 40 million miles from nowhere. Ask a guy how to get to Highway 80, and he'll say, "You got a car?"

I went to the supermarket the other day, tried to pick up some olives. Now, the guy who does the sizes for the olives is really messed up. The smallest ones are marked "Gigantic," the next size is "Jumbo," then "Colossal," "Super Colossal," "Mammoth," "Mammoth Hermunculus." I expect to open up that last can and find one tremendous olive inside—you have to kill it before you can eat it!

If you want to keep the Family Medical Guide, it's yours for just $16.95, plus postage and handling. If not completely satisfied, return the Medical Guide within 14 days and owe nothing for it. The Charts of the Human Body are yours to keep free in any case.

Illustrates virtually every nerve, organ, bone and muscle, 202 parts in all . . . Printed on Heavy-gauge, transparent acetate.

When illness threatens . . . can you recognize your body's "danger signals" before minor ailments become major medical bills?

NEVER BEFORE has there been a family medical book so practical to use . . . so easy to read and understand . . . so up-to-date as the Better Homes and Gardens FAMILY MEDICAL GUIDE. And now it has been revised and expanded to include a comprehensive illustrated Encyclopedia of Medical Terms Section . . . with 2,000 definitions to take the confusion out of hard-to-understand medical language.

◀First Aid Section Thumb-indexed for quick, finger-tip reference.

Yes, Better Homes and Gardens FAMILY MEDICAL GUIDE tells you how to give first aid, all about the problems of middle and old age, symptoms and treatment of stomach trouble, high blood pressure, menopause (and the seldom discussed "male menopause"), cancer, how to avoid infectious diseases (or recognize their symptoms in the earliest stages).

You are told about annoying allergies and hypersensitivities, crippling arthritis, nerves, strokes and heart attack, reproductive systems of male and female, operations, nutrition, liver, kidneys, intestinal disorders and urinary tract.

Clearly Illustrated throughout

Over 900 illustrations show you how your organs function, where they are located — and what happens when they fail to work properly.

Complete coverage, from children's diseases to health problems of old age

You get frank advice on female disorders, what to do about varicose veins, irregularities of the heartbeat (skipping a beat). You learn how to spot first signs of prostate trouble, scarlet fever, rheumatic fever, cancer of the breast, measles, appendicitis. You are given advice on special problems such as: pelvic disorders, congestive failures, ulcers, loss of vigor, even freckles. Plus special advice and information on arthritic conditions, skin problems, hearing difficulties, other health problems that affect older folks. Better Homes and Gardens FAMILY MEDICAL GUIDE has been prepared by 30 of America's most prominent physicians, surgeons, and specialists, doctors whose knowledge and opinions have earned them international recognition.

Updated with modern medical discoveries

Here is reliable information about medical advances that have captured newspaper headlines: new understandings of the causes and treatment of cancer; new progress in transplantation surgery; new facts about hepatitis, and mononucleosis. Plus facts every parent and young person will want to know about discoveries in heredity — will the baby be normal? — and vital information about drug abuse: what are the effects of narcotics, marijuana, the hallucinogens (mescaline, peyote, LSD), and many more topics of current concern.

You owe it to yourself and to your family to see this unique medical guide. Now you can examine it for 14 days FREE without obligation to buy it. If for any reason you return the book within this period, there is no charge; you pay nothing, owe nothing.

ADDED FEATURE!

Illustrated "Encyclopaedia of Medical Terms" Section makes everything crystal clear . . .

Do you know the difference between Arteriosclerosis and Atherosclerosis? (Both affect blood vessels and they are similar-sounding words, but they are not the same condition.)

Let's face it, doctors frequently assume their patients know what their professional diagnostic language means. But, more often than not, the layman is left "in the dark" wondering, and perhaps needlessly worried, by the frightening sounding terms the doctor uses. The Editors of Better Homes and Gardens feel there should be no mystery about any medical term, provided you have a clear, easy-to-understand explanation of what it means. And that is exactly what you get in your illustrated Encyclopedia of Medical Terms Section.

Here are 2,000 definitions to help you talk with ease and confidence to your physician . . . and understand exactly what his medical terminology means when he talks to you. Matters you may have hesitated to discuss — even with your doctor — no longer need be embarrassing, once you are able to describe them in clear, scientific language.

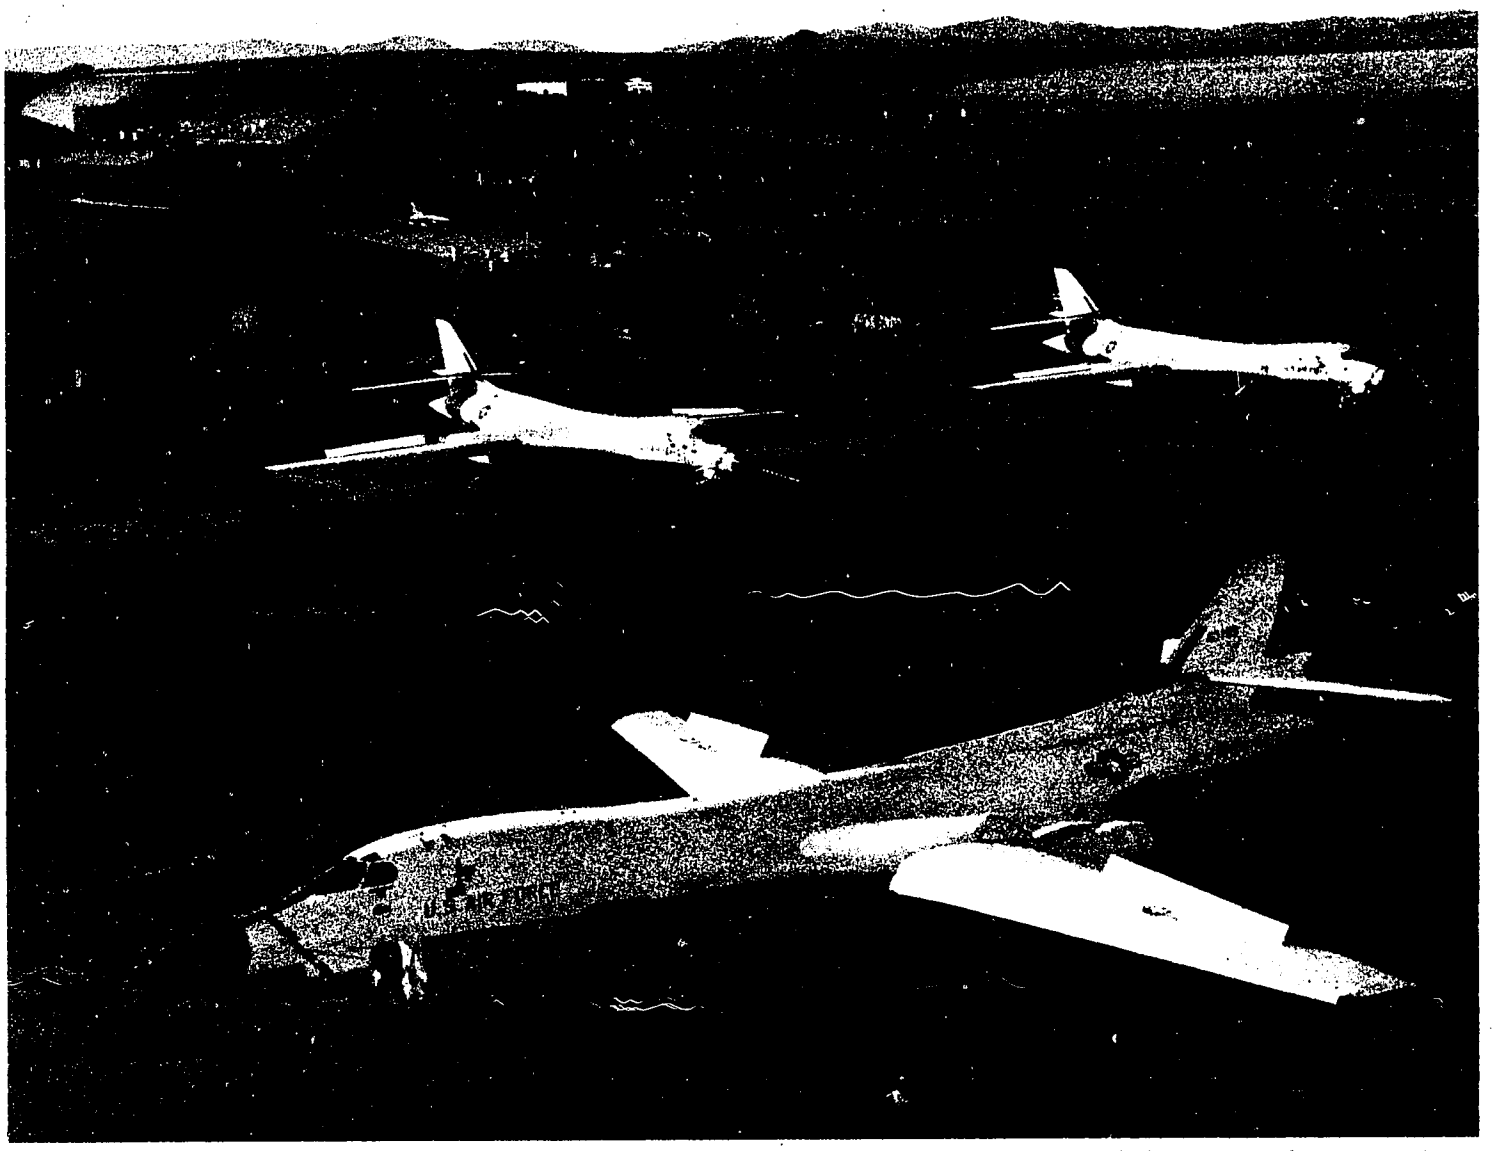
Is constipation part of growing older?

It's true that as you get older, your body does slow down and regularity can become a problem. But it doesn't have to be.



You don't have to suffer from constipation...not when there's Serutan to help you.

Serutan is the laxative especially formulated to help a sluggish system back to regularity. That's because Serutan with its natural ingredients, adds the necessary moisture and bulk your system tends to lose as you get older.

Serutan gently nudges your slowed down system along, so you eliminate smoothly and comfortably. You no longer have to experience the discomfort of painful elimination.

Try Serutan. Because constipation doesn't have to be a part of growing older.

A proposed fleet of B-1 bombers—now being tested at Edwards Air Force Base, Cal.—would cost at least $23 billion. President Ford favored the project, but some Congressmen feel the Air Force rejected viable alternatives.

The B-1 Bomber: A $23 Billion Choice Facing President Carter

by Peter J. Ognibene

Strategic Air Command's Gen. Russell E. Dougherty says our defenses "would be seriously deficient" without the B-1.

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Should the United States spend $23 billion or more for a fleet of 244 B-1 bombers? That is probably the most expensive question President Jimmy Carter will have to answer in the early days of his Administration.

Gen. Russell E. Dougherty, the head of the Air Force's Strategic Air Command, believes the case for the new bomber is overwhelming. "In my view, there is no weapons delivery system program that is more important, more critical, or offers more deterrent utility within the total mix of our strategic forces than the B-1," says Dougherty. "Without such a capable, flexible and visible strategic weapons delivery system, our deterrent forces would be seriously deficient across the potential spectrum of confrontation and/or conflict."

The outgoing Administration subscribed to a similar point of view. In fact, President Ford was so enthusiastic about the new bomber that he made it a point during the Presidential campaign to be photographed waving from the cockpit of a B-1 mock-up in Palmdale, Cal. But when he asked Congress for money to begin production of the supersonic, swing-wing bomber, the B-1 ran into heavy weather.

Congress cautious

Although Congress ultimately approved the requested funds, it limited spending on the B-1 to $87 million a month until Feb. 1, 1977. The purpose of this provision was twofold: it allows Rockwell International, the builder of the plane, to keep its B-1 work force in place but lets the new President decide the bomber's fate. This unusual step seems to indicate that the B-1 has lost much of the overwhelming support it once enjoyed on Capitol Hill.

BOMBER CONTINUED

Why has the bomber lost this support? Some people blame the Air Force. Instead of keeping an open mind on the subject of bombers, it has eliminated all possible alternatives to the B-1. This has angered many members of Congress.

In 1971, for instance, the Boeing Company tested late-model B-52G's and H's and found the main wing structure could last at least six times longer than the original design called for. What that meant in practical terms was this: the reliable B-52 could be flying well into the 21st century. But instead of being heartened by this finding, the Air Force buried it.

The Air Force also canceled a promising missile program called SCAD (for Subsonic Cruise Armed Decoy). The B-52 would have carried these weapons under its wings and launched them 2000 miles from their targets. Ingeniously designed with electronic reflectors, the SCAD would have looked exactly like a B-52 on enemy radar screens. Because this weapon would have improved the B-52's ability to penetrate enemy air defenses, it might have undermined the "need" for a B-1.

Study requested

Decisions such as these led the Senate Armed Services Committee to ask the Department of Defense for "a comprehensive cost effectiveness study" of the B-1 and its possible alternatives. Sen. Thomas McIntyre (D., N.H.), chairman of the committee's research and development subcommittee, analyzed the resulting Pentagon report and found it to be flawed.

"The Joint Strategic Bomber Study's most fundamental bias in favor of the B-1 was its design and evaluation of alternative bomber forces on the basis of the cost of the B-1 rather than designing a precise military mission and comparing each alternative bomber force's capability to fulfill that mission," wrote McIntyre. "If the study had defined the mission which our bombers should be expected to perform and measured the efficiency of various alternatives in accomplishing that mission, such an evaluation may have led you to conclude that we may not have needed a follow-on to the present bomber at all."

Critics of the B-1 oppose the plane for several reasons. They point, for instance, to the diminishing role of bombers in comparison to the other two elements of America's nuclear triad: intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBM's) and submarine-launched ballistic missiles (SLBM's). In 1960, bombers carried 90 percent of our nuclear weapons; the percentage is now 30 and expected to fall even lower whether or not the B-1 is built.

Bombers have clearly lost their preeminence to missiles. Indeed, when ICBM's and SLBM's take only 30 minutes to reach their targets, there is a real possibility that the bombers will find the war already over by the time they arrive at their objectives.

Supporters of the B-1 naturally see things differently. One of the bomber's staunchest advocates has been Malcolm R. Currie, the outgoing director of Defense Research and Engineering.

Currie believes the B-1 is "our best answer to the problems of survivability and penetrativity which will face our existing forces in the years ahead. Higher speed and fundamentally 'harder' construction to resist nuclear effects will virtually assure survival for those B-1 forces on alert. Higher speed, lower penetration altitude, lower radar cross section and better electronic countermeasures will contribute to a high probability of penetration [of enemy air space]."

But even if the plane's supporters are correct and the B-1 is marginally better than the B-52, is the new bomber worth the price? Indeed, do we know its price?

The price tag on the B-1 has been consistent in only one respect: it has climbed steadily skyward. In 1969, the Air Force told Congress that 244 B-1's would cost $9 billion. The current estimate is $23 billion.

Total cost is higher

Keep in mind, however, that that is only the price for 244 airframes. To perform its strategic mission, the B-1 will need nuclear weapons and a fleet of airborne tankers to refuel it in flight. When those systems are included, along with operating and maintenance expenses, the price soars into the stratosphere.

How high will it go? In 1976, Alton H. Quanbeck and Archie L. Wood, both former Air Force colonels, published a study for the Brookings Institution in Washington called "Modernizing the Strategic Bomber Force." They put the total cost for building and operating the B-1 through 1985 at nearly $92 billion. Whether they are right or wrong, their calculations seem more realistic than the Air Force's because Quanbeck and Wood have at least tried to include all the "extras" which an airframe needs to become a bomber. The Air Force only quotes the price for a stripped-down model of the B-1.

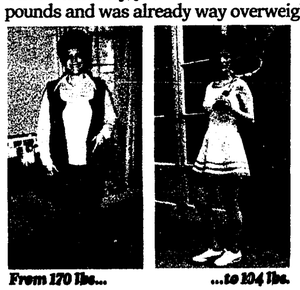
Instead of blanching at its ever-climbing price, Rockwell has been boasting about the jobs the B-1 would create. But then, all big government spending—whether it's for bombers or buses—puts people to work. In the case of the B-1, however, the benefits would be relatively few. In fact, a study conducted for Rockwell by Chase Econometrics, a subsidiary of the Chase Manhattan Bank, concluded that 70,000 extra jobs would be created if the B-1 appropriation were put into housing rather than bombers.

Carter's view uncertain

The President-elect has said he wants to see more jobs created, but he has given no indication that he would consider using the B-1 as a WPA-style make-work project. Indeed, during the Presidential campaign, Carter put himself squarely on the record against the new bomber, calling it "an example of a proposed system which should not be funded and would be wasteful of taxpayers' dollars."

Will Carter carry that view into the Oval Office or will he be persuaded by the arguments of the military men, businesses and labor unions which have a huge stake in the B-1? We should know the answer in a matter of weeks.

I hereby resolve (again) to lose weight.



Heaven knows your intentions were good this time last year. And, heaven knows you tried. But, somehow, around about March, that resolve faltered and suddenly, it was gone.

And your fat was not. We know. We're Ayds and we've been in the dieting business a very long time. And, we know that there is a weight reducing plan that works. We call it the Ayds Plan. It's a program that works because it helps you to eat less (and, therefore, reduce your caloric intake).

How does the Ayds Plan work? You simply take 1 or 2 Ayds® Reducing Plan Candies before meals with a hot drink and Ayds helps satisfy your appetite. So, when you sit down to eat, you eat less . . . take in fewer calories, so lose weight . . . week after week. The Ayds Plan has worked for literally thousands of women. These pictures of Judie Miskella are just one example.

At age 31, Judie suddenly discovered that she had to have an operation. Her doctor told her that women usually gain weight after such surgery. Understandably, Judie was worried. At only 5'-1/2" tall, she weighed 170 pounds and was already way overweight. She had her operation and then decided that no matter what anyone said, she was not going to go on being fat. So she went on the Ayds Plan. Judie lost 66 pounds, and looks and feels great. In her own words Judie says, "I feel that if the Ayds Plan can work for someone like me, it can work for almost anyone with a weight problem."

From 170 lbs... ...to 104 lbs.

So, don't take our word for it. Take Judie's. The Ayds Plan works.

Why not make this the year it works for you. And keep that resolution once and for all.

P.S.: We're so sure that the Ayds Plan will work for you, we're willing to give you 50¢ off on your first box.

So here's the coupon and our very best wishes for a Happier New Year.

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES ABOUT THIS COLUMN.

HOMES AND HOPES The American dream of owning a home is rapidly growing faint.

The median price of a new house is now over $40,000. To live in a desirable suburb costs even more. Only a minority of American families can afford such prices.

For young families (those with husband and wife in the 25-to-34 age bracket) the prospect of buying a new house is almost nil.

Sen. Edward Brooke (R., Mass.) would like to provide young married couples with an opportunity to own a house.

In his Young Families Housing Act, Brooke has proposed a new type of mortgage arrangement whereby a young family would make smaller monthly mortgage payments in the early years and proportionately larger payments in the later years. Brooke contends that it makes sense to structure a mortgage so that a young family pays less in the years when its income is less and more in later years, when its income is higher.

His legislation envisions a method whereby the young family can accumulate enough cash for a down payment. This would be done by permitting the first-time homebuyer to establish a savings account--called an "individual housing account"--into which he could deposit $2500 a year up to a maximum of $10,000. This money would be deductible for income tax purposes and would have to be applied as a down payment on a house.

The housing industry has outpriced itself, and imaginative, creative legislation such as Brooke's is sorely needed.

UNCLE JIMMY According to President-elect Carter's nephew Scott Stapleton, a first-year medical student at the University of North Carolina, "Uncle Jimmy is a man of principle who hasn't had to compromise to get where he is. He is very intelligent and very hard-working, and his most outstanding quality is compassion."

NEW BELT CONVEYOR SYSTEM Here's something that will make Detroit sit up and watch: The Honda Motor Co. of Japan has installed a new factory conveyor system in which each worker on the production line controls his own labor speed.

Honda calls it the "free flow system" and has put it into effect in its plants at Kumamoto and Waki. Executives say it works so well that it will be adopted at all Honda factories in Japan. They report that it not only increases the workers' morale, but results in higher-quality production.

The system's moving belt can be halted or released by each worker simply by stepping on a pedal. If he wishes additional time for his task, he stops the belt, separates the engine from its receptacle and works on it.

For years, industrial engineers have tried to reduce the ill effects of the monotonous conveyor belt system introduced in U.S. auto factories in 1913. Now they may have come upon a reasonable solution. According to Honda, their new free flow system was developed by introducing basic production technology from Cargill, Inc., an American company.

POPULAR IN PEKING: BOB HOPE AND JANE RUSSELL IN 1952 FILM "SON OF PALEFACE"

MOVIES IN CHINA What do people do for entertainment in the People's Republic of China?

China has 3000 motion picture theaters of various sizes in its major cities. The government also assigns some 4000 projectionists to tour the rural areas. They put on an estimated 25,000 screenings every week. Practically all Chinese productions are propaganda films produced in Shanghai and Canton.

Since the Communist takeover in 1949, only films made in China have publicly been shown in the People's Republic. The one exception is "Salt of the Earth," made in the U.S. and Mexico in 1955.

Several weeks ago, Canadian film executive Charles Chaplin, traveling in China, arranged for three American films to be screened in Peking: "The Quiet Man," "Son of Paleface," and "The Great American Cowboy." Other U.S. films, of course, are shown in embassies and diplomatic circles. But these are not for the Chinese people.

HARDSHIP POST The State Department has declared Moscow an "unhealthful post," and U.S. employees who are stationed there receive 20% more in salary as hardship allowance.

A recent notice circulated at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow states that "the determination for such a designation [unhealthful post] is based upon the [State] Department's evaluation of reported environmental conditions regarding sanitation and disease, medical and hospital facilities and climate."

According to U.S. Embassy officials, one factor in determining Moscow as "unhealthful" is the prevalence of giardiasis, a rare intestinal disorder that is believed to be spread in drinking water. Nothing has been said of the persistent microwave radiation of the embassy by the KGB, the Soviet security and espionage apparatus.

WOMEN WANT SEA DUTY Four women members of the U.S. Navy have filed suit in a class action. They allege that the legal prohibition against their assignment to sea duty deprives them of "the core experience of Navy life."

Navy women are currently permitted to serve on hospital ships and harbor vessels like tugboats but not on destroyers, cruisers, carriers and the rest.

DEAD DEAL The Soviet Union has been trying for months to purchase from Great Britain its most powerful aero-engine, the Rolls-Royce RB-211, which provides 50,000 pounds of thrust to the jumbo jets.

The Soviets are building their first wide-body airliner, the Ilyushin 86, which will seat 350 passengers, and they want to study the RB-211.

The British are willing to sell a flock of the RB-211's to the Russians, but they want to control their production under license by the Soviets. They don't want to sell two or three and then have the Soviets pirate the engine with modifications.

In 1947 the British Labor government under Clement Atlee made the mistake of selling 55 Rolls-Royce Nene engines to the Soviets against the advice of its intelligence experts. The Soviets immediately began reproducing the engine illegally for their fighters and bombers. It was these fighters and bombers that were subsequently sent to North Korea to fight against U.S. aircraft in the Korean war.

The British are determined not to make the same mistake again. If they sell Rolls-Royce engines to the U.S.S.R., they want to provide substantial orders to the British aircraft industry. Otherwise --no deal.

CHIGNON COMEBACK The latest hairdo in European society circles is the chignon, which is making a comeback.

One beauty who always wears a chignon is Mrs. Valéry Giscard d'Estaing, the French First Lady.

Hairdressers say that much of the credit for the chignon revival must go to Yves Saint Laurent, who combined the hairdo with his last formal couture collection.

The new chignons differ from the old ones in that they are larger, softer, and much more imaginative, boasting all sorts of braids. Women also ornament them with jeweled flowers, butterflies, and combs.

Alexandre, the well-known hairdressor, interweaves his chignons with strands of colorful ribbon.

ISLAND NUKE PLANTS Professor Peter Kapitza, 82, the great Soviet physicist who dared risk Stalin's wrath by refusing to take part in the development of the Soviet Union's atomic bomb, believes nuclear power plants should be erected on uninhabited islands.

In a recent article in The New Scientist, Kapitza says such problems as the danger of accidents, highly radioactive waste, and the production of plutonium could be overcome to a considerable degree if nuclear plants were built on small, uninhabited islands and the energy generated were used to produce hydrogen from the sea. Hydrogen is a relatively safe and pollution-free fuel source.

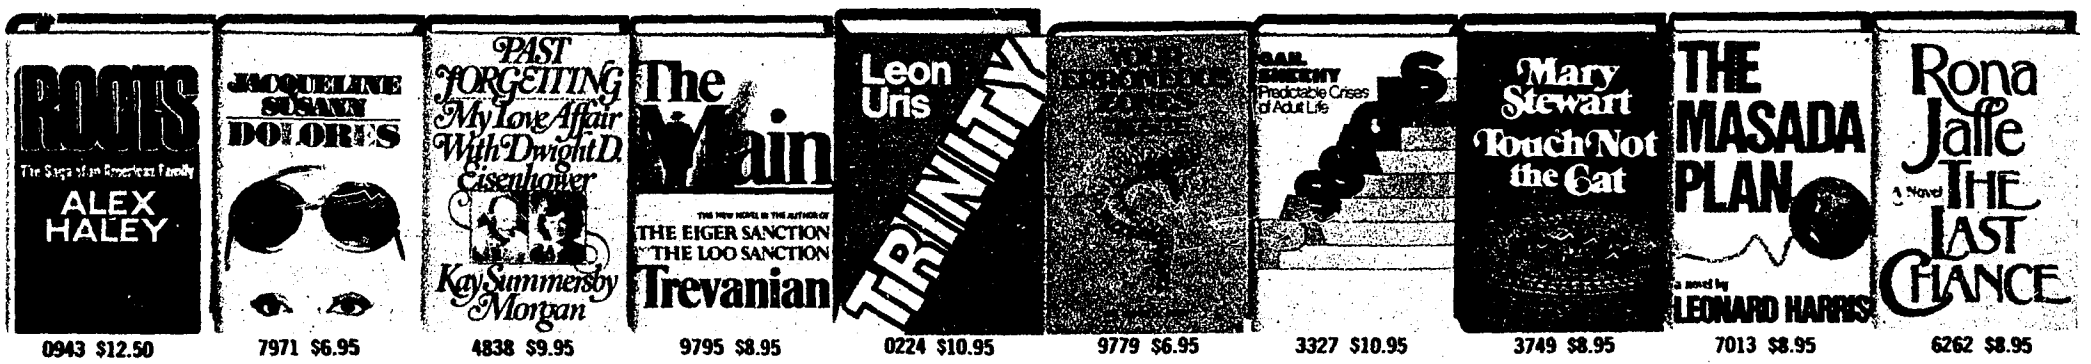
PAN AM HOSTESS DISPLAYS BADGES WHICH INDICATE SHE SPEAKS GERMAN AND FRENCH

AIR WAR The world's airlines are competing for passengers with ever new and different services. On Pan Am's international flights, hostesses now wear badges indicating their special language facilities; Qantas, the Australian airline, plans to offer free cocktails and movies in its economy class. The most welcome luxury, however, is the beds which can be reserved on Singapore Airlines flights to the Far East out of London and Rome. First class, of course.



INFERTILITY EPIDEMIC Human infertility has struck large areas of Africa. From 20% to 40% of the women in many tribes have become infertile. One tribe in Sudan has taken to stealing fertile women from neighboring tribes in an attempt to solve their problem.

The countries stricken with infertility include Gabon, Cameroon, Sudan, Uganda, Ghana, Kenya, and Tanzania. They have appealed for help to the World Health Organization.

Several reasons have been advanced to explain the cause. Pinworm infections disturb the lymphatic glands in both male and female and apparently lead to sterility in women.

South of the Sahara, the most common cause seems to be gonorrhea, which obstructs the fallopian tubes. A year ago, following a massive penicillin campaign designed to eradicate gonorrhea in New Guinea, the fertility rates there began to rise.

Here's how The Literary Guild works:

You get top best sellers at up to 40% off publishers' edition prices. After your membership's accepted, you get your 4 books for only $1, plus shipping and handling. If you are not completely satisfied, return them within 10 days and we will cancel your membership and you owe nothing. About every 4 weeks (14 times a year) you'll be offered dozens of exciting best sellers at up to 40% off through your free copy of the Literary Guild Magazine. In addition, up to 4 times a year, you may receive offers of special selections, always at discounts off publishers' prices.

You never have to buy a minimum number of books a year. Only buy four more during your membership, after which you may cancel anytime. If you want the selection featured in the magazine or the special selection, do nothing, it will be shipped to you automatically. If you want an alternate, or no book, return the order form marked with your preference, by the date specified. You always will have at least 10 days to make a decision. If you get an unwanted selection because you had less than 10 days, return it at our expense. There is a shipping and handling charge on all books shipped.

The Guild offers its own complete, hardbound editions, sometimes altered in size to fit special presses and save members even more.

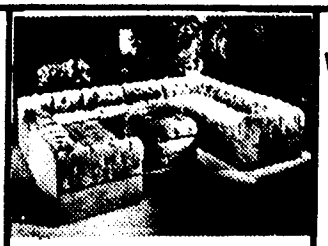
"Rich Man, Poor Man" started off on ABC as a 12-hour movie to be presented over several nights.

Its success led to the natural thought that perhaps it could be continued as a weekly series. Thus, "Rich Man, Poor Man — Book II" became an item in ABC's current season schedule.

The first long movie had ended with the violent death of one of the two brothers whose careers served as the core of the story. That left one brother, Rudy Jordache, played by Peter Strauus, to carry on as the central character of "Book II."

Though not too familiar to television audiences, Strauss has behind him a long career as an actor. He started at the early age of 13 in a version of "The Taming of the Shew" in his home town of Croton-on-Hudson, N.Y.

He has been in several movies, and has found the stage a favorite type of performance.



Strauss, prior to "Rich Man, Poor Man," has appeared in the guest casts of many television series, and also in such specials as "The Man Without a Country" and "The Court-Martial of the Tiger of Malaya."

THE BIG DIFFERENCE IN SECOND TRUST DEED LOANS ON ANY REAL ESTATE:

Not all second trust deed loans cost the same. That's why the Federal Government has given you a simple way of comparing the annual cost of any loan . . . the Annual Percentage Rate. The lower this rate, the lower your annual cost.

Most other companies ask you to pay Annual Percentage Rates from 17% to 21%. That's because they charge you 10% interest, a maximum commission and give you a short time to repay. Not us. Through Reliable your interest rate is lower (9%), the commission is lower, and you get more time — 8 years — to fully repay your loan, including principal and interest. There are no balloon payments. We offer you an Annual Percentage Rate of 12.88%. Check around. We believe it's the best rate available . . . and it's available to everyone.

The figures look like this. For every $1,000 you borrow you pay only $14.66 a month for 96 months. The total of payments is $1,407.36. We also offer shorter term loans at the same interest rate and commission, but with proportionately higher Annual Percentage Rates. Naturally, you can pay off your loan at any time by prepaying interest on the balance in accordance with state law.

You may borrow from $2,000 to $50,000 on a first or second trust deed loan — on any real estate anywhere in California. On the average, you'll have your loan in 10 working days.

No gimmicks. No double-talk. We just think it's good business to give you the facts . . . and more money for your money.

Start the New Year Right. Join smokEnders® now.

You will stop smoking on Feb. 24th

. . . if you join smokEnders now, and follow our pleasant program. Hosted by hospitals, leading corporations, and government agencies coast-to-coast, smokEnders has helped over 100,000 smokers kick the habit during the past 8 years. SmokEnders shows you the way to quit calmly and comfortably. You smoke as much as you want until you quit WITHOUT hypnosis, willpower, scare tactics, electric shocks, or climbing the walls.

Come to a FREE EXPLANATORY SESSION, and bring your cigarettes. . . by Feb. 24, you won't need them anymore.

THE SILVER LINING – The ocean sparkled again Saturday as the clouds parted and a bright sun again dominated the seascape of Newport Beach. Seagulls were ready to come out of their dry nesting spots and take advantage of the rainless morning, and at least one gull provides a dark silhouette in the dawn's early light.

Blast Hits 9th Troubled Ship

By The Associated Press

A Liberian-registered ship was rocked by an explosion about 300 miles off the Virginia coast on Saturday, the ninth foreign flag vessel to run into trouble in U.S. rivers, harbors or off the U.S. coast waters in less than a month.

One ship, the Panamanian tanker Grand Zenith carrying a crew of 38 and 8 million gallons of oil, remains missing and is presumed sunk.

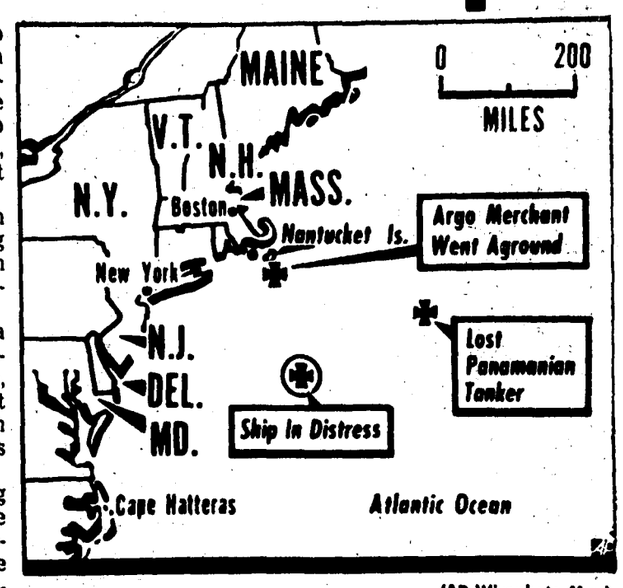
Three others have spilled a total of about 7.7 million gallons of oil; another blew up, killing 11 persons; the rest continued their journeys with cargoes intact and no deaths after running aground.

The incidents involving foreign-registered ships have led to calls for greater regulation of such ships while operating in U.S. waters under international safety regulations less stringent than U.S. standards.

"The United States has been reluctant to set standards, but with the vast amount of oil coming into the country, the time has come to set more stringent standards," said Russell E. Train, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency.

The Coast Guard said it learned of the latest incident Saturday when the 790-foot Mary Ann, carrying only ballast, reported that an explosion and fire had occurred while the vessel was cleaning its tanks.

The Coast Guard said the Liberian ship, built to carry oil or metallic ore, was moving again toward the East Coast under its own power and did not appear to be in danger of sinking.



A helicopter was en route to the Mary Ann to evacuate an injured crew member.

Meanwhile, the discovery of debris and fuel oil from the Grand Zenith narrowed the search for possible survivors from the vessel's 38-man crew.

The Grand Zenith was last heard from Dec. 30 and is presumed sunk. Searchers have found two life jackets, a trunk and mattress from the tanker in an area about 330 miles east southeast of Cape Cod.

The costliest accident in confirmed human loss occurred in Los Angeles harbor on Dec. 17 when the Sansinena, of Liberian registry, blew up and THE INSIDERS...

Seventeen years ago, Marie Stahr first waited tables for a bunch of former Marine enlisted pilots who were holding their first semi-annual get together at the Revere House in Tustin.

They came back twice a year from all over the U.S. to hold their banquets at the Revere House and each time, Marie was one of their waitresses.

The ex-Marines decided to do something special for Marie this time around. Staff writer Dave Rose tells the story, adding some history on this colorful group of men, on page A-3.

The hottest name in show business right now is The Fonz. Fortunes are being made on all sorts of items bearing Fonzie's name.

Insiders think this bonanza has just begun. In the works are Fonzie slippers, Fonzie stuffed dolls and Fonzie shoes. The story appears in Leisuretime Magazine.

It could be the old American West, the white settlers driving the Indian from his home and his hunting grounds, the onslaught of a new and bewildering civilization for the Red Man.

But it isn't. It's modern day Brazil and the Indian of the Amazon watches as a new breed of settlers move in along his river, clearing land, building towns and forging highways.

And like his American counterpart of a century ago, the Amazon Indian is fighting back. There have even been killings and attacks on Indian agencies. The story appears on page C-4.

Despite Orange County's latter day role as a modern metropolitan area, there are still a number of working cattle ranches here and they adhere to the old western custom of branding their animals.

The Irvine Ranch has the oldest continuously used brand in the county, but the first one to be registered was held by a "farmer" who first sold Christmas trees and put on the first musical performance here.

There's much more and staff writer Sandi Mosley tells the story on page A-3.

Sunbelt Migration Noted

Population Bulk Shifts South, West

WASHINGTON (AP) – America's bicentennial year marked the first time that the majority of the U.S. population lived in the South and West, the Census Bureau reported Saturday.

Thus, 1976 was a milestone not only in the nation's settling and development, but also in the more recent trend of migration out of the North and into the so-called Sunbelt states.

The Census preliminary count for 1976 showed the nation with a population of 214,659,000, up 1.63 million over 1975. Most of the growth was in the South and West, where the population reached 107,417,000, while the North population was 107,242,000.

In 1975, the nation's population was 213,032,000, with 107,092,000 in the North and 105,940,000 in the South.

Six years ago, the South and West had eight million fewer residents than the North.

The North, by Census definition, consists of the 21 north-central and Northwest states included in an arc struck by North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

The population shift has been building for several years, as retired people looked for a sunny retirement spot and workers forsaked older, slower growing industries of the North for the space age industries of the South and West, according to Census experts.

By 1970 two key factors that had sustained population growth in the North fell off – the birth rate and the migration of blacks from the South.

Because few people migrated into the North in the two decades prior to 1970, its population growth relied mainly on births. The drop in the birth rate to record low rates in the early 1970s had the most severe effect on population growth in the North.

Also, by 1974, for the first time since the Civil War, more blacks were migrating into the South than were mov-

Ex-Informant Suing DA Key Anthony Fund Backer

By JOE CORDERO AND JOHN O'DELL
Register Staff Writers

A former informant who is suing the district attorney's office for $170 million played a key role in Supervisor Philip Anthony's successful effort to raise thousands of dollars in last minute campaign funds.

Gene Conrad, who during an interview claimed he soon will expose "wholesale corruption" in the district attorney's office, described himself as one of Anthony's financial angels.

Conrad, whose residence and business both are outside Anthony's district, said he actively recruited contributions for the newly elected supervisor – who will have a voice in the funding of the district attorney's office for the next four years.

Anthony's campaign committee collected $340,000 – one of the most expensive supervisorial campaigns in Orange County history.

But his campaign still had a $41,470 deficit as of Dec. 30, according to finance reports filed with the registrar of voters office.

The reports show the campaign received $198,881 following the June primary – almost $88,000 of it during the two weeks prior to the Nov. 2 general election.

It was during the final two weeks that Conrad, whose suit was filed Jan. 5, was most active in the campaign.

Conrad said he solicited Anthony's largest single contribution – $10,000 from a building supply firm located in Costa Mesa, outside the supervisor'sdistrict.

In addition, principals in Pension Funds of America, Irvine, a loan brokerage owned by Conrad, gave $5,000 to Anthony during the final two

Russian Faces Death As Spy

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) – A former Russian merchant seaman who told his New Jersey neighbors he defected to the United States several years ago was described by the FBI on Saturday as a cool-headed spy who passed American defense secrets to the Soviets.

Ivan Rogalsky, a 34-year-old unemployed mechanic, was held without bail in the Bergen County Jail on espionage charges punishable by death. He was represented by a public defender at his arraignment Saturday morning before U.S. Magistrate William J. Hunt.

Rogalsky, a bachelor, is a resident alien described by his Jackson Township neighbors as sometimes lonely, often troublesome. They said he made no attempt to hide his love for his native land, which he told them he left when he jumped ship in a German port in 1971.

He said he came to the United States later via Germany and Spain, according to acquaintances.

Rogalsky was arrested Friday night in rural Lakewood

Township. He had in his possession a classified document from an RCA Corp. research center that works on top secret communications satellites and defense projects.

The FBI complaint portrayed Rogalsky as a patient espionage agent who tried to cultivate a U.S. contact to feed him vital American de-

TEACHER'S DEATH NOTED

'Loss' Extended To Overpayment

LOS ANGELES (AP) – Ten days after teacher Murray Kaplan died, his widow received a letter from the school district. Kaplan had been overpaid $57.69, and the district wanted the money back.

"We are very sorry to hear of the early death of your husband," the letter said. "Please accept our sincere sympathy. However, we regret to inform you that an audit of his salary payment reveals that he was overpaid a net amount of $57.69."

Kaplan, 53, had worked for the school district for 27 years when he died Oct. 7. He was mistakenly paid for Oct. 8.

His widow, Carole, also a teacher, had been out of work for a year and a half with a medical disability. Their four children range in age from 7 to 22.

Mrs. Kaplan wrote back, saying she would pay when she could afford it. She wondered why it couldn't be taken out of sick pay.

The school district's next letter said "retention of salary payment to which you are not entitled constitutes an illegal act."

The first letter has since been reprinted in the teachers' union newspaper and appeared Friday in the Los Angeles Times. The publicity has caused quite a stir and has brought apologies from the district.

"It was an error in judgment," district controller William H. Barbour Jr. said. "We wish it had never happened. We will not press for the payment and I've told my people not to write her any further letters."

Mrs. Kaplan said Barbour had called her. "He said they were sorry but they still wanted the money. They weren't going to take it off sick leave."

"As of now, I still owe $57.69," Mrs. Kaplan said. "Mr. Barbour said they we-

Clear Skies Brighten OC

LOS ANGELES (AP) – Clear skies prevailed over most of Southern California Saturday, as a blanket of white from recent storms beckoned snowlovers towards the higher elevations.

Lowland sightseers jammed mountain roads leading to recreation areas, creating a traffic jam on the Interstate 5 Grapevine route at Gorman.

Tow trucks labored to pull more than a dozen cars and

Mondale To Travel Abroad For Carter

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) – President-elect Carter said Saturday he will send Vice President-elect Walter F. Mondale on a get-acquainted trip to Europe and Japan the first week of the Carter administration.

The president-elect said he himself probably will attend an economic summit meeting of the world's industrialized democracies this year, probably in late May or June.

Carter also said he likely will meet with Soviet party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev sometime before next fall and hopes by that time to have achieved "substantial" progress on a new strategic arms limitation treaty.

On another subject, Carter said he has every hope that tax rebate checks, a key element of his plan to stimulate the lagging economy, will be sent to millions of taxpayers by early spring.

Carter said he still intends to minimize his own travel in the first year of his administration but would make an exception for the economic summit.

Carter talked to reporters at a chilly outdoor news conference on the lawn of his home.

"I've asked Sen. Mondale to go to West Germany, to France, to Great Britain, to the European Community headquarters in Brussels and also to Japan," Carter said.

He said arrangements for the trip already have been made and that he will speak with the prime ministers or leaders of those nations by telephone sometime this week.

He said the purpose of the Mondale trip is to let America's closest allies "know in some detail what I and the United States Congress propose to do about the weeks of the general election campaign.

Conrad also took credit for arranging contributions from several construction firms – many of which are not based within Anthony's first supervisorial district.

Including funds Conrad claims he obtained, Anthony received general election contributions of $1,000 or more from at least 45 individuals and businesses. Of them, 14 were for amounts from $2,500 to $4,000; one was for $5,000 and one was for $10,000 from Robert G. LanFranco, owner of Amco Builders Supply in Costa Mesa.

The contributors included 19 builders, developers and real estate interests and nine other firms which do business with the county or whose business is subject to county supervisors' regulation.

Anthony's election deficit includes the $39,000 unpaid balance of $48,000 he loaned his campaign committee.

Anthony said he's never met LanFranco, the supervisor's biggest campaign contributor.

Asked why he'd give $10,000 to a politician who doesn't represent Costa Mesa, LanFranco replied:

"What business is that of yours? I really don't think I have to give one (reason)."

When asked additional questions, LanFranco said, "Thank you very much, sir. Have a good day," and hung up the telephone.

Conrad said LanFranco – who has not previously been a known political contributor – gave Anthony the money because "I asked him to give it."

Conrad described LanFranco as a "good friend" he's known for "about six months." He said he and LanFranco are involved in real-estate dealings.

Anthony "was surprised" to learn of LanFranco's largesse, he said.

He said he assumed that LanFranco's contribution and the contributions from construction firms came as a result of his labor union support.

Anthony said he met Conrad "through labor people."

"I met him at the (county) Labor Man of The Year banquet in the fall."

In addition to raising money for Anthony's campaign, Conrad was on hand election night to cash $10,150 in checks paid 100 persons hired in a drive to pass out literature the night before the election and to get voters to the polls election day.

The two-day drive was the most expensive "get-out-the-vote" campaign on record for an Orange County candidate.

Conrad said he showed up at Anthony's election headquarters with $10,000 cash because "I was asked by (campaign advisor) John Dean.

"Dean said they'd called Gene Tunks to see if they could get $10,000 cash to pay the workers. Tunks didn't have enough that night to handle it."

(Tunks' family is a major campaign financing force in the county.)

Conrad said he agreed to handle the paymaster's duties using his own cash.

Anthony said Conrad's check-cashing duties were "unbeknownst to me" until he showed up at the supervisor's campaign headquarters.

Campaign advisors arranged the on-the-spot check cashing "to pep up morale" of the workers, Anthony explained.

Asked why he chose Anthony's campaign for his initial involvement in politics, Conrad said he'd help any "straight, law abiding candidate" who would "clean up the corruption in Orange County."

Conrad's $170 million suit alleges that Dist. Atty. Cecil Hicks, Assistant Dist. Atty. Michael Capizzi and intelligence section chief John Gier violated federal law by wiretapping his telephone conversations without a court order.

Conrad claims Hicks' office is one of the things that needs to be "cleaned up."

fense secrets.

The information was passed to Yevgeniy Karpov, a member of the Soviet intelligence network posing as part of the Russian delegation to the United Nations, according to the federal court complaint.

As second secretary of the Soviet mission at the U.N., Karpov has diplomatic immunity and cannot be arrested by U.S. authorities. He can, however, be asked to leave the country.

Louis A. Giovanetti, FBI agent in charge of New Jersey, said Karpov had long been suspected of being a Soviet intelligence agent. Neither he nor the U.S. State Department would comment on when or if Karpov would be expelled from the United States.

Authorities said Rogalsky had been under surveillance for six months before his arrest. They said he held nearly a dozen meetings with Paul S. Nekrasov, an RCA engineer who was secretly cooperating with the FBI.

After many of the meetings, Rogalsky reported to Karpov, the FBI said. Agents said information was passed to Karpov, but no data vital to U.S. national security reached the Soviet Union.

Nekrasov, a senior project engineer at RCA's Astro Electronics Division in Hightsown, began feeding unclassified information to Rogalsky in October 1976, the FBI said.

On Nov. 7, 1974, Rogalsky told Nekrasov that Karpov was his Russian contact and that he wanted certain questions answered, the complaint said. Rogalsky then urged Nekrasov to provide classified, top secret documents, the FBI said, and last Wednesday Rogalsky told Nekrasov that Karpov wanted a document "containing secret satellite communications" data.

On Friday, Nekrasov gave Rogalsky a secret document titled "statement of working investigation of special tehniques related to satellite communications," the complaint said. That document was still in Rogalsky's possession when he was arrested Friday evening.

The FBI and RCA officials refused to elaborate on what kinds of projects Nekrasov worked on. They said, however, he was involved with the space shuttle program, an unclassified project.

An RCA spokesman said Nekrasov was being guarded by the FBI in a secret location after Rogalsky's arrest.

At the arraignment on Saturday, U.S. Atty. Jonathan L. Goldstein said that although Rogalsky was unemployed he apparently had enough money to flee if he were freed. He said Rogalsky had boasted to Nekrasov that he never feared being caught because he would be able to raise bail.

The prosecutor quoted Rogalsky as saying that a Russian ship would arrive off the coast of Delaware to pick him up and take him back to the Soviet Union if he were ever in trouble with U.S. authorities.

Residents of the Slavic community in Jackson Township, about 40 miles east of Philadelphia, said Rogalsky was a moody, lonely man who often expressed his love for Russia.

killed 11 persons. No significant spill occurred.

The worst spillage involved the Liberian tanker Argo Merchant, which ran aground on shoals off Nantucket Island Dec. 15 while nearly 25 miles off course. The ship eventually split in two and gushed about 7.6 million gallons of heavy industrial oil into the ocean.

The two other oil spills were minor in comparison to the Argo Merchant situation. In the second largest spill, Olympic Games, also of Liberian registry, hit a rock in the Delaware River and spilled 134,000 gallons of oil on Dec. 27.

The Oswego Peace, registered in Liberia, spilled 2,000 gallons of oil into the Thames River at Groton, Conn. on Dec. 24.

Three other foreign tankers went aground with no oil loss and no loss of life.

The Liberian tanker Daphne grounded off San Juan, Puerto Rico on Dec. 28 but none of its 16.8 million gallons of cargo oil spilled. The vessel was refloated on Dec. 30.

The Liberian tanker Universe Leader, carrying 21 million gallons, went aground in the Delaware River on Jan. 4. It was refloated the next day and no spillage of oil was reported.

The Barcola, also Liberian, went aground Friday off the Texas coast in the Gulf of Mexico. It worked itself free and none of its 12.6 million gallons of oil was reported spilled.

In addition, a U.S.-registered towboat pushed an oil barge into a lock gate on the Ohio River Near Paducah, Ky. on Dec. 27, spilling 8,000 gallons of diesel fuel and wrecking the gate.

Warehouses Burn In Worst Fire Since '69

NEW YORK (AP) – The biggest fire here in eight years burned through a complex of vacant warehouses near the Hudson River in lower Manhattan early Saturday. Nine firemen suffered minor injuries.

The seven-alarm blaze started in the Raleigh Warehouse at 10:30 p.m. Friday and spread to three neighboring buildings before it was brought under control about 9:15 a.m. Saturday.

High winds gusting to 30 miles per hour hampered efforts to put out the flames in the five-and six-story frame structures. Heavy smoke forced some residents to leave their nearby homes.

About 300 fire fighters using 50 pieces of apparatus fought the blaze which reached "city alarm" status at 2:43 a.m. after passing the five-alarm stage.

The Fire Department said the citywide alarm, which calls for help from other boroughs, was the first in the city since an explosion at a Queens factory eight years ago that went to 13 alarms.

Mrs. Kaplan said she has also heard from two members of the school board who said "they were sorry about the bad taste."

Despite all the attention, Mrs. Kaplan said, "I assume I have to pay the money. Nobody has said I don't."

"When something like this happens," she said, "I think sick leave should be used until the end of the pay period."

Although she is eligible for social security and teachers' retirement pay, that money hasn't started yet, she said. Her last check was the one in dispute.

She figures teaching killed her husband. The 27 years in the classroom gave him the hypertension that caused the heart attack, she said.

He died at a health club, where he had gone after school "to unwind," Mrs. Kaplan said.

"It's scary. He was in fantastic health. Had a heartbeat of 50 just like an athlete. Looked and felt fantastic."

'Little Hope' Held Out For Sinatra's Mom

PALM SPRINGS (AP) – Authorities held out little hope Saturday that Frank Sinatra's mother or three other persons on a missing private jet might be found alive.

Mountain climbers fought snow and high winds to search for the missing twin-engine jet on the highest reaches of Southern California's tallest peak. A helicopter was sent aloft, but there was no word of any sighting.

Sinatra joined the search Saturday, riding in a helicopter from daybreak until late afternoon.

The white Lear Jet disappeared from radar screens Thursday evening on a flight from Palm Springs to Las Vegas, Nev., where Sinatra's 82-year-old mother, Natalie "Dolly" Sinatra, was going to watch her son's opening at Caesars Palace. Also on the plane were another passenger and a two-man crew.

San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department spokesmen said they believed the chartered jet had slammed into the 9,000-foot level of Mt. San Gorgonio, which is 11,502 feet high.

Sheriff's Deputy Vic Brimmer said radar data indicated the plane had hit the mountain at about 345 miles an hour.

ing North out of the region.

California's population grew by 322,000 to 21.5 million last year.

New York, the second largest state, added 8,000 to its 18 million last year, but over-all New York's population has declined 158,000 since 1970 while California has gained 1.5 million.

The fastest growing state last year in percentage terms was Alaska, which grew by 17,000, or 4.7 per cent, to 382,000.

The fastest growing state since the 1970 census has been Arizona, with a 27.8 per cent growth rate.

Six states and the District of Columbia lost population last year. They were: Massachusetts (down 5,000); Rhode Island (4,000); Ohio (45,000); Indiana (11,000); Michigan (7,000); Arkansas (1,000) and the District (10,000).

The Census figures showed that the Northeast has grown 443,000, or nine-tenths of 1 per cent, since the 1970 census while sustaining a net outmigration of 793,000.

Some 1.14 million more people moved out of the north-central states than into them during the six years, while the area's population grew 2 per cent, or 1.15 million, from births.

The South gained 2.94 million in population from migration in those six years, showing a total population gain of 6.04 million, or 9.6 per cent.

The West gained 1.85 million in population from migration for total population growth of 3.72 million, or 10.7 per cent.

Arizona Prison Fugitives Treated 3 Hostages 'Well'

TUCSON, ARIZ. (AP) – A young Tucson couple held hostage 16 hours by four Arizona State Prison escapees were treated well, and said Friday their captors were almost gentlemanly in their behavior. The escapees were still at large Saturday.

"They kept saying they weren't going to hurt us, that all they wanted to do was make a clean break," said Peggy Goforth, 27. "About halfway through (the ordeal) I began to believe them."

Her husband, Carl, 28, said he was about ready to leave for work at 7 a.m. Thursday when he heard a knock at his apartment door. He said it opened it to find Paul Jorgenson, 30, asking "for some girl" and Michael Clary, 26, holding a gun.

Mrs. Goforth, who was still in bed, said the men turned their backs while she got out of bed and went into the bathroom to change from her nightgown. "They were real proud of their escape," she said, adding the four spent most of their time watching television, especially news accounts of their escape and the pursuit.

The Goforths said they were bound and gagged twice, once at about 7:45 p.m. when Jorgenson and Clary took their car to steal another one, because the Goforth's Volkswagen has no back seat and was not powerful enough.

They said Richard Benfield, 28, and John Lamb, 41, became worried when their companions did not return. They bound the Goforths again and prison guard John Smith, taken as a hostage in the Wednesday night escape from the Florence prison, with friction tape and rolled them in bedsheets.

They were released later when Jorgenson and Clary returned, but bound again when the quartet left for the last time. The second time, they said, they were tied with rope and electrical cord and again rolled in sheets.

"They told us the cords were plugged in, so we shouldn't struggle, but I lifted my head and saw it wasn't true," Mrs. Goforth said.

Mrs. Goforth said she removed her gag but kept quiet because she was not sure the men had left. But Smith, who was in the living room, began yelling and attracted a next door neighbor, who came to the Goforth apartment and untied them.

"I shook his hand when he untied us. It's a hell of a way to meet your neighbor," said Goforth, who added he still does not know the man's name.

The Goforths said the men took $9 and three sets of men's clothing from them.

stimulation of our economy.

"In addition to that he will explore with them better means by which we might coordinate our NATO policies, deal with the problems of the increased oil prices, and also share with them some of our potential plans at that point for helping to resolve the potential problems surrounding Cyprus and Turkey and Greece, the Middle East, and of course the southern Africa question."

In the latter case Carter said that the United States plans to play a supportive role and will not pre-empt the leadership position taken by the government of Great Britain.

Mondale later issued a statement from his Washington office expressing pleasure with the assignment from Carter.

He said the trip will allow the new administration to consult closely with allies, to exchange views with them and to prepare for a possible economic summit.

On Friday Carter and key congressional Democrats proposed a two-year program to stimulate the economy through jobs and public works programs, a permanent tax cut and a one-shot tax rebate that could give individual taxpayers up to $200.

A reporter asked Carter about reports that Congress might not be able to act on the rebate portion of the plan for several months.

"I would hope the information from Washington is erroneous," Carter said.

"I don't foresee any difficulty in getting the rebate checks out very rapidly," he said.

Carter said also that he intends to announce in the coming week the legal details of the trust he is setting up to manage his farm lands and peanut business while he is in the White House.

Oil Refinery Struck By 500

LAKEWOOD, Colo. (AP) – A 21-year-old man, taken hostage in Tucson Ariz., Thursday night by four escapees from the Arizona State Prison, was left bound and gagged in a motel room near Denver, Colo., Saturday.

Marvin Stark called his father from Colorado to say he was free and unharmed.

"He was just a little shook up," Cecil Stark said his son told him.

Marvin Stark told his father he first had been taken to Albuquerque, N.M.

Police had centered their search for the fugitives in that area after two of the escapees were tentatively identified as the pair that robbed a savings and loan there of $15,000 Friday.

Police said Stark's license number and personal identification were also used by two men to register at an Albuquerque motel.

Stark told his father one of the convicts shoved some money into his pocket just before he was left bound in the motel room with Douglas Keefe, 21, an Albuquerque man taken hostage on Friday.

Michael Bozio, 52, owner of the motel where Stark and Keefe were found, said six persons rented three rooms at the motel about 5:30 a.m. Saturday.

He said late Saturday the men left after calling for a taxi to get to the airport. Bozio said a short time later he got a call from one of the rooms that the caller wanted to speak to the police.

$4.2 Million Art Treasure Taken From Spanish Church

MURCIA, Spain (AP) – Burglars using a blowtorch forced open an iron gate in the cathedral museum in this southeastern Spanish city and carried off 20 art pieces studded with 7,000 gems and valued at $4.2 million, church officials said Saturday.

The theft at the 514-year-old Santa Maria Cathedral occurred Friday night or early Saturday. The officials said the stolen items were uninsured and had been on open display behind the gate.

Among the stolen pieces were the jeweled crown from a statue of the Virgin of La Fuensanta, patron saint of Murcia, and the pectoral cross and ring of Luis Cantonio Cardinal Belluga, a major figure in the Spanish Roman Catholic Church in the 18th century, the officials said.

The diamonds, sapphires and gold in the crown of the virgin saint had been paid for by popular subscription.

Also stolen were gold altar pieces of the 14th and 15th centuries.

Police said they had no immediate clue to the identity of the thieves.

In a similar theft about two years ago, church jewels valued at $1.4 million were stolen from the shrine of the Virgin of the Pines in Las Palmas, Canary Islands.

The building of Santa Maria Cathedral began in 1394 and was completed in 1462. A baroque 18th century frontispiece is one of its main tourist attractions.

TWO-YEAR STRUGGLE RESULTS IN PARDON

Conviction 'Mistake,' Brothers Freed

LONNIE, LEFT, SANDY SAWYER EXIT PRISON GATE
Arrested For A Crime They Say They Didn't Commit

LILLINGTON, N.C. (AP) – Inmates applauded as Lonnie and Sandy Sawyer, convicted of kidnaping and pardoned by the governor, walked from a state prison camp as free men on Saturday.

The brothers were released after a two-year struggle that had attracted national attention. Their mother, Etta, was waiting at the gates of the Harnett Youth Center.

"I was so happy I just can't imagine having a happier day," she said.

The Sawyers, who insisted throughout that they had committed no crime, were sentenced to long prison terms after being convicted of a 1974 kidnaping. The pardon granted on Friday by Gov. Jim Holshouse was only the 12th in North Carolina in this century.

"I really don't have anything planned. I just feel wonderful and want to go home," said Sandy Sawyer, 22, as he walked from the prison camp to meet his mother.

Also waiting was Lonnie's fiancee, Tina Rayley, and two attorneys and private detectives who helped them gain freedom. NBC television producer Sy Pearlman, whose program about the Sawyers' case brought it to national attention, also was there.

The Sawyers were convicted of the kidnaping of Robert Hinson, a Union County department store anager, who identified the brothers as his abductors.

Their brother, Tom, of Charlotte, one of 13 children in the family, persisted in seeking help after the Sawyers' conviction. He finally found a private investigator, Lester Burns, who became interested in the case and in 1975 brought it to Pearlman's attention.

In a recent interview, Sandy said a car he owned with his brother was similar to one used in the abduction.

"It was all just a mistake," he said.

Lonnie, 19, said he still planned to be married.

Sandy said he was considering moving to Raleigh, and does not look forward to seeing any of the persons involved in the prosecution of their case in Union County. "If I see them on the street or something, I'll just walk on the other side," he said.

U.S. Nuclear Arms Called Vulnerable

WASHINGTON (AP) – Congressional budget analysts said Saturday that U.S. nuclear weapons in Europe are vulnerable to surprise Soviet attack. They urged vigorous action to make sure U.S. weapons could survive.

The analysts said that in order to discourage a Soviet nuclear first strike against Western Europe, it is vital that U.S. nuclear weapons there be able to survive such an attack.

The ability to deter an attack has become the most important purpose of the 7,000 U.S. tactical nuclear weapons deployed in Europe, staff members of the Congressional Budget office said in a 45-page study.

Tactical nuclear weapons are designed for use chiefly on regional battlefields. Though much more destructive than conventional high-explosive artillery and bombs, they are less powerful and shorter-ranged than the strategic intercontinental missiles aimed by the United States and Russia at each other's heartlands.

The study said that the 100 or so sites where U.S. tactical nuclear weapons are based on European soil are vulnerable to nuclear and conventional attack.

"A well designed and executed Soviet attack could destroy a large number of them," the analysts said.

The study suggested that currently planned improvements in U.S. tactical nuclear weaponry, such as improved accuracy and ranges, "do not appear to contribute strongly to deterring Soviet first use of nuclear weapons."

It proposed changes in those forces which might improve their ability as a deterrent.

Among the suggestions were concealment, sea basing of weapons and early dispersal in time of crisis.

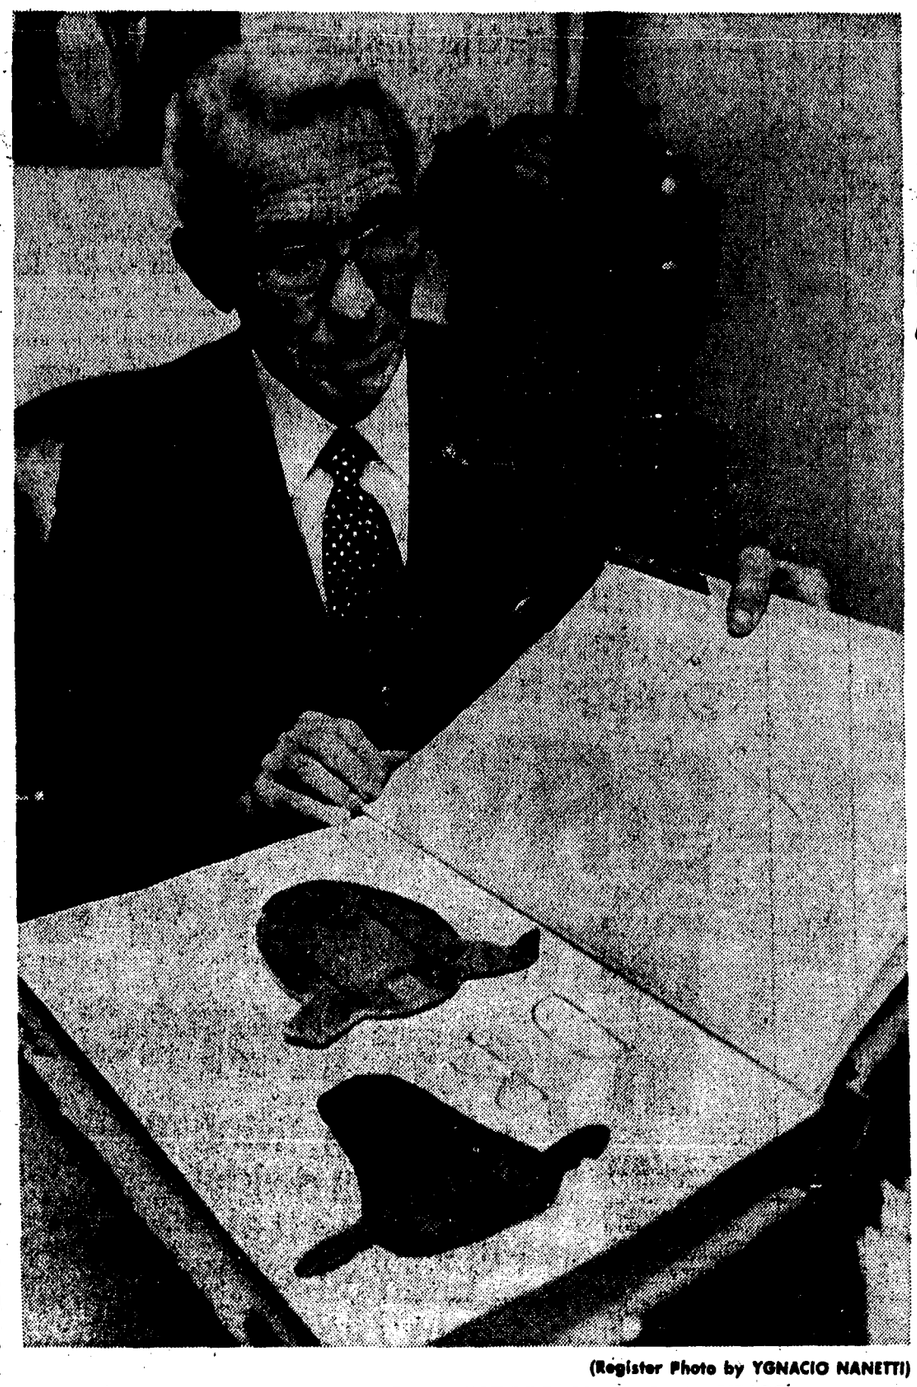
The study proposed reduction or elimination of what it termed "marginally useful or highly vulnerable weapons such as the Nike-Hercules anitaircraft missile, the old Honest John battlefield bombardement missile, nuclear land mines and "quick reaction alert forces" which include fighter-bombers armed with nuclear weapons for use against ground targets.

The congressional analysts discounted the value of U.S. tactical nuclear weapons in deterring a Soviet attack mounted with conventional forces, or in repelling such a tank-led assault by Russian armies.

With the growth of Russia's own tactical nuclear power over the past 20 years, the study said, it has become risky to use U.S. tactical nuclear weapons to support NATO's conventional forces "if these were to falter."

Rites Monday For Mrs. Ella Hasenjaeger, 91

SANTA ANA – Services will be held Monday for Ella Hasenjaeger, who died at her home Friday. She was 91.



Mrs. Hasenjaeger, 938 Riviera Drive, had lived in Santa Ana 50 years. She was the widow of the late A.C. "Ace" Hasenjaeger, reported to be the dean of California bankers. They had been married for more than 60 years before his death in 1964. He was president of United California Bank, Santa Ana, at the time of his death.

She was born in Marthasville, Mo., Dec. 29, 1885, and was a member of Trinity United Presbyterian Church here since 1927.

Services at Winbigler Family Mortuary are scheduled for 11 a.m. Monday with the Rev. George Munzing officiating.

Burial will be at Pacific View Memorial Park, Huntington Beach.

She is a survived by a son, Lee of Santa Ana; four brothers, Orrie Ahmann, Los Angeles; Erin Ahmann, Whittier; Omer Ahmann, Laytonville, Calif.; Lando Ahmann of Missouri; two sisters, Nora Mestmaker of Oregon and Lydia Mettler of Santa Ana; four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

ORANGE COUNTY REGISTERED CATTLE BRANDS FOR 27 YEARS
Recorder Wylie Carlyle with Ledger, James Irvine and Alviso Brands

History Of OC Ranches Branded On Old Ledger

By SANDI MOSLEY
Register Staff Writer

A slow-moving steer plods along a dry creekbed at the bottom of a rugged canyon piercing the lush, rolling foothills of Orange County's back country.

Two large initials – J I – burned onto its left hip would tell an observant cattleman who owns the steer.

But he couldn't tell without a real close look at a picture of that bucolic setting whether it were taken in the late 1800s or yesterday.

The "J I" brand was first registered in Orange County July 25, 1892 by James Irvine II, the year he inherited the Irvine Ranch.

The oldest brand still in use in the county, it was altered only slightly in 1959, when a bar was added under the initials to avoid duplicating the brand of a Northern California ranch.

"The purpose of a brand is the same now as it was in the Old West, proof of ownership," said Jim Sawyer, supervising brand inspector for seven Southern California counties.

"And rustling is still a problem."

About 37,000 brands are registered in the state. In Orange County, despite suburban sprawl, a housing boom and rapid urbanization, there are still more than 100 brands on file with the state.

Cortez brought the practice of branding to the western hemisphere, and before California became a state in 1850, brands were being recorded either in Mexico or the territorial capital.

The first brand used in the county belonged to Mission San Juan Capistrano, an iron with linking capitals, CAP.

Bernardo Yorba, co-owner of the first Spanish land grant awarded in the county in 1810, reportedly began using the first family ranch brands in 1826.

"Most of the Yorba brands started off as simple lines or circles, but curliques were added as each child took part of the herd," said Jim Sleeper, Orange County historian who owns 150 old county branding irons. "In the end, you had a whole geneology."

When California became a state, ranchers registered their brands as legal proof of ownership in the counties where the cattle roamed.

A permanent, if incomplete, record of the brands used in Orange County still exists in the county recorder's office.

On 14 yellowed pages of a ledger book are the freehand drawings of 33 county brands. A box, still kept in County Recorder Wylie Carlyle's storeroom, holds 33 pieces of leather, each marked with one of the brands.

The Rosenbaum ranch of San Juan Capistrano was the first to register its brand in Orange County, and a drawing of its scythe-like brand was entered in book one, page one of the county recorder's brand book April 15, 1890, 15 minutes past 11 a.m., less than a year after Orange County was carved out of Los Angeles County.

Henry G. Rosenbaum may have been a rancher, but Sleeper gives him credit as being the first person to sell Christmas trees in California and producer of the first professional play in Orange County.

The county registered brands up to 1917, when the state took over the job. One of the last brands registered by the county went to the Southern California Edison Co., which no longer runs cattle anywhere in the state.

The Sunset Gun Club in 1911 registered a brand with an initial "S" inside a crescent. William D. Lamb in 1891 filed his brand as a simple "L."

"MB" will forever be known only as the brand of "Miss Blackman," who registered that way Feb. 20, 1892. G.L. Bayless in 1914 registered the initial "X" as his brand.

E.D. Music's brand, registered for 50 cents Jan. 20, 1899, was a simple cross.

Missing from the county's file are brands of such historic ranches as the Eugene Starr Ranch, the Santa Margarita Ranch (now Richard O'Neill's Rancho Mission Viejo) and those used by the 21 Spanish land grant ranchos in the county.

The Starr Ranch, now an

Economy Boost May Stimulate More Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) – The rate of growth in the economy this year will probably be slower than last year, the Commerce Department said Saturday. But it added the growth should be enough to reduce unemployment without stimulating inflation.

The broad economic assessment was given by chief economist John W. Kendrick as part of the agency's annual industrial outlook publication. It was written before President-elect Carter unveiled his $30 billion economic stimulus package Friday.

Kendrick said the rise in consumer prices in 1977 is projected to remain close to last year's gain of less than 6 per cent.

With the help of the government's massive computer model of the U.S. economy, Kendrick forecast a growth rate of 5 per cent in the volume of total economic output this year with the possibility of "somewhat faster" growth through a tax rebate and other stimuli.

That's a slower pace of growth than the 6 per cent expected for 1976 as a whole when the final figures are tabulated. But that would still be an improvement over the mid-1976 performance, when economic growth was at annual rates of 4.5 per cent in the April-September period.

Kendrick estimated that even without stimulus, growth should be strong enough to cut unemployment, currently at 8.1 per cent, to an average of 7 per cent for the year.

He also cited several encouraging factors on inflation: no major imbalances between business inventories and sales, no signs of materials bottlenecks which fueled inflation in 1973, and adequate excess industrial capacity to absorb the expected growth in output without quickening the pace of inflation.

Kendrick said current policies imply slow progress in reducing the unemployment rate after 1977.

"This would suggest the need for new economic policies if the nation is to return to relatively full employment by 1980 and simultaneously continue to unwind from inflation," he said.

Kendrick describes himself as an independent politically. He assumed his post at Commerce this summer on leave from George Washington University in the capital.

Beyond the general economic outlook for the nation, the Commerce review

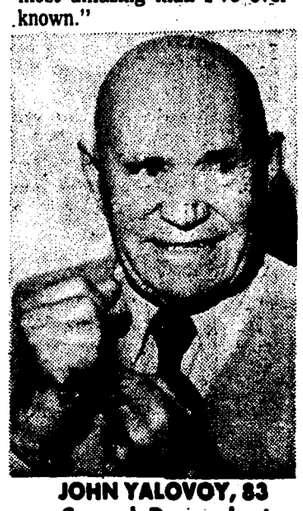
Man, 83, Routs Armed SF Thug

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) – It takes more than a young hoodlum with a shotgun to get the best of 83-year-old John Yalovoy.

"Nobody's going to shoot me without a fight," the descendant of Cossacks said after he fought off a gunman near the University of San Francisco.

Sporting a lump on the side of his face, Yalovoy sipped coffee as he told newsmen of his run-in with a would-be killer.

The painting company owner was discussing a planned job at USF with Paul Waddington, the campus plant supervisor, when they were accosted on a sidewalk about 7 a.m. Friday.



Yalovoy said a man about 21 walked up and drew a sawed-off shotgun from a plastic bag and ordered them to lie down. "I'm going to shoot you,'" Yalovoy quoted him as saying. "I'm going to blow your heads off."

"I felt if we lay down on the sidewalk we'd both be shot and killed," Yalovoy said. "So, even though I am an old man, I grabbed the gun."

At the same time, Waddington gave the assailant a shove and ran to a passing campus security car. Yalovoy wrestled with the attacker and was punched twice in the face.

"He hit me twice," said Yalovoy, "so I let go and ran. And he ran too, but in the other direction."

Two hours later, Waddington said he was still shaking, but he had nothing but praise for Yalovoy, calling him "the most amazing man I've ever known."

Commodity Chief Foresees Evasion Of 'Sunshine Law'

By TIM SKROVE
Register Staff Writer

ANAHEIM – Federal regulatory agencies should consider the 24-year evolution of California's open meeting laws when drafting new regulations called for in the "Government in the Sunshine Act," which takes effect March 12.

William T. Bagley, chairman of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC), predicted before a meeting of Town Hall of California here Friday there will be attempts in Washington, D.C. to find "evasive devices" to avoid provisions of the act.

Passed by Congress last year, the sunshine legislation will require federal commissions and boards to hold open meetings and open the business of most agencies to the public.

Bagley, an unsuccessful canddiate for state controller in 1974, said he will try to inform those in Washington that those devices, which have been thrown out in California during the past 24 years, won't work.

In a letter to be released to the 45 federal regulatory agencies besides the CFTC, Bagley said he proposes that federal agencies adopt "pro-

Tax Law Changes Affect Everyone

By RAY DE CRANE

Congress set out last year to simplify the income tax law and to streamline the tax form. Sounds familiar, doesn't it?

The results were about the same, perhaps worse, than the last time the tax law was "simplified."

After months of hearings and debates, a massive document, the 1,500-page Tax Reform Act of 1976, was produced.

"You will probably find that the computations on the 1040A Form are more difficult," he confessed.

That's on the 1040A Form, the one we used to call the quickie Short Form. If that has become complicated, imagine what has happened to Form 1040, the long form?

The series beginning with this installment will help readers through the tax maze this year.

No one has been spared in the new law. There are changes affecting average workers, investors, retirees, even the sick and the disabled.

For some the news is good, meaning their taxes will be lower. Others will be penalized with the loss of valuable deductions they had counted on.

In following installments, all of the new tax law changes that affect the average individual will be explained in simple, down-to-earth language.

In addition, all the old standby deductions, with some valuable tips on how you can get more of them legally, will be explained.

It is recommended that you clip and save the complete series as a helpful guide when you sit down to do your own tax return.

Even more information, together with filled-in samples and step-by-step instructions for a variety of tax forms is available in the book, "Cut Your Own Taxes and Save,"

(NEXT: More Chances for error.)

CUT YOUR OWN TAXES – PART 1

There are those who insist it might be more appropriately called "The Attorneys' and Tax Accountants' Relief Act of 1976."

Though the bill was passed in September and signed by the President in October, some of its provisions were made retroactive to Jan. 1, 1976. This had the effect in at least one situation – the sick pay exclusion – of wiping out some tax-savings opportunities many people thought they had "earned" nine months earlier.

Other tax changes become effective Jan. 1 this year and still more changes will begin next Jan. 1.

So much confusion has been generated by the new law that when Internal Revenue Commissioner Donald C. Alexander released the new tax forms he did it with an apology.

AT CONVENTION IN HAWAII

Waitress Guest Of Former Marine Pilots

By DAVE ROSE
Register Staff Writer

TUSTIN – The shadows of the war they fought in the Pacific grow a little longer each year.

And so do the stories.

The tales are told and retold with emboldened embellishment twice a year at the Revere House where former Marine Corps enlisted pilots come from all over the U.S. for semi-annual get togethers.

They first met at the Revere House in 1960, an informal little convention that grew into an organization called the Marine Corps Enlisted Pilots Association.

And there to wait on them at that first dinner meeting was Marie Stahr. She hasn't missed one since.

They called her "the happy gal" and Marie thought they were about the best bunch of guys she'd every met.

Last July they finished plans for the next meeting in Hawaii, the first one away from the Revere House.

Suddenly, one ex-pilot jumped up and said "Hey, let's take Marie."

President Tom Lennen, who runs a flying school at the county airport, took a quick look at the books and replied that they sure as heck could afford it.

"I was shocked," Marie said recently. "I couldn't believe it. It's wonderful."

Lennen hastened to explain that this trip, unlike all the others, is strictly coed. All the guys are taking their wives.

Because of this new wrinkle, some members will be attending their first meeting. "Some of those married guys couldn't get out alone, no matter how old they are," Lennen laughed.

Fact of the matter is, none are that old. Most are in their early and mid-50s – lawyers, doctors, engineers and one who owns his own aeronautics company.

Willie Wamel makes tennis racquets in Huntington Beach and Tom Mooney flies for movie stunt pilot Frank Tallman. And Bob Arthur of Newport Beach was the last pilot to fly off Wake Island. He was shot down and captured, ending his war.

Mooney is currently flying those Corsairs in the TV series "Baa Baa Blacksheep." It's a snap for Mooney. He flew in Pappy Boyington's Black Sheep squadron (officially Squadron 214) in the Solomons where Boyington won his Medal of Honor and the squadron everlasting fame.

So did Wamel and Lennen. Lennen doesn't like to delve too deeply into Boyington. It might tarnish Boyington's current TV image as a flippant, brash renegade, he says. "You can just say he was a fabulous person, not like what you see on TV, and of course a helluva pilot."

What made the squadron so outstanding, Lenned said, was the fact that "they were all people who were individualists.

"In combat, it takes teamwork, but you have to have a bunch of gung ho individualists too. And of course, Boyington was a great leader. You know, it all boils down to who do you follow?"

Enlisted pilots, intentionally or not, were one of the better kept secrets in the Marine Corps, at least as far as the public was concerned. But they go back to World War I and the last four retired from active duty only four years ago. They are no more. Few people know they ever existed. All the big aces you read about were lieutenants and captains and colonels.

Lennen has a ready explanation for this. If an enlisted pilot scored himself a few kills, he won himself a meritorious field commission.

U.S. To Improve Control Over Baltic Sea Flights

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) – The U.S. air attache says that America is prepared to improve flight controls over the Baltic Sea after reports of U.S. surveillance aircraft nearly colliding with civilian planes.

The latest incident took place last Wednesday, according to the Stockholm daily Dagens Nyheter. It said a U.S. Air Force Boeing 707 on a surveillance mission crossed a civilian air corridor at about 30,000 feet, just 300 feet in front of a Russian Aeroflot jetliner en route from Copenhagen to Moscow.

"We are as anxious as all other countries to maintain air security," said the American attache, Henry West. "As soon as we have the Swedish National Civil Aviation Administration's report of the incident we will consider possible actions."

West said he would have no further comment until he received the report.

Commenting on the incident Wednesday, the Civil Aviation Administration said the U.S. aircraft had not filed the required written notice that it would enter the civilian corridor that stretches from the Western Europe to Moscow and is known as Green 24.

"From an air safety point of view we consider this incident a very serious one," Ake Gustafsson, director of the aviation administration, told reporters. "As we don't know where the American plane came from, we have written to the U.S. Embassy and asked them to take steps to prevent any recurrences."

Dagens Nyheter said that on the same day last September, a U.S. surveillance craft came close to colliding with two different civilian planes in the Green 24 corridor.

It reported the American plane first crossed in front of a Japan Air Lines DC8 bound for Moscow and then flew head-on toward a Finnair Caravelle jet, forcing the Finnish plane to take evasive action.

"Almost once a week surveillance aircraft – both from the East and the West – fly off course," a Swedish air force spokesman said.

"If those planes enter Swedish territory we send up our own fighters to mark out the correct course and steer them into it," he added.

A spokesman for the Foreign Ministry said it did not plan to take any action over the latest incident.

"We can not interfere in incidents that took place over international waters," he said. "Possibly we could take the matter up with the U.S. Embassy if it is proved that the pilot was violating international regulations. But this is likely to be a matter between the Civil Aviation Administration and the embassy."

AWOL Marine Must Pay Fine

CAMP PENDLETON (AP) – A third Ku Klux Klansman who missed a subpoenaed appearance at a court hearing for a black Marine has been fined $70 for a day's unauthorized absence.

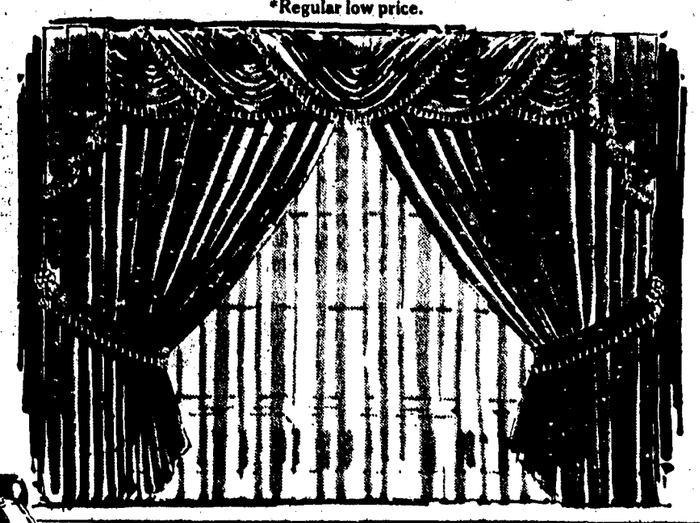
The company punishment was given Pfc. Dennis L. Campbell, 22, of Smithcreek, Mich., after two buddies got fines. All three Marines claim membership in the Klan.

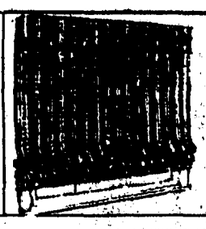
Pfc. Ronnie Harper, 19, of Pensacola, Fla., was fined $50 and Pfc. Charles V. Smith, 18, of Houston was ordered to pay $300.

Astronaut Well After Surgery

HOUSTON (AP) – James B. Irwin, the eighth astronaut to walk on the moon, was in satisfactory condition after triple bypass heart surgery at the Texas Heart Institute.

"He is still in intensive care but is doing very well," said a spokesman at St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital.





"His condition is stable and there are no complications."

The spokesman said the surgery involved replacement of three vein segments with veins removed from Irwin's legs.

Irwin was the lunar module pilot on the Apollo 15 mission of July 26 to Aug. 7, 1971.

NAMES IN THE NEWS

Britain's Princess Called On Carpet

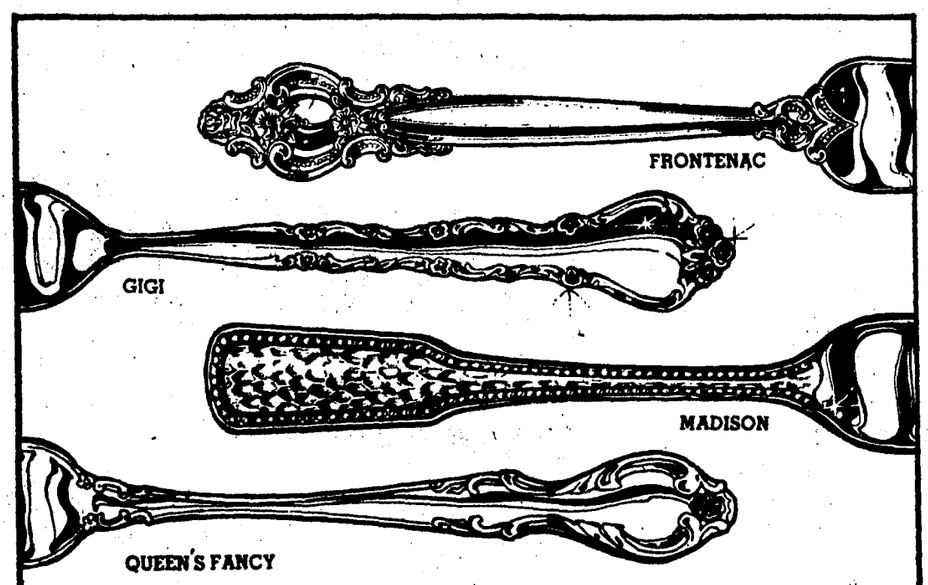
PRINCESS ANNE must appear in a local magistrates court in Alfreton, England, Jan. 21 to answer a summons for a speeding violation. The summons alleged that Princess Anne exceeded Britain's 70 mile per hour speed limit on an expressway in Derbyshire in November, police said. She was said to have been going 90 m.p.h. The maximum penalty for speeding is a fine of 100 pounds ($170). The magistrates could disqualify the princess from driving for a stated period and she would be compelled also to endorse her driving license. Three such endorsements would mean the loss of her license for a year.

The new Soviet ambassador to the United Nations, OLEG A. TROYANOVSKY, has presented his credentials to Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim at the United Nations in New York. The 57-year-old envoy then met with reporters and said, "It is my hope to have good contracts with the press here at the UN." The former Soviet ambassador to Japan called the United Nations a "good instrument of detente" and added, "Since the elections are over, I think we can use that word again." He replaces JACOB MALIK, 70, who was transferred to the Foreign Ministry in Moscow.

The nation's top federal health officer, Dr. THEODORE COOPER, says he will leave his post in Washington when the Carter administration comes in Jan. 20. Cooper, assistant secretary for health of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, told staff members he would not try to stay on with the Democratic administration, an HEW spokesman confirmed. Cooper, a Democrat, earlier was thought to have a chance of retaining his position, sources said. Much of Cooper's time last year was spent running the controversial swine flu immunization program, which has been suspended indefinitely because of a possible link between the vaccine and a paralytic disease.

Sen. DEWEY BARTLETT, R-Okla., will not learn until Tuesday whether a spot on his right lung is cancerous, Tony Garrett, the senator's press secretary, said in Washington. Bartlett was admitted to Bethesda Naval Hospital after an X ray taken during a routine physical examination by the Capitol physician, Dr. Freeman H. Cary, showed a spot on his lung.

G. GORDON LIDDY, imprisoned for plotting and supervising the Watergate burglary, has arrived at the minimum security Allenwood (Pa.) Federal Prison Camp. Liddy, who has spent nearly four years in jail, was transferred from the medium security prison at Danbury, Conn., where he was sent after his conviction four years ago. Liddy was convicted of conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping. He was sentenced to six years and four months to 20 years, plus an additional 18 months for refusing to testify under immunity to a grand jury.



WILLIAM DOUGLAS PAWLEY, a former U.S. ambassador and aviation specialist who established airlines in several countries, has died in Miami Beach, Fla., of a self-inflicted gunshot wound, police said. He was 80 years old. Pawley, in failing health in recent years, was pronounced dead at a local hospital where he was rushed by ambulance, officers said. Further details were not immediately disclosed.

CLINT EASTWOOD, in Las Vegas to prepare for filming "The Gauntlet," says he doesn't plan any more "Dirty Harry" movies. Eastwood said that unless a really good script comes along, "The Enforcer" will be his final movie as Dirty Harry. "The Gauntlet" will feature Eastwood as an Arizona detective.

Former president Richard M. Nixon's close friend, CHARLES G. "BEBE" REBOZO, has settled a dispute with the Internal Revenue Service by agreeing to pay federal income taxes totaling $52,474 plus interest for 1970 and 1971, court records show in Washington. The records filed with the U.S. Tax Court show the IRS claimed that Rebozo, a banker from Key Biscayne, Fla., received taxable income of $222,334 during those two years, but reported only $62,722 on his returns.

PATSY MINK, a long-time congresswoman from Hawaii, will be named assistant secretary of state for ocean and environmental affairs, it was learned in Washington. President-elect Carter will make the appointment soon, informed sources said. Mrs. Mink, 49, served in Congress from 1964 until this month. She was defeated in the Democratic primary for the Senate and was precluded from seeking a return to the House.

IRVINE H. SPRAGUE has been named in Washington to be executive director of the House Democratic Steering and Policy Committee. Sprague for five years had headed the staff of the House majority whip. Previously he had been deputy director of finance for the state of California.

Ford Sends Congress Energy Proposal Package

WASHINGTON (AP) – President Ford has sent Congress a barrage of energy proposals but failed to include in the list his politically touchy proposal to lift price controls from gasoline.

Ford's recommendations amounted to a summary of his earlier energy proposals, ranging from decontrol of prices on newly-discovered natural gas to easing federal clean air requirements. He also said he would send Congress within the next few days recommendations on reorganizing the government's energy and natural resource activities.

Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb said it is still "highly likely" that Ford will act to remove price controls from gasoline. He said the omission of the subject from his energy message does not mean the President is having second-thoughts about it, even though the announcement has now been delayed several times.

If Ford lifts the gasoline price limits, Congress has 15 days in which it may block the plan. The proposal has already drawn considerable cricitism from congressional Democrats, who say it will mean higher prices at the gasoline pump, and from some Republicans who have questioned the wisdom of such a move so late in Ford's term.

The message reiterates about two-dozen specific legislative recommendations of the Ford administration. Ford gave the following the highest priority:

– Removal of price regulation from newly-discovered natural gas as a means of "increasing domestic production and reducing wasteful and inefficient uses."

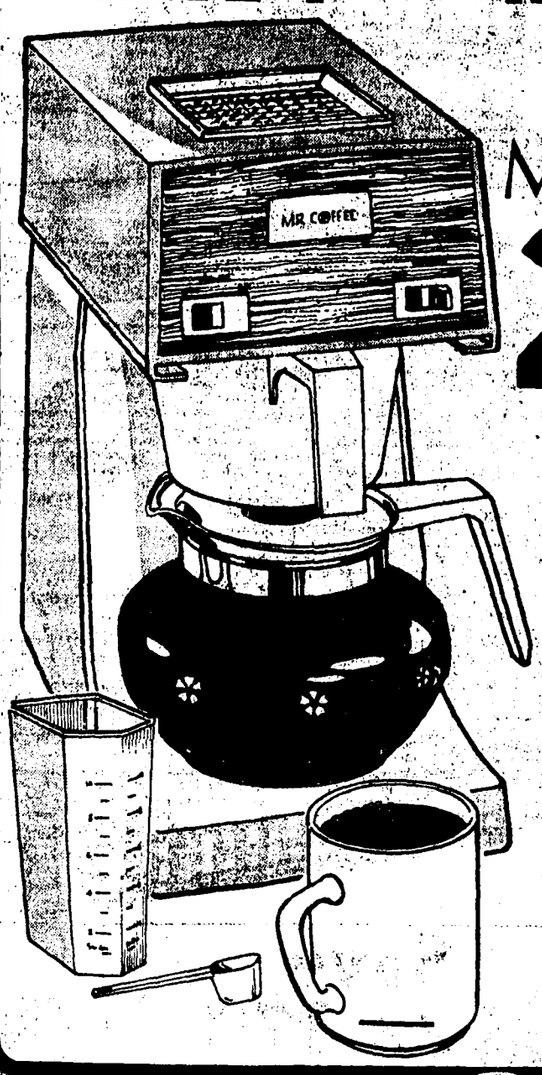
– Revision of domestic crude oil price controls to "allow greater flexibility."

– Giving the government the authority to enter into agreements with private industry to reprocess uranium so there will be an adequate supply of nuclear fuel for atomic power plants.

– Amending the Clean Air Act to ease auto emission standards, allow the stepped-up use of coal and to remove current restrictions on new sources of air pollution in areas now meeting air quality standards.

San Clemente Pact Awarded

SAN CLEMENTE – A $31,450 contract has been awarded by the city to Instrumentation and Mechanical Systems, Inc., Fullerton, for repairs to the electronic burner controls of the sewer plant sludge furnace.



The city council considered hauling the sludge to a dump but were advised by City Engineer Phil Peter that it would cost more.

Heiress To Quit Jamaica After Assault By Gunmen

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) – Lady Sarah Spencer-Churchill, a Vanderbilt heiress, is reported planning to leave Jamaica following a raid on her resort home near Montego Bay in which four gunmen shot a house guest and attacked her.

Police Inspector Oliver Grandison issued an official police statement that said one of the gunmen held a revolver at the throat of Lady Sarah, forced her into a bedroom and raped her.

Lady Sarah was quoted by the London Daily Mail as saying one gunman "picked me up and slung me over his shoulder and took me down to the maid's room and assaulted me. There was nothing I could do."

Her first husband, Edwin F. Russell of Harrisburg, Pa., said Friday she told him by telephone she was not raped. "She was attacked and rape was attempted," he said.

After the attack, Lady Sarah escaped out a side door and hid in the bushes near her house in the Montego Bay suburb of Reading until about 5 a.m. The robbers fled with cash and jewelry worth $400, police said.

House guest Michael Zell, a 33-year-old Hungarian-born interior decorator, was hospitalized after being shot in the left shoulder by the intruders, who police said broke into Lady Sarah's home suburb about 3 a.m. Thursday.

"We are taking this investigation very seriously," said Grandison, who predicted an arrest would be made soon.

Squads of armed police concentrated their efforts in a wooded area in the St. James Parish, just east of Montego Bay.

The four gunmen rampaged through the Montego Bay suburb of Reading along Jamaica's north coast early Thursday morning. A man identified only as Joseph was shot near the home of one of Lady Sarah's neighbors, Dr. Herbert Eldemire.

Eldemire, who once served in Jamaica's parliament, barricaded himself in a bedroom and threw $70 out of a window to the raiders. Authorities said the robbers got away with a still undisclosed amount of money.

Lady Sarah inherited a sizable fortune from her American grandmother, the late Consuelo Vanderbilt Balsan.

CHICAGO DEMOCRAT PARTY FUND PROBE DEMANDED

CHICAGO (AP) – Two independent Democrats are demanding a full accounting of party funds that remain secret 18 days after Mayor Richard J. Daley's death.

It would be the first full disclosure of the Chicago Democratic organization's tightly guarded finances since Daley took over the purse strings 23 years ago.

The two members of the Cook County Democratic Committee, Alan Dobry and Lynn Williams, said they want to know how much money the party has, who contributed it and where the funds have been spent. They also want to know who controls the party treasury with Daley gone.

George W. Dunne, who replaced Daley as Cook County Democratic chairman, said he has taken control of two party funds. But he said he does not know how many other funds may exist.

Dunne said he has been assured by Michael Daley, a son of the late mayor who died Dec. 20, that an audit of the party funds is under way.

The younger Daley has been the guardian of the party vault for a number of years, but it was the mayor who signed the checks.

Ukrainian Dissidents Smuggle Out 'Independence' Document

WASHINGTON (AP) – A Ukrainian dissident group has smuggled to the West a declaration of principles pledged to both human rights and possible independence from the Soviet Union.

The declaration was adopted by Pyotr Grigerenko, a World War II Soviet general, and nine other dissidents at a meeting in Kiev in November in the apartment of Mykola Rudenko, an author.

A Ukrainian emigre writer, who provided a reporter with what was said to be a translated version of the declaration, said the group has been harassed by Soviet secret police who searched their homes for the declaration and other documents considered provocative by authorities.

The group in Kiev parallels another union of dissidents in Moscow who were the targets of raids earlier this week. Both groups were formed with the avowed purpose of monitoring Soviet compliance with the human rights provisions of the 1975 Helsinki accord on European security and cooperation.

The East-West agreement signed by 35 nations, including the Soviet Union and the United States, tacitly affirmed the post-war territorial expansion of Communist governments while also giving assurances of freer movement of people and ideas.

The Ukraine was absorbed into the Soviet Union in 1922 as a sovereign state. It has a seat at the United Nations. According to the dissidents, it is entitled to separate representation at the European security conference and be granted greater sovereignty by Moscow.

Brand History

Audubon bird sanctuary and county wilderness park, didn't begin using its brand, a Y with L drawn over it, until the late 1930s.

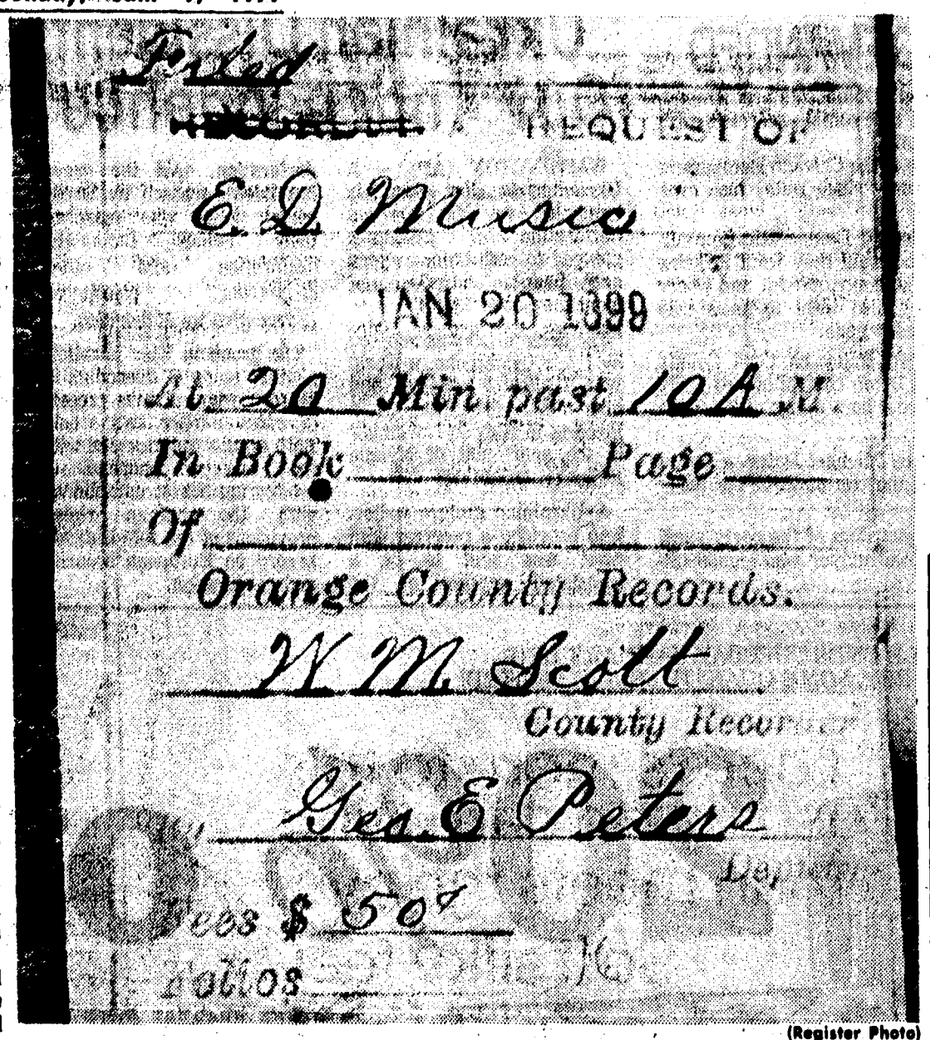
The ranchos' brands, like the Santa Margarita's with its unexplained use of a small "T" over a larger "O," were registered somewhere else. The O'Neill ranch now uses a "rafter tail M," a brand registered in the 1940s that looks like a line drawing of a seagull over a heart with its bottom half cut off.

The Moulton Ranch's long-used "LM" brand disappeared from the county last year with purchase of the ranch by the Mission Viejo Co. Chuck Dunn, regional brand inspector, said Louise Moulton, one of the four largest cattle ranchers in the county with O'Neill, Irvine and Roy Visbeek's San Clemente spread, has moved her stock to Buellton.

Once registered, a brand was forever the property of the ranch that used it, but sometime through the years, the state agriculture department began requiring annual renewal, at $10, to protect a brand.

Ranchers are not required to use a brand, but if they use one, it must be registered with the state, Sawyer said.

According to a state agricultural bulletin, brands must be readily recognizable and lend themselves to verbal description. Brands, obviously, cannot be registered to more than one ranch, but a ranch can have more than one brand.



For that matter, anyone with $10 and an imagination can register a drawing, even if he has no stock to use it on.

"After the state started registering brands, we used to keep them by sections, so one ranch in Southern California and another one up north could use the same insignia," Sawyer said. "But because of fast transportation in these later years, we can't do that anymore."

State brand inspectors are the peacekeepers of the New West. They watch for brands of reported missing cattle at auctions, slaughterhouses, feed lots and the state line.

A "hot sheet" is distributed throughout the state weekly listing the brands of missing cattle.

"Rustling is a big problem when calves are high and feed is low," Sawyer said. "There isn't much rustling now, with feed so high; anybody who steals a load of calves can't afford to feed them."

Marine Pilots

Ken Walsh of Santa Ana was one. He became an enlisted pilot in 1937. Then came the war and Guadalcanal, and 21 Japanese planes shot down, a Medal of Honor and retirement as a lieutenant colonel.

Says Walsh of his enlisted pilot's training: "The big thing was the opportunity to get those wings. It was a valuable experience, I owe my life to it. When I got out there, I was ready."

There are 283 of these former Marine enlisted pilots in the association. Each July and January, anywhere from 70-80 fly in from North Carolina, Illinois, New York, Texas, just about every state (there are 78 in Orange, San Diego and Los Angeles counties alone) and sometimes as far away as West Germany and Bangkok for the bash at the Revere House.

They've planned for over a year for this next one – a week in Honolulu beginning Monday.

They're not as boisterous now. The mileage is beginning to show.

Lennen put it this way: "The hair gets thinner, the lies get bigger and we're a little quieter now.

"We used to chirp and burp until six in the morning. Now it breaks up at midnight."

Thirty years is a long time.

cedural protections" against loopholes in the law that California experience has shown will be proposed by federal bureaucrats.

Speaking to the Town Hall gathering at the Disneyland Hotel, Bagley said "Washington is isolated from the public." It is a place where bureaucrats, instead of feeling the pulse of the public, "go around feeling their own pulse," he said.

Bagley said if the loopholes are closed in advance, another 24 years of legal maneuvering can be avoided.

Along with the letter, Bagley will send an 18-page report outlining the legal history of California's open meeting laws which began in 1953 with passage of the Ralph M. Brown Act.

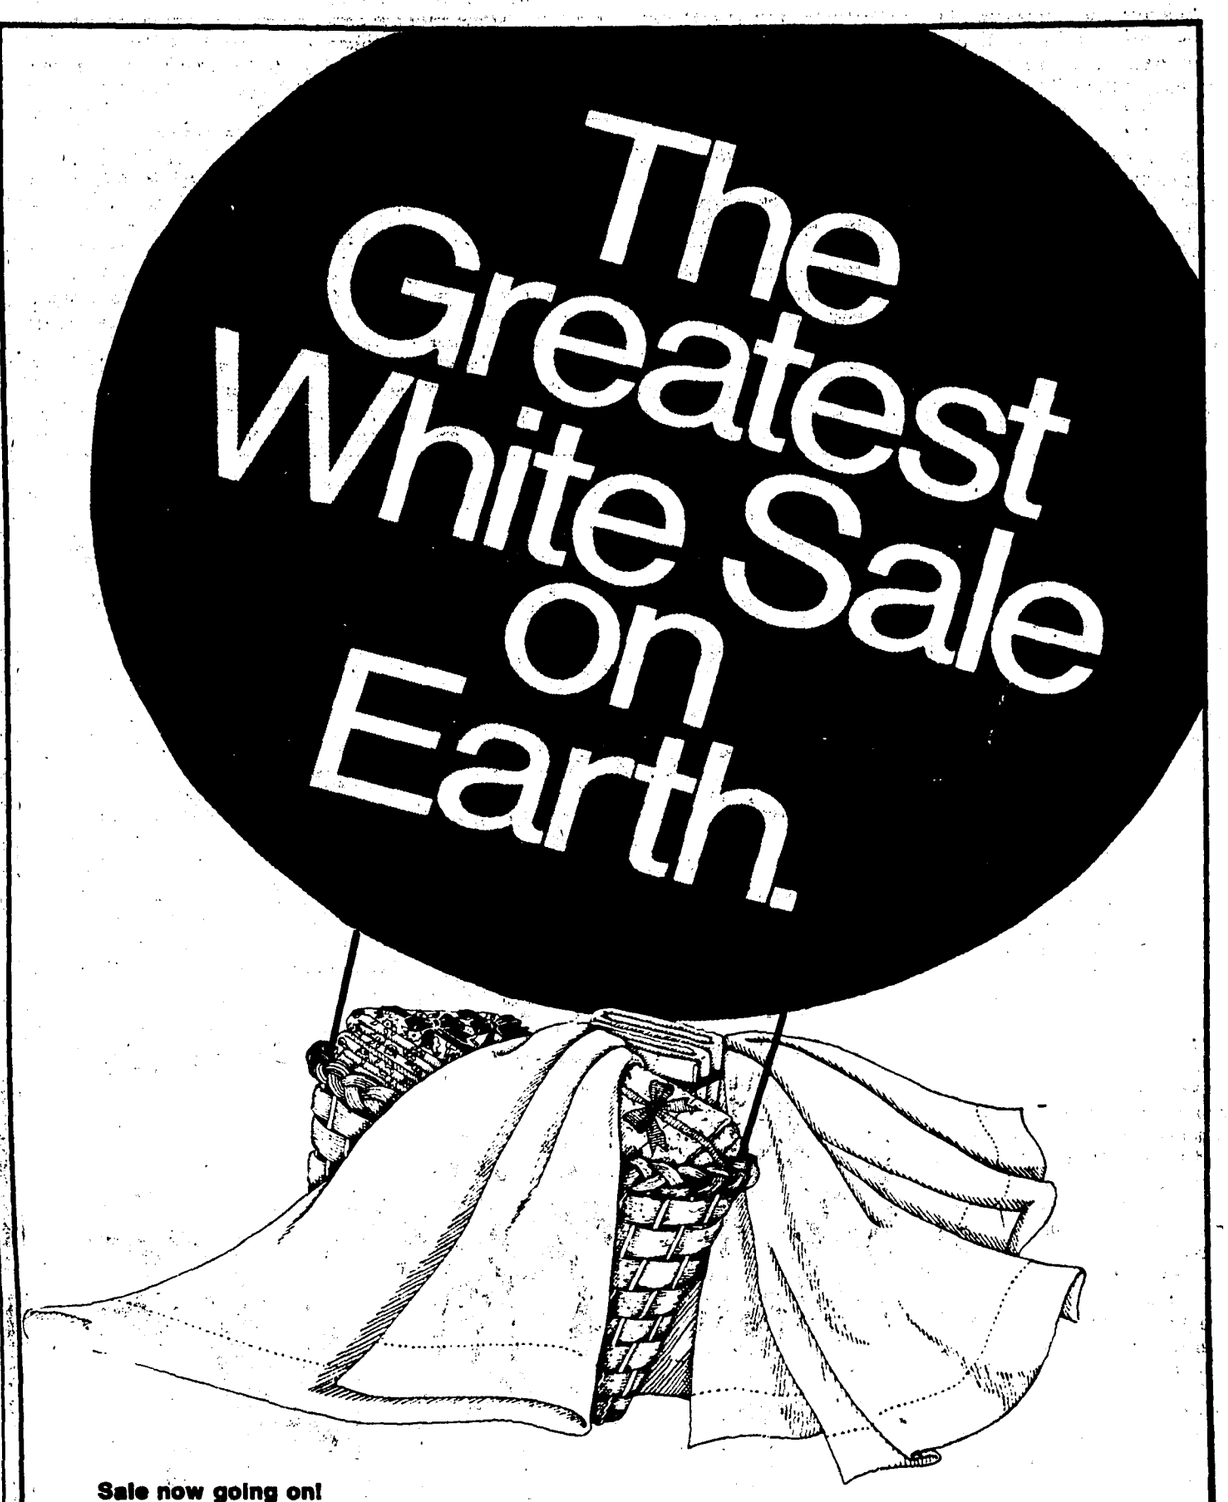
Bagley said a cabinet position is needed on regulatory affairs – backed by a system of under secretaries – that would ultimately make the President accountable for the activities of regulatory agencies.

Bagley said such agencies now are independent and have no accountability, answering only to "God and Congress."

But Bagley said that idea is not practical now.

He suggested that a periodic review of regulatory agencies now would give Congress a chance to change the structure of commissions and agencies.

Responding to an audience question, Bagley said it is conceivable that the United States Supreme Court may someday rule that regulatory agencies, which now act as judge and jury during hearings, are unconstitutional.



Now, the law states that regulatory agencies do not deny due process to the industries they control.

assessed the prospects for 200 major business sectors accounting for 85 per cent of the nation's manufacturing shipments.

The industry-by-industry breakdown showed that for 91 of those sectors production is expected to gain by more than 10 per cent.

Although the honor of biggest increase went to the relatively small cottonseed oil milling industry with a 37 per cent jump forecast, the Commerce specialists also placed the vital construction, auto, steel retail trade and aerospace industries in the 10 per cent or better category.

Australian New Newspaper Baron Of New York City

NEW YORK (AP) – Newspaper publishing baron Rupert Murdoch won his battle for control of the New York Magazine Co. on Friday with an out-of-court settlement that included the resignations of president and editor Clay Felker and art director Milton Glaser.

At a board meeting that followed the settlement Friday night, Murdoch was named the chief executive officer of the company which publishes New York and New West magazines and the Village Voice weekly newspaper.

Murdoch, who acquired the New York Post for $31 million lavt week, announced that he would purchase the stock owned by Felker, who had been chief executive officer, and Glaser. That stock, amounting to more than 10 per cent, would give Murdoch more than 60 per cent of the company's stock, which he has purchased for $8.25 a share. Thus far, he has spent more than $9 million to purchase company stock.

In a statement released after the board meeting Murdoch said, "New York, New West and the Village Voice will continue to operate with the same editorial independence and integrity. Each has established a vital individuality and style that will be preserved and encouraged at all costs."

Felker, who turned down an offer to remain with New York magazine, won release from a clause in his contract that would have kept him from working for another publication for two years. He told New York magazine staff writers that he intended to start a new magazine with the $1.5 million he got from the sale of his stock.

Writer Richard Reeves, who said he had lost his job – he earlier had said he wouldn't work for Murdoch – said he did not know what Felker had in mind.

Asked where Felker was, Reeves said, "I don't know. If I were him I'd be getting drunk. He spent 10 years building something up and had it stolen from him."

In a separate statement, the board of directors said the managing editors of the three publications would be offered two-year contracts "and sole editorial control" of the material published in their magazine or newspaper.

Additionally, the board said Felker had been given the authority to select 10 senior executives and journalists who would be offered two-year contracts.

The board repeated Murdoch's earlier announced intention to make an offer, within the next 120 days, to all stockholders in the company to purchase their stock at $8.25 a share.

"We are committed to the further development of the excellence that has marked the writing in New York and New West from their inception," Murdoch said.

"We will continue to seek out and publish the best American writers on politics, the arts and lifestyle.

"Equally inviolate will be the fresh, provocative and liberal tradition of the Village Voice," he said.

The action came after a federal judge lifted a temporary restraining order. That action had prevented Murdoch from purchasing 24 per cent of the company's stock which was owned by City Councilman Carter Burden. But that fight ended with Felker's resignation.

It was not clear how many of the publications' writers would keep their jobs, since many of them had threatened to quit if Murdoch, who owns 88 newspapers and 13 magazines on three continents, won control of the company.

Murdoch said it was his "profound hope that everybody at the three publications will stay on – staff members, contributing writers and all involved in their production. Their exceptional talents are keenly appreciated and we are inviting them to help us face the challenges and realize the immense promise of the future."

Murdoch, who has lived in New York for three years, is a study in energy and concentration. He listens intently during conversations, darting into them with specific questions and with opinions often phrased in the form of questions.

The controversy he has created here, in which some writers and editors of the New York Magazine Co. publications tried to stop his purchase of their publications, revolves around speculation over what he will do with the editorial content of his new properties.

The fear of some is that he will follow a pattern used with the San Antonio, Tex., News, London Sun and others. That basically is publishing a newspaper for the lowest common denominator element, one in which explicit stories about sex and crime and racy pictures are the focus.

While Murdoch defends his various publications as being designed for a particular audience, he says New Yorkers need not worry that the character of the Post and the other publications will change.

"We want a better newspaper with more news of the city. It will be crisper and brighter, with more business news, more sports, better use of pictures, but we will not alter the basic character of the Post, or of New York magazine," he said.

When he won control of the magazine company Friday night, he said the editorial independence and integrity of the three publications would be maintained. He offered the managing editor of each a two-year contract that guaranteed editorial control.

"Rupert publishes for a market," said Neal Travis, a longtime Murdoch editor who has moved – along with other veterans of the man's newspapers in Britain and Australia – to the Post. "The market in New York is obviously not what the market in London, or even San Antonio, is. For every London Sun you can show me, I'll show you two quality papers. And what the hell's wrong with the London Sun? We sell four million copies a day."

Since taking over the Post, Murdoch has been preoccupied by the struggle to gain control of New York magazine. But he has come to work at 5 a.m., worked with longtime executive editor Paul Sann in putting the paper together and has given editors two more pages of space in which to put news.

A page of stories about people, much of it gossip, has appeared. And there seems to be a greater focus on crime and on stories about people, although there has not been any noticeable trend toward sensationalism.

Murdoch plans to expand the Post's coverage of business news. He plans to increase the paper's already large and substantive sports section, may add a two-page picture spread, is expected to increase coverage of television and the arts and says he will add more staff.

The plan, says Murdoch, is to have a circulation of 700,000 by the end of the year, to make it to one million in two years, to reverse the balance sheet from red ink to black by 1978 (he says the paper lost between $500,000 and $1 million last year) and to challenge the New York News for circulation supremacy.

Currently, the News, with an editorial staff of 600, has a circulation of two million – the country's largest. The Post has a staff of only about 100. But Murdoch, who is said to be considering a Sunday edition, believes he can challenge.

Asked what he would do if the morning News went ahead with its rumored plans to publish an afternoon edition in competition with his Post, Murdoch said, "What would the News do when we come out with the morning Post?"

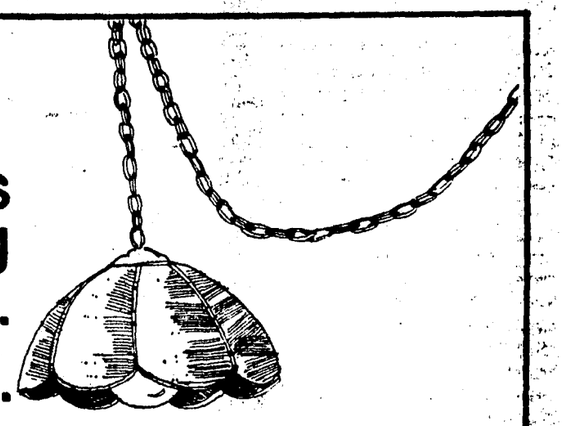
"Rupert won't back away from a fight," said Travis. "We may have a good old newspaper war here. We've been through this before, you know."

Indeed, they have.

Murdoch, conservative and Oxford-educated, began his career at the age of 21 when he inherited the Adelaide News in Australia from his father. In 1960, he bought a group of suburban papers near Sydney and used the money he made off those to purchase the Sydney Daily Mirror.

He engaged the Sydney Sun in a war of "bums and boobs" papers and won in terms of circulation.

In 1969, Murdoch made the purchase that made his reputation. For about 750,000 pounds, he bought the failing London Sun when it had a circulation of 800,000. He turned it into a tabloid and took on the London Daily Mirror in another similar battle for readers.



"Rupert out-Mirrored the Mirror," said Travis, referring to the confrontation between similar papers. He said the most recent figures show the Sun with a circulation of four million, equal to or just more than the Daily Mirror.

Meanwhile, his papers in Australia, those described by a competitor as "the quality Murdoch press," helped elect the first Labor government in 22 years and three years later helped bring it down.

In 1973, Murdoch purchased the San Antonio Express and News and moved to New York, where he began the

KENNEDY-KING PROBE PANEL PLEDGES TO STAY WITHIN LAW

WASHINGTON (AP) – The prospective chairman of the House Committee on Assassinations has pledged that tape recordings, voice stress evaluators and physical surveillance will not be used by the panel in any way that violates constitutional rights.

But Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., chairman of the House Judiciary civil rights subcommittee, to whom Rep. Henry B. Gonzales, D-Tex., made the pledge, said his concerns about the techniques have not been resolved.

Gonzales and Edwards said they will meet Monday, and Edwards said their discussion will be spelled out on the House floor Tuesday when the chamber votes on reconstituting the committee, which will investigate the assassinations of President John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr.

In an exchange of letters and telephone calls, Edwards told Gonzales that neither Congress nor the public wants "a temporary suspension of the Bill of Rights, however laudable the results may be."

Gonzales replied that none of the investigative techniques will be permitted without approval of the committee members, and said the members are bound by oath to uphold the civil rights and privacy guaranteed by the Constitution.

Gonzales said in an interview that he wants committee rules specifying that tape recordings and use of lie detectors or voice stress evaluators could be used only with the knowledge of a witness to corroborate his information to the committee.

Gonzales said transmitters would not be used to secretly tape record conversations but would be used only to protect investigators in physical surveillance situations.

Edwards replied that he can not imagine any situation in which the assassination investigators would indulge in physical surveillance and said he wants more information on what the committee plans.

Calling the possibilities "extremely disturbing" Edwards said: "A congressional investigation is not, and should never be, a game of cops and robbers."

Edwards said he also was concerned about the committee's plans to hold periodic public hearings while developing its evidence. "Spilling out bits and pieces of information before the investigation is complete will obviously present a distorted picture and cannot avoid, in my view, causing serious harm to potential witnesses, he said.

But Gonzales said the committee felt that the Warren Commission's decision to conduct its investigation of the Kennedy assassination in secret contributed to "skepticism and speculation."

Gonzales said he wants to convince Edwards and the House that committee investigators will not be permitted to use any secret surveillance techniques.

"To me the idea is repugnant," Gonzales said. "We are not a legislative version of the CIA or FBI."

He said any lie-detector or voice stress evaluator test permitted by witnesses would not be used as evidence by the committee, just as they would not be allowed to be used in court as evidence.

Friend May Not Have Full Deck

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow in my late 50s who has been keeping company with a bachelor my age for three years. My problem is I still haven't met any of his family members.

He lives on a farm with his mother and two sisters. I've never been to his house because his mother is senile and both his sisters are crazy.

He doesn't work and says he has no income, but he owns a little property and drives a nice car.

He's asked me not to phone him because he has a party line, which he says everybody listens in on, and he doesn't want people knowing his business.

Last year his brother died, but he didn't tell me until after they buried him because he said it was a private funeral and his brother was crazy. I'm beginning to think insanity runs in his family.

If I weren't so darned lonesome, I'd forget him, but he does play a nice game of gin rummy. How do you and your experts figure him?

MINNIE IN W. VA.

DEAR MINNIE: My experts suspect that your gentleman friend is either married, crazy or both. And my advice is to determine his marital status, find another gin rummy partner or take up solitaire.

DEAR ABBY: I took your advice and acted like a liberated woman by calling up a guy and arranging a date with him.

Well, it just didn't work out. You said a man would feel "flattered" to have a girl call him and tell him up front she thought they would enjoy each other's company.

This guy was flattered all right, but his ego got to be too much by the end of the evening. He couldn't buy the idea that I didn't want to get him between the sheets. (I really didn't.)

I'm afraid the average man still likes to take the initiative when it comes to dating. Or did I just happen to get a dud?

GUESSED WRONG

DEAR GUESSED: I think you got a dud. Just because a man asks a girl for a date doesn't mean he wants to take her to bed. And the same applies to women who take the initiative.

DEAR ABBY: I work for the Bureau of Vital Statistics. Since quite a few people have had sex change operations recently, they have been requesting that their names be changed to agree with their sex change. We are having difficulty in writing to these people.

They usually have their names legally changed before having the sex change operation.

For example: A man named James Black has changed his name to Virginia Black. By rights he is still a male with a female name.

When writing to him, should we address him as "Dear Mr. Black," since he is still a biological male, or "Dear Miss Black," since his name has been legally changed?

BALTIMORE DILEMMA

DEAR DILEMMA: Address him (or her) by his (or her) legal name.

Human Device Helps Animals

PHILADELPHIA (AP) – Guinea pigs traditionally have been used for testing new medical techniques. Now a device used first on humans may wind up helping guinea pigs.

Dr. Charles Reid, a veterinarian and associate professor of radiology at the University of Pennsylvania's veterinary clinic, recently found that the xeroradiography process, which has been used for a number of years to aid in the early detection of breast cancer in women, also does an excellent job of spotting hairline fractures in animals.

The radiologist said that a horse was recently admitted to his clinic with an obvious fracture of one bone. When the animal was examined with xeroradiography, the fracture of a second bone was discovered. "The sharp detail of xeroradiography revealed the fracture clearly," Dr Reid explained.

Nixon 64 Today

SAN CLEMENTE (AP) – Richard Nixon's seaside compound remained silent Saturday about how the former President would spend today, his 64th birthday.

A spokesman for the Nixons could not be reached for comment.

It will be Nixon's third birthday at Casa Pacifica since his resignation Aug. 9, 1974 amid the Watergate scandals.

'Swarm' Of Quakes Buzz SF Bay Area

BERKELEY (AP) – A "swarm" of earthquakes socked the San Francisco Bay area Saturday, awakening thousands of residents and lighting up police switchboards. Little damage and no injuries were reported.

The University of California Seismographic Station said a quake at 1:38 a.m. PST measured 4.6 on the Richter scale, the area's strongest quake in more than a decade.

Station director Bruce Bolt said numerous mild aftershocks followed eight quakes Friday night and early Saturday. He said he expected another quake of about 3.0 – strong enough to be felt but not to do damage – to occur by late today, followed by a week of very mild aftershocks that wouldn't be felt.

"This is what is known as a swarm of earthquakes," Bolt said. "They're fading away."

He said, however, that he was much relieved that the quakes did not take place on the Hayward Fault or other major faults. If they had, he said, they might have been a precursor for a larger quake.

The quakes were centered on an unnamed fault between Berkeley and nearby Walnut Creek.

Longet Secluded

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) – Claudine Longet spent Saturday in seclusion with her children, preparing for what she called the "ordeal ahead" as her manslaughter trial enters the prosecution testimony phase.

A parade of witnesses is scheduled to begin testifying Monday against the 35-year-old singer-actress after her jury is sworn in.

2 Held In Blaze Claiming 9 Lives

SHAMOKIN, Pa. (AP) – Two volunteer firemen were arrested Saturday and charged with setting a Shamokin motel fire that killed nine people. One of them had been injured fighting the fire.

David Dietman, 21, and Anthony Primerano, 19, both of Shamokin, were each charged with one count of arson, nine counts of homicide, one count of criminal conspiracy and one count of creating a catastrophe.

Both men were being held in Northumberland County Prison without bail for a preliminary hearing Friday.

Police said Dietman and Primerano had been drinking in the bar of the Walnut Towers Motor Inn before the fire broke out there last Sunday. They said statements were taken from both men but would provide no further details.

Last week, state Fire Marshal Barry Slotter listed the cause of the fire as smoking in bed by a motel guest. But Shamokin police said they thought heat from the fire spread too fast, suggesting it started in a hallway. Slotter was unavailable Saturday for comment.

Dietman was hospitalized for several days after being injured while fighting the Walnut Towers fire.

weekly National Star, a tabloid sold mostly in supermarkets. Tackling the established National Enquirer, Murdoch had trouble making the Star a success. But now it has a circulation of about 1.6 million and is making money – one source said about $20,000 a week.

Meanwhile, his corporations grew as he often passed up paying dividends in order to plow money back in. In addition to his newspapers, Murdoch owns 13 magazines and seven broadcasting properties.

He said the income from his Australian concerns last year was between $18 and $19 million, with additional income from Britain and the United States.

Murdoch is, by all accounts, well-liked by many people who work for him. He is known to work and drink alongside his staffers.

A family man, he, his wife and their four children have residences in New York City, a weekend retreat upstate, an apartment in London and a cattle ranch near Canberra in Australia.

MILLIONAIRES REVEAL SUCCESS SECRETS

Albert J. Lowry to Outline "Creation Of Wealth Formula" Using New Tax Laws in 90-Minute Free Lecture!

ALBERT J. LOWRY

America's foremost authority on financial independence through real estate investment, nationally recognized author, lecturer, and successful investor, Mr. Albert J. Lowry will give a series of lectures in this area. Mr. Lowry came to America with little to his name a few years ago. He was raised in an orphanage, and worked as a butcher and common laborer because of a limited education. Today he travels over 200,000 miles a year telling audiences of hundreds the "How To" of his tremendous success.

WILLIAM NICKERSON

Mr. Lowry has combined forces with William Nickerson, author of the run-away best seller, "How I Turned $1,000 into Three Million in Real Estate—in My Spare Time," to sponsor a seminar on "How To Become Financially Independent Today." Thousands have enrolled in the famous seminar in the past five years, and hundreds of graduates have achieved amazing success by using Mr. Lowry's "Creation of Wealth" formulas.

PUBLIC INVITED TO FREE LECTURES

Mr. Lowry will be appearing this week ONLY at the locations listed below for a free ninety-minute presentation of money making advice.

The public is invited, and there is no cost or obligation. Mr. Lowry will show you his 8 steps for financial independence. He does not sell real estate or investments. Mr. Lowry has been lecturing to "standing room only" audiences. Come early and expect to take notes during the illustrated presentation.

MR. LOWRY WILL DISCUSS THE FOLLOWING AT THE FREE LECTURE...

- Why Most People Fail Financially and how others succeed.
- Common investment mistakes ...the difference between speculation and investment.
- Errors in buying and selling.
- How the "Sharks" take advantage of your lack of knowledge.
- Comparisons between opening your own business and private investment.
- Creating Financing with the New Tax Laws.
- Poor management and what it costs you... even in your own home.
- Tax Shelters available to you under the New Tax Laws.
- How to Legally Avoid High Taxes under the New Tax Laws.
- Finding assets you didn't know you had.
- Great ideas about how you can make money on your own home.
- How to Build a Fortune Today from Scratch.
- A proven eight step method to Financial Independence.
- A simple, quick way to get the Knowledge you need for Success.

MR. LOWRY WILL BE LECTURING IN PERSON THIS WEEK ONLY AND ONLY AT THE FOLLOWING LOCATIONS...

Guilty Politico Gets Pension

TOWSOM, Md. (AP) – Dale Anderson, the former Baltimore County executive convicted of political corruption in a kickback scheme, has been awarded a full pension by the county, officials said.

Anderson, who was released from federal prison last year after serving 13 months of a five-year sentence and placed on probation, will receive $661.18 a month with a reserve for his wife, said Betty Lee Weidermann, the county's retirement administrator.

The former county executive could have chosen to receive full monthly payments of $967.63, she said. The pension was approved unanimously at the county pension board's Dec. 7 meeting, Thomas R. Kane, an assistant county solicitor, said.

Anderson had applied for the pension last October, and the board said the pension would be retroactive to his 60th birthday, Nov. 9.

Anderson was unavailable for comment on the board's action.

A federal jury in Baltimore convicted Anderson of 32 counts of conspiracy, extortion and tax evasion in March 1974. He resigned as county executive the following month.

An opinion regarding the pension payments by Joseph Sherbow, a retired Baltimore City judge, was one of the reasons behind the rapid resignation of Anderson, who originally said he would remain in office until the appeals process was complete.

Watch Complaints Pour In

CHICAGO (AP) – The Illinois attorney general's office is receiving complaints at a rate of about 1,000 a day from angry Christmas shoppers who ordered a computer watch and never received the product, an official said.

Donald G. Mulack, chief of the attorney general's consumer fraud division, said he has received complaints with canceled checks involving the sale of about 15,000 watches by Teltronics Ltd. of Des Plaines, a northwestern suburb of Chicago.

The president of the firm, John Rodine, was last heard from when he attempted to transfer funds from a Chicago bank to Mexico. He now is believed to be in Argentina.

The attorney general had received a few complaints from disgruntled shoppers who ordered the $16.95 watch and never received it in time for Christmas.

It notified Chicago area banks to freeze the accounts of Teltronics only an hour before Rodine tried to withdraw $500,000 from a bank on Dec. 29.

On Friday, Judge Donald J. O'Brien of Circuit Court extended a restraining order prohibiting Rodine or any other officer of the company from withdrawing $1.1 million still in Teltronics accounts. O'Brien also ordered an examination of the company's records.

THE TROUBLE SHOOTER

SPECIAL THIMBLE

Dear Trouble Shooter

Where can I find a thimble to fit my mother's finger that is so deformed from arthritis that it has a large knuckle? She sews a lot, and even the largest thimble you can buy at a store will not fit.

F.J.
Anaheim

One of the specialty needlework crafts companies may be able to help. Try Lee Wards, 1200 St. Charles Rd., Elgin, Ill. 60120.

If they can't come up with a thimble that'll work, you'll have to improvise. Some of the plastic tops from detergent bottles, etc., can be sanded smooth inside and roughened on one end sufficiently to serve as a thimble, or you may find a metal fitting in a hardware store that can be adapted to use as a thimble.

And, of course, there's always the chance that a Trouble Shooter reader is handy with metals and will offer to make a thimble "to order" for your mother. If so, you'll hear pronto.

GERMANY TRIP

Dear Trouble Shooter

We plan a trip to Germany to visit our son in the army this summer. Can you advise us regarding economical air fare, shots, passports, currency exchange and perhaps learning a little basic German.

In short, can you tell us how to make our trip fun and successful?

A.G.N.
Garden Grove

You betcha! Ask a travel agent to plan everything for you. They know their business, can answer your questions and will help you get exactly what you want at the price you want to pay. Won't cost you a nickel extra, either. Their fee comes from the airline you fly on and the hotels where you stay. You pay the same amount whether you use an agent's services or make all arrangements, yourself.

Any bookstore can provide you with a German-English (and vice versa) pocketbook dictionary, and don't worry too much about your unfamiliarity with the language. You'll find English spoken just about everywhere.

SCOUT PROJECT

Dear Trouble Shooter

As a Scout leader, I am always in need of good Eagle Scout service projects. Such projects must be helpful to a religious institution, school or to the community and provide the young man an opportunity to plan, develop and give leadership to others in completing it.

I would appreciate any ideas you can provide.

T.H.T.
Santa Ana

Your letter is bound to bring in a passel of suggestions from folks all over Orange County, podnah. The Trouble Shooter will forward them to you. He'll also forward letters from other scout leaders who face the same problem and hopes you'll share some of the projects with them. And, since postage is a costly matter nowadays, let's ask everyone who writes you to enclose a stamped addressed envelope for your reply, all right?

LEGAL NEED

Dear Trouble Shooter

We are new to this area and have some legal matters to tend to, but don't know any lawyers. How would you go about locating a good one?

N.S.C.
Costa Mesa

The Trouble Shooter would talk to an officer of his bank or to the real estate agent who sold him his house. Both are bound to know competent attorneys because they need legal advice frequently.

You can also contact the Orange County Bar Association's attorney referral service, 1930 W 17th St., Santa Ana. Their phone number is 835-8811.

DIET PROBLEM?

Dear Trouble Shooter

If your readers are seeking to eliminate excess fat and sugar from their diets, but not at the expense of quality, they'll be interested in the American Heart Association Cookbook which is now available in paperback.

Chapters on "Lunch Box" and "When You Eat Out" offer an alternative to the usual dieter's downfall and each recipe states an approximate calorie count.

This cookbook was designed as a low cholesterol book for general use and not for the exclusive use of people with cardiovascular disease.

The paperback version is available at the Heart Association office, 1043 Civic Center Drive West, Santa Ana 92703, for $2.25 plus tax.

J.C.K.
Santa Ana

Folks who don't find it convenient to visit the Heart Association office can obtain the book by mail for $3.

CAN YOU HELP?

Dear Trouble Shooter

I have a friend who is in desperate need of a permanent live-in babysitter. She and her four small children came to Orange County in September to find a future away from an alcoholic husband. Through the help of friends, she is now located in a house in Irvine and needs to go to work as soon as a reliable person can be found to care for the children. A small salary and private room would be the only material compensation at this time, but, hopefully, this person would become a member of this lovely family and she would receive a large measure of love and affection.

If any of your readers know of an "Alice" who would like to take over this "Brady Bunch," please let me know.

J.N.
Tustin

Live-ins are mighty hard to find nowadays, but the Trouble Shooter reckons it won't do any harm to print your letter. Interested ladies can write you in care of P.O. Box 1319, Tustin 92680.

OLD PAPER

Dear Trouble Shooter

I have an original Oakland Herald newspaper dated April 18, 1906, with all the details of the San Francisco earthquake. It consists of four double pages (or eight single) and is in perfect condition except that it has yellowed. There are no tears or signs of disintegration at this time.

Where in Orange County can I have it preserved? Where can I find out its value? Where can I have it photographed and reduced in size for an interesting wall plaque arrangement? (It's the entire paper, including the classified ads, theatre guides etc.)

J.B.
Anaheim

Your best bet to preserve the newspaper would be to have its pages laminated in plastic. There are dozens of laminating firms in these parts who can do the job for you. (There are also dozens of commercial photographers who can provide you with the reductions you want to use for wall decorations.) Check The Register's classified ads or your telephone book.

To find out the value of your paper to a collector, write the International Newspaper Collectors Club, P.O. Box 7271, Phoenix, Ariz. 85011.

YOU HELPED!

Dear Trouble Shooter

On behalf of the Baja Children's Foundation, I want to thank your readers. You published my letter in November about the needs of the children at the Fundacion Para Ninos, the orphanage in Tecate, Mexico, and the calls really came in! Some of the nicest folks in the world must read your column.

As a result of their help, Christmas was a lot rosier and so will the coming year be, because people have pledged their dollars for every month of this year! What's more, they've offered help with some of our future projects.

Trouble Shooter, if I wore a hat, you'd get the biggest tip of it I could muster, because it would be from "our kids."

C.T.
Anaheim

Credit goes to the folks who responded to your letter about the Baja Children's Foundation, Ma'am. All the Ol' Trouble Shooter did was print it.

Got a Problem? Write The Trouble Shooter, P.O. Box 11626, Santa Ana, Calif., 92711. PLEASE DO NOT TELEPHONE YOUR PROBLEM TO US. Due to the volume of mail, not all letters can be answered or acknowledged. Those published will be signed with initials only, but you must include your name, address and telephone number.

ROBERT RUSSELL INSIDE CHINO YOUTH TRAINING SCHOOL WAITING FOR HIS NEW LIFE TO BEGIN IN ORANGE COUNTY

OC Indian Center Offers A Helping Hand To Youth

By PAUL CHAPPLE
Register Staff Writer

Robert Russell, 20, lives in a 10-by-12-foot cubicle and 70 per cent of his neighbors are murderers.

He has lived there for two years – except for periodic walks in the exercise yard and learning how to fix cars.

Soon he will take his place in society after having served two years at the state's Youth Training School, Chino, the home of 960 hard-core criminals.

But the transition isn't going to be easy for Robert. He doesn't want to go to his former home in Alaska for a variety of reasons.

But Robert is an Indian and the Orange County Indian Center in Stanton is going to give him a helping hand. Some from the Indian Center, including Gary Kodaseet, Kiowa Indian executive director, and a host of unpaid volunteers like Kiowa-Comanche Melvin Ahhaitty, a plumber, use every off hour to teach crafts of various sorts to disadvantaged Indians willing to learn.

They've made frequent trips to Chino to talk to youths about to be released in an attempt to pave the way for them when release day comes.

The 960 men at the training school range from 17 to 24 years of age. They live under the most stringent kind of security conditions. Some will be there for years. Others anxiously await the day when they can walk into the free air again – maybe weeks and months from now.

But Robert's future is brighter than that. The Indian Center in Stanton is guaranteeing Robert a place to live – and just as important, a job on the very day he walks out of that 10-by-12 cubicle.

The Indian Center volunteers are doing their part in making the transition from cold gray walls to the world of sunshine just a little easier.

Efforts of the Stanton group have been a definite shot in the arm for Stan Sanders, the Chino training school's community services coordinator.

"They have been very helpful," said Stan. "If other groups could only give us a hand, too..."

The Stanton group has been steady and reliable in its willingness to come back time after time to lend a hand to Chino inmates over the past several months, Sanders said.

"These have not been Sunday afternoon do-gooders who suffered through one two-hour session and never came back again," he added.

Youth Diseases Target Of Drive

SANTA ANA – A countywide campaign to immunize more than 180,000 kindergarten through sixth grade students against seven communicable childhood diseases will be launched this week by the county health department.

The first of a series of 75 half-day clinics – all free to the general public – is scheduled 3-8 p.m. Monday at Centralia School, 3301 Lincoln Blvd., Anaheim. A schedule of other clinics is available at district headquarters for Orange County's 29 elementary, unified and high school districts.

Dr. Gerald Wagner, director of the child health service department, said Friday that about 30 per cent of the school-age population in the county currently is not immunized against one or more of the diseases: polio, dyptheria, whooping cough, tetanus, measles, rubella and the mumps.

"And there's been a decreasing number of kindergarteners entering school for the first time who have these shots," he said. The health officer has been keeping track of the immunization levels for the past three years.

Dr. Wagner said the "scare" attached to the recent swine flu immunization program has spun off on the county's regular immunization program.

"We're planning an intensive publicity campaign to ask the help of parents in obtaining the free innoculations for their children," he said. Wagner also admitted he wasn't sure there would be a significant turnout at this year's special clinics.

Last year, the program – funded by $113,138 in state health department money – reached more than 20,000 county children who had not received the series of immunization shots required by state law prior to enrollment in a tax-supported school. Similar funding is available this year.

MOST SAY 'I WANT OUT OF JAIL'

Jail Inmates Pen 'Dear Judge' Letters

By LARRY WELBORN
Register Staff Writer

SANTA ANA – Like aspiring authors trying to impress publishers, Orange County's jail is full of pen-pushers looking for that catchy phrase to grab someone's attention.

They aren't trying to impress publishers, though. They are seeking a Superior Court judge's approval.

"Dear Judge, I want out of jail," is the main theme, with the letters usually funneled to the presiding judge of the criminal court.

It's his job to decide whether a letter writer gets his wish – an early release from his jail term.

Superior Court Judge James Walsworth said approximately 1,200 such letters are received annually by county judges.

Fewer than five per cent of the requests are granted, he estimated.

Knowing that judges grant very few requests, jailhouse writers tend to rely heavily on catchy phrases, statements of utter remorse, tales of woe and suffering and, on occasion, a humorous comment.

"I will make it plain and the truth" wrote one inmate with less than perfect grammar, but with what seemed to be real sincerity. "I am sorry for what I did and have learned my lesson. I want to go home to my mother and father and live right for a change."

With all due respects to the mother and father, a judge denied the request.

One prisoner recently adopted a frank but realistic approach and met with success. He wrote, "I don't think you'll grant this, but I thought I'd try anyway."

The judge apparently based his approval of early release on conditions other than specified in the prisoner's letter.

"You really have to be careful about which ones you grant and which ones you don't," said Presiding Judge Byron K. McMillan. "The guys in jail will hear about the ones you grant and start trying to imitate them in their next letter."

He said he takes a critical look at the applications for an early-out before approving them. One of the things he said he looks for is if a person honestly is trying to straighten up.

For example, McMillan said he would consider a request for an early release from someone who has about 20 days left to serve on his sentence and has a job or a school term waiting for him when he gets out.

McMillan added, however, that he insists on an investigation to determine if the letter writer is telling the truth when he makes his claims.

He said he had heard of one inmate who wanted out because his father was dying of cancer and wanted to see his son one last time. A brief phone call revealed the inmate's father had been dead for many years.

Another inmate recently wrote: "My back injury has steadily deteriorated and (I) am back to using crutches to move around." He later added that he was "in constant and unremitting pain," that there is "noticeably atrophy of the muscles," and that the medical facilities in the jail are not equipped to handle his special medical problems.

The inmate closed with a special appeal designed to cater to the judge's emotions: "I do not want to be crippled for the rest of my life."

The request was denied. In reviewing the inmate's medical file, the judge found some exaggeration in the letter.

The emotional approach is one of the most popular among jailhouse writers.

"Most of my grandparents, who I haven't seen in a year, will be out here visiting," wrote one inmate seeking a 24-hour pass for Christmas day. "My other grandparents, both 86, are ill, and one is going to have major eye surgery soon."

He ended his letter by telling the judge he could add an extra day at the end of his sentence if the pass was granted. Unfortunately, the judge didn't receive the letter until after Christmas.

Many of the letters refer to strong family ties, including one that ended with an assuring note that the prisoner "would be living with my mother in Anaheim."

One writer conceded that he had "realized just how serious disobeying the law can be, and in the course have gained a new respect for justice."

Another wanted out "so that while my energy and good intentions are at a peak I may return to a new and better life for my wife and myself."

But another inmate wanted out because "my wife filed for divorce and I want to be able to save my marriage as I truly love my wife."

One staccato-like writer penned a note which read like a telegram: "I wish to leave the state. It is my first offense. I have a job waiting for me. I also wish to enroll in school on my GI bill."

Most requests address the judge with what appears to be the utmost respect and dignity. "Judge, sir," began one letter of ingratiating prose that informed the judge that the inmate was sorry, that he would never again break the law and that his family desperately needed him at home. The letter ended with the plea, "Please, Sir, I beg of you."

Another inmate happily scribbled a postscript to his letter asking the judge to "have a Merry Christmas."

The judge, maybe not so happily, scribbled beneath the note, "modification denied."

But not all letters treat the judge with respect and dignity.

One judge, who asked that he not be identified, said he once received a request for a modification that read: "I wish to be set free so that I can come back and kill you."

"Modification denied," wrote the judge.

FOR STATEMENT

3 Board Hopefuls Issue An Apology

HUNTINGTON BEACH – Three candidates have apologized for a controversial statement they jointly issued this past week to kick off their campaign for the Huntington Beach Union High School District board of trustees.

The statement implied possible conspiracy between the district administration and the District Educators Association (DEA), the bargaining unit representing the district's 830 teachers.

Doris Allen, Ralph Lanternier and Vaughn Edeward, who issued the statement to say they were running as a slate in the March 8 election, said the conspiracy charge never was intended.

The statement said the three were running to provide leadership "now lacking as a result of political manipulations by the special interest power block made up of the District Education Association (teachers union) and the present administration."

Mrs. Allen said the candidates had not meant to imply a conspiracy and had not meant to issue a blanket indictment of all members of the DEA. She said the statement was aimed at the teacher unit's leadership.

The statement was in error due to a mistake in transcribing notes made while preparing it, she said.

A revised statement issued by the candidates said there have been "political manipulations" in the district by a "special interest power block" within the DEA. No mention is made of the district administration.

Mrs. Allen said the "political manipulations" involved DEA leaders contributing money and volunteering time to trustee candidates who are sympathetic to the views of the teacher bargaining unit.

"With the poor voter turnout we have for these March school elections," Mrs. Allen said, "a special interest group can have a strong influence."

C.B. Wright, DEA immediate past president, said his organization has been endorsing candidates for the board of trustees since about 1968. He said some of the endorsed candidates have received money from DEA and some DEA members have volunteered to do campaign work.

He said three of the current trustees, Helen Ditte, Don MacAllister and Ralph Bauer, were DEA endorsed candidates.

Of the power bloc charge, he said, "If there's a power block, I think it's been a good power block. I don't think it's hurt the district.

"We have a moderate school board. We have a good working relationship with the trustees although we have had disagreements. Under them we have had one of the few financially solvent districts in the state."

Prior to each election, he said, DEA members screen trustee candidates and decide who to endorse based on their attitudes toward education. The DEA will be screening the 13 candidates running in this election.

"We will make endorsements," Wright said.

Buena Park Immunization Clinics Set

BUENA PARK – Two immunization clincs for children and adults are scheduled for Buena Park and west Anaheim in January. Immunizations against diphtheria, tetanus, whooping cough, polio, measles, mumps and rubella will be offered.

The first clinic will be held Monday, Jan. 10, at Centralia School, 3301 Lincoln Blvd., Anaheim. The second is scheduled Thursday, at Buena Terra School, 8299 Holder St., Buena Park. Both clinics will be open from 3 p.m. to 8 p.m

County's New Transit Panel Gets Funding

SANTA ANA – Orange County's new transportation commission has been allocated $106,000 in tax funding for operations through June 30. The commission begins operation at the end of this month.

The funds are part of an estimated $551,000 allotment to transportation commissions in Los Angeles, Riverside, San Bernardino and Orange counties.

The state legislature passed a law in August creating the commissions which are to resolve jurisdictional disputes between transit operators, approve tax supported transit system plans and develop transportation programs.

The four-county allocation was approved last week by the Southern California Association of Governments, a regional planning agency composed of representatives from six counties and 126 cities in Southern California.

Anthony Eyed For Seat On OCTD Board

SANTA ANA – Board of Supervisors chairman Thomas Riley is expected to recommend that freshman Supervisor Philip Anthony take his place on the Orange County Transit District board of directors.

The recommendation is expected to be made Tuesday or Wednesday when Riley announces his commission assignments for fellow supervisors.

Riley was selected board chairman Jan. 4.

Anthony was elected to the board last November but took office immediately when appointed by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. to fill the vacancy created by the ouster of Robert Battin.

During the campaign, Anthony said he would work for creation of a civic center tram system and an intra-city bus system for the rest of Santa Ana.

FV Will Pay More For New Trash Pact

FOUNTAIN VALLEY – Although councilmen this past week voted to "save taxpayers an increase" in their $2 monthly trash collection fees, the councilmen nevertheless will take more than $170,000 in tax money from the general fund to satisfy demands of Rainbow Disposal which said it is operating at a loss.

Phil Hohnstein of the Rainbow firm said the increased wage costs and other rising expenses moved him to ask that the total of his five-year 1974 contract be increased from its agreed-upon $1,207,527 to $5,380,392.

Councilmen made a point of resisting the passing on of charges directly to residents.

But they added Rainbow "has done a good job" with few complaints reaching city hall, and so approved Hohnstein's request.

Dissenting was Councilman Roger Stanton who said the city was not obliged to change terms of the contract. He added "we also have a contract with our citizens."

Pakistan Land Reform Started

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) – Premier Zulfikar Ali Bhutto announced new land reforms last week under which no individual will be allowed to own more than 100 acres of irrigated farmland.

In a nationwide broadcast, Bhutto said anyone owning more than 100 acres of irrigated land or 200 acres of unirrigated land will be forced to turn the excess property over to the government for distribution free to landless peasants.

Bhutto said compensation will be made in cash to dispossessed owners if the amount does not exceed $500 and in negotiable bonds redeemable in 10 years for property worth more than $500.

Anyone refusing to give up his land will be liable to five years in jail, he said

Orange County MILITARY BEAT

By Lou Capozzoli

UPDATE ON PAY HIKE: The Consumer Price Index (CPI) for November, which reached 173.8, assures military retirees of a 4.5 per cent pay increase on March 1. And it could be more.

The 173.8 November CPI was 4.51 per cent above the level for December 1975. Under the new formula, the next raise will be the exact amount of the CPI increase (rounded off to 1/10 of one per cent) during the whole year 1976.

Therefore, if the CPI for December 1976 (the figures will be released later this month) goes higher, the pay boost will be higher. If the CPI reaches 173.9 or 174.0, the raise will be 4.6 per cent; if it hits 174.1, the raise will be 4.7 per cent; 174.2 or 174.3 will mean a 4.8 per cent hike; 174.4 or 174.5 will mean 4.9 per cent, and 174.6 will result in a 5 per cent pay increase on March 1.

Thereafter, pay raises will come every six months, on Sept. 1 and March 1, based on the previous June and December CPIreadings.

The March 1 pay hikes will show up on checks received in early April and the Sept. 1 increases will be reflected in checks received early in October.

CREDIT CARDS USED: Military personnel and others entitled to patronize the Officer, Staff NCO and Enlisted clubs at El Toro and the Marine helicopter station in Tustin are being reminded that all of the clubs do accept certain credit cards.

Retired Master Sgt. Bill Chapman, manager of the El Toro Staff NCO Club, said "we've been using BankAmericard and Master Charge since late October, but not too many people seem to know about it."

He added that the cards are accepted for all types of service and sale items, including beverages, food, entertainment and package goods.

COPTER UNIT PARTY: Have you ever served with Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron (HMM)-161?

If so, you're invited to attend the unit's 26th birthday party Friday at the Marine Corps helicopter station in Tustin.

First Lt. William Niamasik, program chairman and spokesman for the squadron, said a special cake-cutting ceremony will be held at 11 a.m. in the squadron's ready room in Hangar No. 1. A picnic at the station picnic area will follow, he added.

Those planning to attend are urged to call Lt. Niamasik at the copter station.

HOSPITAL-CARE HIKE: Dependents of active duty, retire and deceased service personnel now are being charged $4.10 a day for inpatient care at military hospitals. Before Jan. 1, when the new fees went into effect, the charge was $3.90 a day.

Also increased on Jan. 1 were the daily charges that must be paid by spouses and children of active duty servicemen who receive inpatient care under CHAMPUS from civilian medical facilities.

If they stay in a hospital for more than a week, they now will have to pay $4.10 a day. If hospitalized for less than a week, they must pay a minimum of $25.

The old rate was $3.90 a day for stays of over a week, with a $25 minimum for stays of less than a week.

KOREAN IN RESERVES: When Spec. 4 Kyu Il Lim joined the Army Reserve's 163rd Ordnance Company at the Santa Ana Army Reserve Center, he chalked up a "first." He became the first Korean national to join the unit.

Lim, who lives at 1602 N. King St., Santa Ana, enlisted in the Regular Army in Dallas, Tex., in October 1973 and had just finished a tour of duty in his home country of Korea before he joined the 163rd to complete his military obligation.

The 163rd is responsible for setting up ammunition distribution points for Army units in time of national emergency.

GOODWILL AIDS VETS: Where can a veteran receive training as a printer, machinist, clerical worker, reproduction specialist or other skilled tradesperson? This may come as a surprise to many, but one answer is "Goodwill Industries of Orange County."

The Goodwill Training Center at 5th and Fairview in Santa Ana now is a fully accredited, Veterans Administration-approved training facility.

Jack Hill, Goodwill training coordinator, said "this means an eligible veteran may participate in any of California State Department of Education approved programs at no charge. The Veterans Administration pays all the fees." He added that free "job-readiness" classes and placement services also are available.

For additional information, contact the county Veterans Service Office at 700 Civic Center Drive West, or Hill at the Goodwill Training Center.

OPEN HOUSE ON SHIP: If you've never been aboard a destroyer, here's your chance. As part of its community awareness program, the Naval Support Activity, Los Angeles-Long Beach, is opening its gates from 1 to 4 p.m. today for a special open house aboard the USS Hollister (DD-788).

The Hollister, homeported at Long Beach, is used to train Navy Reserve personnel.

Vistors can enter the Support Activity through Gate No. 1, off Seaside Boulevard on Terminal Island.

FAMILY-FUN DATES: Active duty and retired military personnel, and their dependents, now are being offered discount tickets for admission to two of the county's top tourist and recreation attractions.

The tickets will be honored by Knott's Berry Farm on Saturday, Jan. 22, to commemorate "Marine Corps Air Station (Helicopter) Day" and by Disneyland on Saturday, Jan. 29 in honor of "Seabee Night."

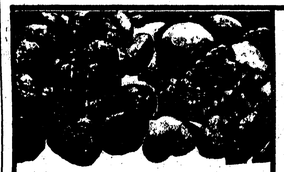
The cut-rate tickets, which are available only through military special services offices (they will not be sold at the gates), are good for all rides and attractions at both parks, except row boating and gold panning at Knott's and the shooting galleries at both places. However, Disneyland tickets also will include dancing, entertainment, bands, shows and free parking.

You can pick up your tickets at the special services offices at El Toro and the Marine Corps helicoper station, Tustin.

FRAME CAP DROPPED: The Marine Corps has scuttled the fram cap for enlisted men. They can still wear them if they wish, but not in formation, the Corps reports. And, needless to say, they must be worn with dress blues.

The garrison (fore-n-aft) cap replaced the old "barracks cap," and now must be worn in formation and may be worn with greens while in a duty status and while on leave and liberty.

NEW CLUBS BUILDING: Received word early in the week that a new $3 million combined Staff NCO and Enlisted Club will be built at El Toro this year. As I understand it, groundbreaking is scheduled to take place in February.



Actually, there still will be two separate clubs. They'll be in the same building but will separated by a common galley and service area.

The building will be located across from the training building near the barracks and personal services area, one source said.

CCs MEET TUESDAY: Sam Graham of Westminster, president of the Orange County Chapter, Marine Corps Combat Correspondents Association, asks members to start the new year right by turning out in force for the first meeting of 1977 Tuesday at the Staff NCO Club, Marine helicopter station, Tustin.

Cocktail hour will begin at 6:30 p.m., to be followed by a roast beef buffet.

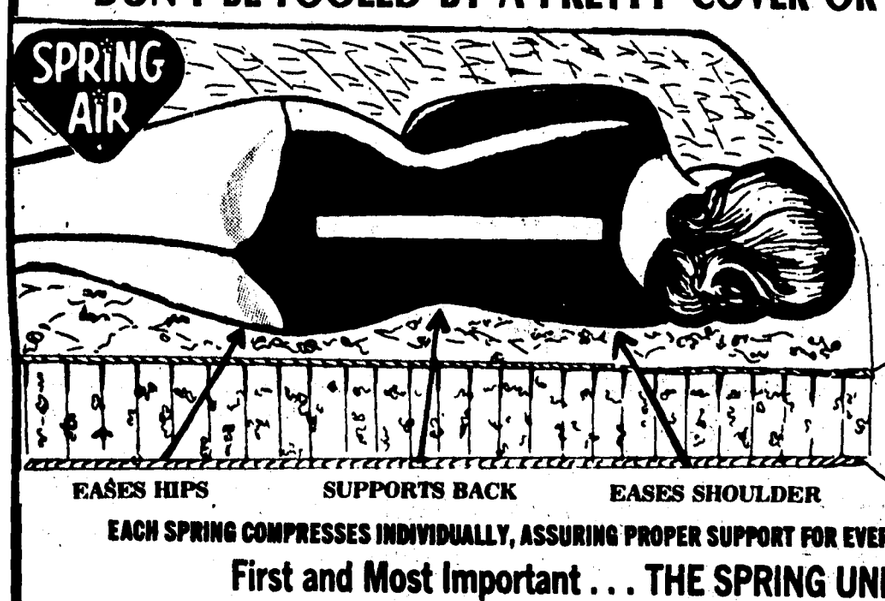
Development Of Parks On MAC Agenda

MISSION VIEJO – General plans for the development of Castille and Alicia parks will be presented to the municipal advisory council (MAC) when it meets at 7:30 p.m. Monday at MAC headquarters, Suite B, 26161 La Paz Road.

In December, MAC voted to recommend that the board of supervisors spend up to $75,400 to develop the five-acre Castille site and up to $271,800 to develop the 9.5 acre Alicia site.

"We are within the budget limits for both projects," said William Ackerman of EDAW Inc., which along with the county, is preparing the plans for the parks.

Final decision on the parks rests with the supervisors. But Ackerman said he expects no major questions from supervisors because the projects already have been approved by MAC, the local governing agency.



Ackerman believes Castille Park could be open for public use as early as January, 1978, and that Alicia Park could be ready for use by March, 1978.

"Castille will probably open first because there is less grading involved that at Alicia," he said, "and the temporary school buildings now on the Castille site are to be moved by July 1."

At Alicia, tentative plans call for installation of children's play area, tot lot, restrooms, picnic area, four picnic shelters, three lighted baseball fields and facilities for soccer and football.

EACH SPRING COMPRESSES INDIVIDUALLY, ASSURING PROPER SUPPORT FOR EVERY PART OF THE BODY.

First and Most Important . . . THE SPRING UNIT

HEALTH CENTER (SHADED AREA) 3½" DIAMETER SPRING PROVIDES EXTRA SUPPORT IN SHOULDER-TO-KNEE AREA.

- 4" diameter springs for head and foot zones.
- Off center edge springs for better edge support.
- Alternate left and right turn springs to eliminate mattress lean.
- All springs firmly locked in place with cross helicals.
- Baked enamel finish prevents rusting and insures quiet.
- Open end springs with 5½ working convolutions instead of 3 gives more support.
- Helicals & springs tempered after unit is assembled for longer life.

POUND FOR POUND MORE FOR YOUR MONEY
THE BEST MATTRESS VALUE YOU CAN BUY

WEIGH IT?
Sounds silly! How could you go around weighing mattresses?
But it isn't – Hidden on the back of each mattress is a small white tag required by law to reveal the contents. All you have to do is read it.

AMAZING!
You will be amazed — For example: two of the best known manufacturers have less than 20 lbs. of padding in their highest priced mattress in a full size over the spring unit while Posture Line has over 30 lbs. in a full size.

WE'LL PROVE IT!
Come in, let us prove it! We have most national brands for your comparison. We discount all brands. None sold at suggested retail prices. Starting at $89.95 Mattress and box spring for twin sets.

We feature Posture Line. It is Spring Air's only mattress with Karr unit sold in Orange Co. at the prices shown. And only at the Snoozzzz Shop.

LOSE FAT
"MODEL-ETTS" HELPS CURB YOUR APPETITE HELPS YOU LOSE THAT EXTRA WEIGHT • NO CALORIE COUNTING! • NO EXERCISES! • NO SPECIAL DIETS!
Thanks to a group of New York doctors, you can now lose pounds of ugly fat without going on any special diet, without cutting out any special foods.
HELPS REDUCE HUNGRY MOMENTS
These New York doctors discovered a food adjuvant called "MODEL-ETTS." "Model-etts" does remarkable things. It helps you cut down your caloric intake by a natural automatic curbing of the appetite and of the desire for foods, resulting automatically in a reduced intake of food.
The doctors carefully checked results, and here is what they found:
1. Weight losses of 6 to 20 pounds without any ill effects whatsoever.
2. 96% of the men and women who used "Model-etts" lost weight.
"Model-etts" is absolutely safe. It is a food adjuvant--not a drug. So, start today to shed those unwanted pounds and inches. If your condition is glandular or organic, see your doctor. "Model-etts" may help you stay on the diet your doctor recommends. Ask him about it.
One "Model-etts" Wafer has the hunger satisfying capacity of 1 lb. boiled potatoes or 4 eggs or 5 slices of white bread, yet it contains only 6 calories.

Crime Prevent Meeting Topic

ANAHEIM – Two open meetings on crime prevention have been scheduled this month at the Anaheim Police Department, 425 S. Harbor Blvd.

Sponsored by the Anaheim Senior Citizens Crime Prevention Advisory Committee, the meetings are scheduled for 7-9 p.m. on Jan. 13 and Jan. 20. Both sessions are open to the public.

Campaigning Session Topic

COSTA MESA – A "Campaign College" for potential political candidates is scheduled from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Jan. 15, at South Coast Plaza Hotel.

Leadership training and campaign tactics are to be discussed in three one-hour sessions, according to the sponsor, Orange County chapter of California Elected Women's Association for Education and Research.

Panel Mulls Added Tax

SANTA ANA – A two-cent per gallon increase in the gasoline tax is among the proposals included in the 1977 transportation plan drafted by Southern California Association of Governments.

A public workshop on the proposed plan will be held Tuesday from 4 to 6 p.m. in the Santa Ana City Council chambers, 22 Civic Center Plaza.

Other proposals in the plan include commuter rail service and high-speed bus links between major area cities.

The increased gas tax proposal would require action by the state legislature.

A public hearing on the plan is scheduled for Jan. 13 at the Los Angeles convention center.

Any funds raised by the gas tax increase would be allocated for street and highway programs in local cities and counties and to transit districts for expanded bus operations.

Irvine To Discuss Skateboard Parks

By ART BARRETT
Register Staff Writer

IRVINE – City officials here figure they can cash in and roll to the bank on skateboard revenue if council members Tuesday give approval to talks with a private firm offering up to $150,000 per year for permission to build and operate three skateboard runs in a city park.

The offer is being made by Newport Beach based Leisure Specialties Inc. The proposal is to build the skating runs in the planned 48-acre Heritage Park located at Walnut and Yale avenue, south of the adjacent Santa Ana Freeway. A percentage of its commercial revenues would go to the city if the lease is approved, city officials said.

The city's University Park skateboard experiment on Simdburg Way has recently come under fire by nearby homeowners angered by commotion caused by the hundreds of youths it attracts.

City officials are expected to view the commercial proposal as an answer to the pressure to close the existing park.

According to an official at Victor Construction of Anaheim, the general contractor, the cost of the University Park skateboard run was $30,000.

Skateboarding has proven to be commercially profitable. Leisure Specialties shows that Skateboarder Magazine claims to have a readership of 1.1 million persons with an average age of 15.

Since the commercial proposal to the city council is the first of its kind, no mention has been made of possible bids from other past potential companies looking to ride the concrete wave.

NEW CHIEF – Richard Zahn, M.D., a specialist in general and vascular surgery, will become Fullerton Community Hospital's new chief of staff. He interned at the Orange County Medical Center and served his residency at UCI.

Speech Center Given Grant

ORANGE – The Providence Speech and Hearing Center here has received a $75,000 grant from the James Irvine Foundation for a program to evaluate and identify infants with developmental learning disabilities.

The study, to begin later this year, is designed to provide a follow-up program for infants identified as having severe speech, hearing, perceptual or behavioral disorders that may later lead to learning disabilities.

An initial three-year program is planned using the funds to develop a team approach with Margaret A. Inman, director of the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit of Childrens Hospital of Orange County (CHOC), in charge.

Africa's Kalahari Desert covers more than 100,000 square miles.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

East started out his career of crime when he failed to bid three clubs over North's two spade call. Not that this failure was a serious crime, just that it proved to be very expensive.

Had East bid three clubs West would surely have taken him to game which makes easily. South would probably have saved at five spades and been doubled and set.

In any event East did not bid. South jumped to four spades and West elected to open his singleton trump.

The nine was played from dummy and here is where East really violated the laws of good bridge. He covered with his jack.

South won; played ace and queen of hearts to throw West in with the king. West led a club, but it was all over. South ruffed the club, ruffed a heart in dummy, ruffed another club, and another heart, got back to his hand with a third club ruff, pulled East's last two trumps, scored his contract trick with his last heart and conceded the last two tricks.

East could have seen all this coming and could have played a low trump. South would get to ruff one heart with the ace of trumps, but East's jack would overruff the next one to hold South to nine tricks.

Ask the Jacobys

A Florida reader asks a very interesting question that we can't answer definitely.

After an opening bid of one notrump all four suits are bid. Finally the opener bids four notrump. Our reader wants to know if that four notrump is Blackwood.

The answer is that it depends on partnership understanding. Most experts would play it as showing a desire to play at four notrump, but some partnerships just play all four notrump calls as Blackwood.

PUBLIC INVITED - 8 P.M.

Free Lecture Monday P.M. 'How You Can Make Money'

ORANGE COUNTY (Special). The public is invited to attend a revealing FREE lecture, entitled "How You Can Make Money in Real Estate." The informative free lecture clearly explains many proven income-producing techniques that can be used by anyone, regardless of financial status or previous experience.

This timely, eye-opening FREE lecture will be held at 8 p.m. this week only (See locations below). There are no educational or age requirements. Everyone is invited. Bring your spouse. Come as you are.

Famous Lecturer Tells "How"

The enlightening lecture will be conducted by nationally famous author-lecturer Phillip W. Psalmonds. He will explain in his easy-to-understand manner the most simple, safe, and sure methods of making money in many phases of real estate.

You will also be told how to save money when purchasing a home and how to make money when selling your home.

Make Money In Your Spare Time

Psalmonds will explain in simple detail how almost anyone, in his spare time, can easily begin making money. Best of all, to start, it takes little or no investment. The lecture is strictly educational. NO investments will be offered or sold.

Many Opportunities For Everyone

The purpose of this free lecture is to expose the public to the many extremely profitable money-making opportunities that exist all around you. It also serves as an introduction to a dynamic "one-day seminar." Mr. Psalmonds will show you at the seminar the simple step-by-step details of how YOU can easily take advantage of the (varied) real estate opportunities ... "just as the experts do!"

"You will learn how easy it is for almost anyone to gain financial independence today."

Free Lecture 8 P.M. Mon., Tues., & Wed.

The FREE lecture (no obligation) will be held tomorrow night, Monday, at 8 p.m. at the SOUTH COAST PLAZA HOTEL, Bristol St. at San Diego Fwy. (adj. to Newport Fwy.), Costa Mesa. (The lecture will be repeated this week at 8 p.m.: Tuesday at the SHERATON ANAHEIM HOTEL, Santa Ana Fwy. at Ball Road (near Disneyland), Anaheim; Wednesday at the GOLDEN SAILS RESTAURANT, 6285 E. Pacific Coast Hwy., just So. of Bellflower, Long Beach.

Columnist Riesel Appeals To Newsmen To Restore Objectivity

By SAM CAMPBELL
Register Associate Editor

FULLERTON – Organized labor is ting up government. Organized crime eating up organized labor. And the tion's newsmen are beguiled by the cadillos of former Rep. Wayne Hays nd a dead horse named Watergate.

That picture was brushed on a broad anvas Friday by syndicated columnist ictor Riesel to an audience at Fullerton ollege.

Virtually blinded in 1956 by union obsters, Riesel came to the podium on he arm of his wife. He spoke for nearly wo hours. The program was a part of he college-sponsored artist-lecture eries.

His speech was an appeal to the younger generation of newsmen to restore the objectivity and balance that have been abandoned, he alleged, by many of the current practioners of the news trade.

Riesel reserved his harshest blast for former CBS newsman Dan Schorr, who, Riesel charged, had stolen a classified intelligence document from a congressional committee and caused it to be printed.

"What is the difference between what Daniel Ellsberg did and what Daniel Schorr did:" Riesel asked.

He recalled that he himself had been guilty of a similar episode earlier in his career and believed that his act could have caused the death of an American intelligence agent.

"I never had the courage to look into it," he confessed.

"Newsmen," he said, "have a responsibility in the intelligence field to preserve the intelligence system, or we're doomed."

"Let me tell you what we are doomed for," he went on. "If we don't have an operative intelligence system, we are doomed to be painted into a geopolitical corner where we have no place to go except to throw thermonuclear bombs. Right now our intelligence system is demoralized, if not destroyed."

Much of the press today has a warped sense of justice, he asserted.

He cited the headline in a New York paper midway in that city's financial crisis. The headline inaccurately had alleged President Ford told the city "Drop Dead." The headline cost Ford the state's electoral votes and, consequently, the election, in Riesel's estimation.

He said one newspaper had assigned a private detective to dig up anything damaging on former Labor Secretary Peter Brennan.

"The word was to 'get him' one way or the other," Riesel said.

Brennan, he said, was hounded because he put 125,000 hardhats on the street to support Nixon's policies in the Far East during the Vietnam war.

Meanwhile, he said, the Mafia walks in and out of the White House and talks with Presidents as well as top intelligence agents.

Two underworld characters hired to kill Fidel Castro were themselves murdered in recent years, he reported.

Second and third-generation mafiosos are being assimilated into the ranks of the respectable through the routes of financial power. They are forging Treasury paper, stealing securities, and obtaining government payoffs by manipulation of computers.

Ruthless Jimmy Hoffa, he said, had been tutored by the Trotskyites. With paper locals, he captured New York City Teamsters and then the national organization. When Riesel was hit by acid-throwing mobsters, Hoffa was quoted, "They should have burned his hands as well as his eyes."

Union power is growing by virtue of the buildup of so-called pension funds.

Union locals cannot withstand the invasion of organized crime, he said, because reporters have abandoned coverage. The philosophical inclination is to find the pecadillos of Washington political figures.

"Get out there and get to some of the basic areas of investigation," he adjured newsmen. "Get to know the local chief of the rackets bureau and the district attorney. Sometimes they'll talk, sometimes they won't."

NEW TRANSPORT CHIEF MAY REQUIRE AUTO AIR BAGS

WASHINGTON (AP) – Rep. Brock Adams, President-elect Carter's choice for Secretary of Transportation, indicates he may overturn the controversial decision not to require air bags in new passenger cars.

Adams told the Senate Commerce Committee he planned to review that decision. He later told reporters he felt outgoing secretary William T. Coleman Jr. made the wrong choice if air bags and other passive restraints were as effective and as cheap as Coleman concluded.

"If the findings ... were correct, then I think we should be proceeding with passive restraints such as air bags," he said.

Passive restraints are devices that protect auto passengers in an accident without the passengers taking any action, such as buckling up seat belts. Coleman said the devices are effective but refused to order automakers to install them, saying he feared the public would not accept the devices.

Instead, he called for a demonstration program to acquaint the public with advantages of air bags in an auto crash.

Adams' comments came as the Washington Democrat sailed through a two-hour confirmation hearing. Adams, the first of Carter's cabinet choices to face Senate questioning, appeared headed for quick confirmation. He faced only friendly questions from the committee, which is headed by his fellow Washingtonian and old friend, Sen. Warren Magnuson.

Adams also told the committee he would not make any decision on the fate of the Concorde supersonic passenger plane until the 16-month test period authorized by Coleman ends in September. He said he would review Coleman's decision giving airlines eight years to quiet all existing subsonic jets which do not meet federal noise standards, indicating he had questions as to whether some of those older jets were worth quieting.

And he said he would like to review Coleman's decision allowing deepwater ports to be built off the coasts of Texas and Louisiana but was not legally able to do so unless the port operators turn down the licenses offered by Coleman.

Adams said he was concerned whether Coleman's decision contained adequate safeguards to keep the oil companies that will build and operate the so-called superports from raising oil prices unnecessarily and from making it difficult for tankers owned by competing oil firms to use the port facilities.

Adams told the committee he would order the department to study state no-fault insurance laws and to recommend whether a federal no-fault standard is needed. Adams and Carter both have said they support the no-fault concept because of the potential savings it offers consumers in avoiding costly court battles.

The secretary-designate also said he planned to study existing navigational aids and rules to determine how the tanker oil spills which recently have plagued the East Coast can be avoided.

He said he favored the concept of user taxes on barges and other commercial waterway users in order to equalize the financial burden barges and railroads face.

And he said he favored the idea of a single trust fund to handle all transportation projects instead of having several funds such as the Highway Trust Fund and the Aviation and Airport Development Trust Fund.

Pigeons May Have Spread Fatal Disease

AMES, Iowa (AP) – It's possible infected pigeons spread the so-called Legionnaires' disease that killed 29 persons in Philadelphia last summer, a scientist says.

Dr. Leslie A. Page, a microbiologist at the National Animal Disease Center, developed a test he said indicates chlamydiae bacteria could be responsible for the mysterious disease.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture and the federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta have emphasized more testing is needed to confirm the development announced.

In an interview, Page said if his finding is confirmed, Pennsylvania health authorities have told him the disease could be traced to a large flock of pigeons that roosted on the roof of the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia.

Legionnaires' disease broke out after a state American Legion convention involving the hotel in Philadelphia July 20-24. There were 180 cases, 29 of them fatal.

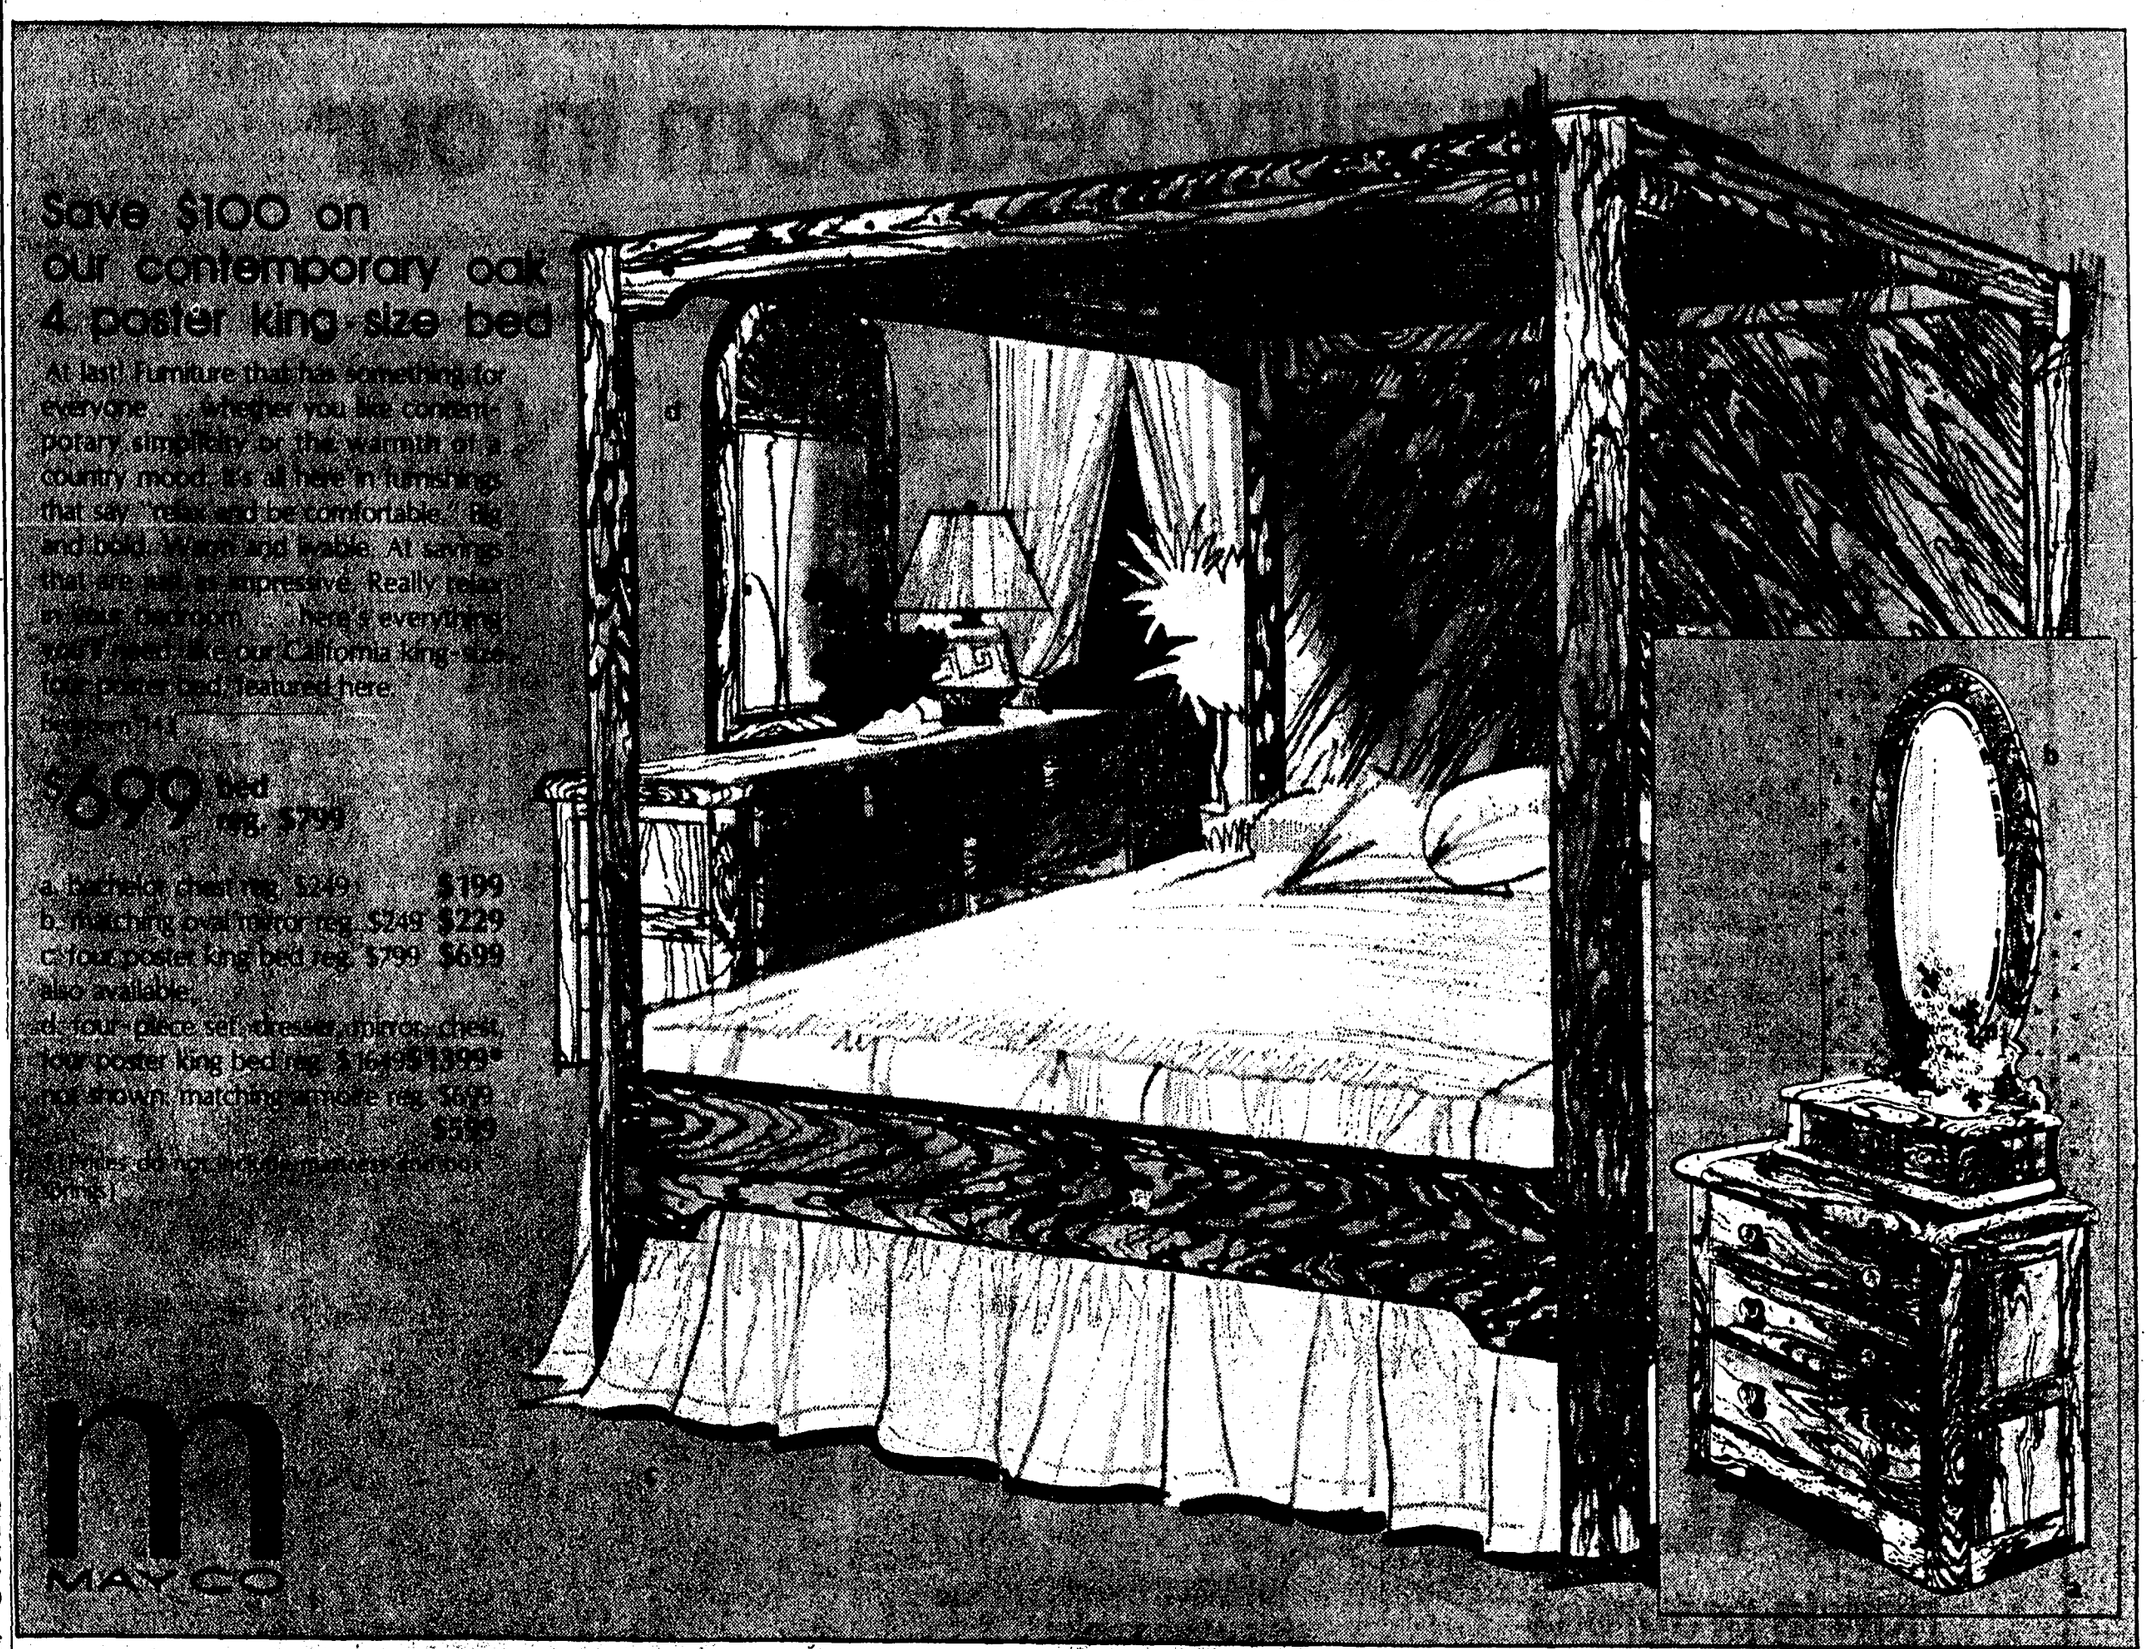
Tests on the blood serum of three patients out of four and a pathologist who became ill while studying victims' tissue samples show antibodies that fight against chlamydiae, a bacteria that causes disease in turkeys and parrots, Page said.

Two days into the epidemic, parrot fever was ruled out as a cause of Legionnaries' disease. Like the mysterious disease, parrot fever causes high fever and pneumonia in humans.

Federal epidemiologists said they could neither isolate the fever nor find chlamydiae in tissue samples.

Health officials have theorized that harmful bacteria from the infected pigeon droppings could have been "pulled into the air conditioning system" of the Bellevue-Stratford, Page said, then funneled into the rooms where the legionnaires were meeting.

The air-conditioning system that served those meeting rooms was a separtate unit from the one cooling the rest of the hotel, he said.



Dr. William O'Berry, director of the Ames laboratory, said "wild birds, like pigeons, carry the organism (chlamydiae)." The organism is also present in about 25 per cent of humans.

Thus, further testing is needed to assure that blood tested by Page in his experiments didn't come from persons who normally have chlamydiae in their systems, he said.

Page's preliminary tests were negative, O'Berry said, but the specialist in diseases of turkeys then devised "a new and more potent" testing method, which produced positive results.

Pennsylvania health officials will get a large number of blood samples from legionnaires within two weeks. O'Berry said, and those samples will be tested to confirm Page's work.

JEWISH STUDENTS START 'RUSSIAN LOCK-IN TEST

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) – Forced calisthenics and meals of bread and water were in store for 100 Jewish high school students who signed up to see what their lives might be like in Russia.

Behind the locked doors of the Jewish Community Center here, the students also were to hear a lecture on the persecution of Soviet Jews and a telephone conversation with a Jewish teen-ager in Moscow.

The overnight program began Saturday evening. A team of chaperones and children dressed like Soviet secret police with "khaki shirts and red armbands" planned to interrogate the teen-agers about their backgrounds and family history.

"The lock-in is designed to give the kids an idea of what it's like to live as a Jew in Russia," said Cathy Schuster, director of the program.

Mrs. Schuster called the event a demonstration of solidarity with Jews unable to leave Russia. The obstacles the youths faced were "similar to those encountered by their Russian brothers and sisters," she said.

Dr. Arnold Krammer, professor of history at Texas A(M University, was to discuss problems of Jewish life in Iron Curtain countries.

After a religious service, the youngsters planned to telephone a 16-year-old Jewish girl in Moscow, but since her parents did not have a telephone in their home, the girl was instructed to wait for the call at a Moscow post office.

Train Hits Car, SA Man Killed

COMMERCE – A Santa Ana man was killed Friday when the car he was riding in was hit by a train on a Union Pacific railroad track.

Salvador Ramos, 25, of 1642 W. Walnut Ave., died instantly when an engine pulling four cars hit the passenger side of the car at an uncontrolled crossing at Camfield Avenue, a Los Angeles County Sheriff's spokesman reported.

The driver of the car, Daniel Jiminez, 23, of Compton was treated at a hospital and released.

The train was traveling about 3 m.p.h., sounding its horn as it approached the crossing when the collision occurred.

A Union Pacific spokesman said the engineer didn't see the car.

Deaths Believed Murder, Suicide

FULLERTON – An apparent lovers' quarrel ended tragically Friday with two persons dead of gunshot wounds to the head, police said.

Evidence indicates Philip Harper Reams, 29, of 312 N. Hale Ave., shot Kathleen Cerda, also 29, of 306 N. Hale Ave., and then turned the gun on himself, police said.

Neighbors called police after hearing the shots about 6 p.m.

Amazon Conflict Festers Between Indians, Brazil Settlers

By RICHARD FOSTER

PORTO VELHO, Brazil (AP) – Seven years ago, naked Surui Indians stepped gingerly into a clearing in an Amazon rain forest near here and picked up knives, axes and scissors left as gifts in a peace offering by Brazilian government Indian agents.

Their life since has never been the same. It symbolizes the changes that have come over a dozen of Brazil's 43 surviving Indian tribes caught in an Amazon land boom that threatens their hunting and fishing grounds as well as their traditional way of life here in the territory of Rondonia.

White homesteaders are moving by the truckload into Indian territory every day and some specialists say trouble lies ahead unless Indian reservations are quickly established and marked out.

When the Suruis came out of the rain forest that day seven years ago, they numbered 800 men, women and children.

They had never before come into contact with the white man and had only occasionally seen rubber-tappers and nut-gatherers who came through their tribal lands.

"We had been on a hunting trip," Ngathega, a 25-year-old Surui, recalled through interpreters. "We saw the white men many times before he saw us. Many young braves wanted to kill them but the chiefs said no. They said the white men will help us against our enemies."

Now the Surui number only 200. They have been decimated by measles and tuberculosis, diseases against which they were defenseless. The men in the tribe cover their nakedness with bathing suits. Teen-age boys, the most susceptible to the encroaching influence of Brazilian civilization, wear sleek, pocketless slacks and platform shoes, imitating the fashion of the young whites of the Amazon frontier towns of Rondonia, about 1,600 miles northwest of Rio De Janeiro.

The tribe has gone from bows and arrows to shotguns in the time it took a 10-year old to become 17 and the effects of this change have been disastrous for the tribe's fragile forest culture, according to missionaries and federal Indian agents.

Theoretically protected by federal legislation, the Indians' once isolated Amazon reserve is being crisscrossed by highways, bringing settlers, ranchers, and large agribusiness and mineral exploitation firms.

Funai, an acronym for Fundacao Nacional do Indio, the federal Indian agency, is accused of dragging its heels in the demarcation of Indian reservations. Supporters of Funai say it is just one government agency which must cope with the many interests vying for control of the newly opened frontier. "Funai," said one Indian agent, "is well-intentioned but weak."

The Brazilian Roman Catholic Church has several affiliated bodies which work directly with the Indian. One of these, the Indian Missionary Council, has so harshly criticized Funai for the delay in drawing boundaries for the Indian reservations, that it has been banned from all Funai outposts.

A main function of Funai is to maintain the culture of the primitive Amazon Indians until they are ready to join modern Brazilian society.

William and Carolyn Bontkes, missionaries serving with the interdenominational Wycliffe Bible Translators of Waxhaw, N.C., have spent most of the past seven years working with the Surui and translating their language. When measles struck the tribe, they adopted a Surui baby girl whose parents died in the epidemic.

"Men in the tribe have asked if they could marry Uri when she is grown," Mrs. Bontkes said. "I told them that in our culture women choose their own husbands and they accepted that."

Because women have been more susceptible to epidemics, there is a shortage of marriageable women among the Surui. The problem set off a chain of events recently, culminating in an armed Surui uprising.

In November, 50 Surui men, most of them young, seized a federal Indian outpost south of here, driving off the Indian agents. They demanded boundaries for their tribal reservation which had been invaded by a number of homesteaders and their families in part of a land rush migration into the Amazon from Brazil's coastal states.

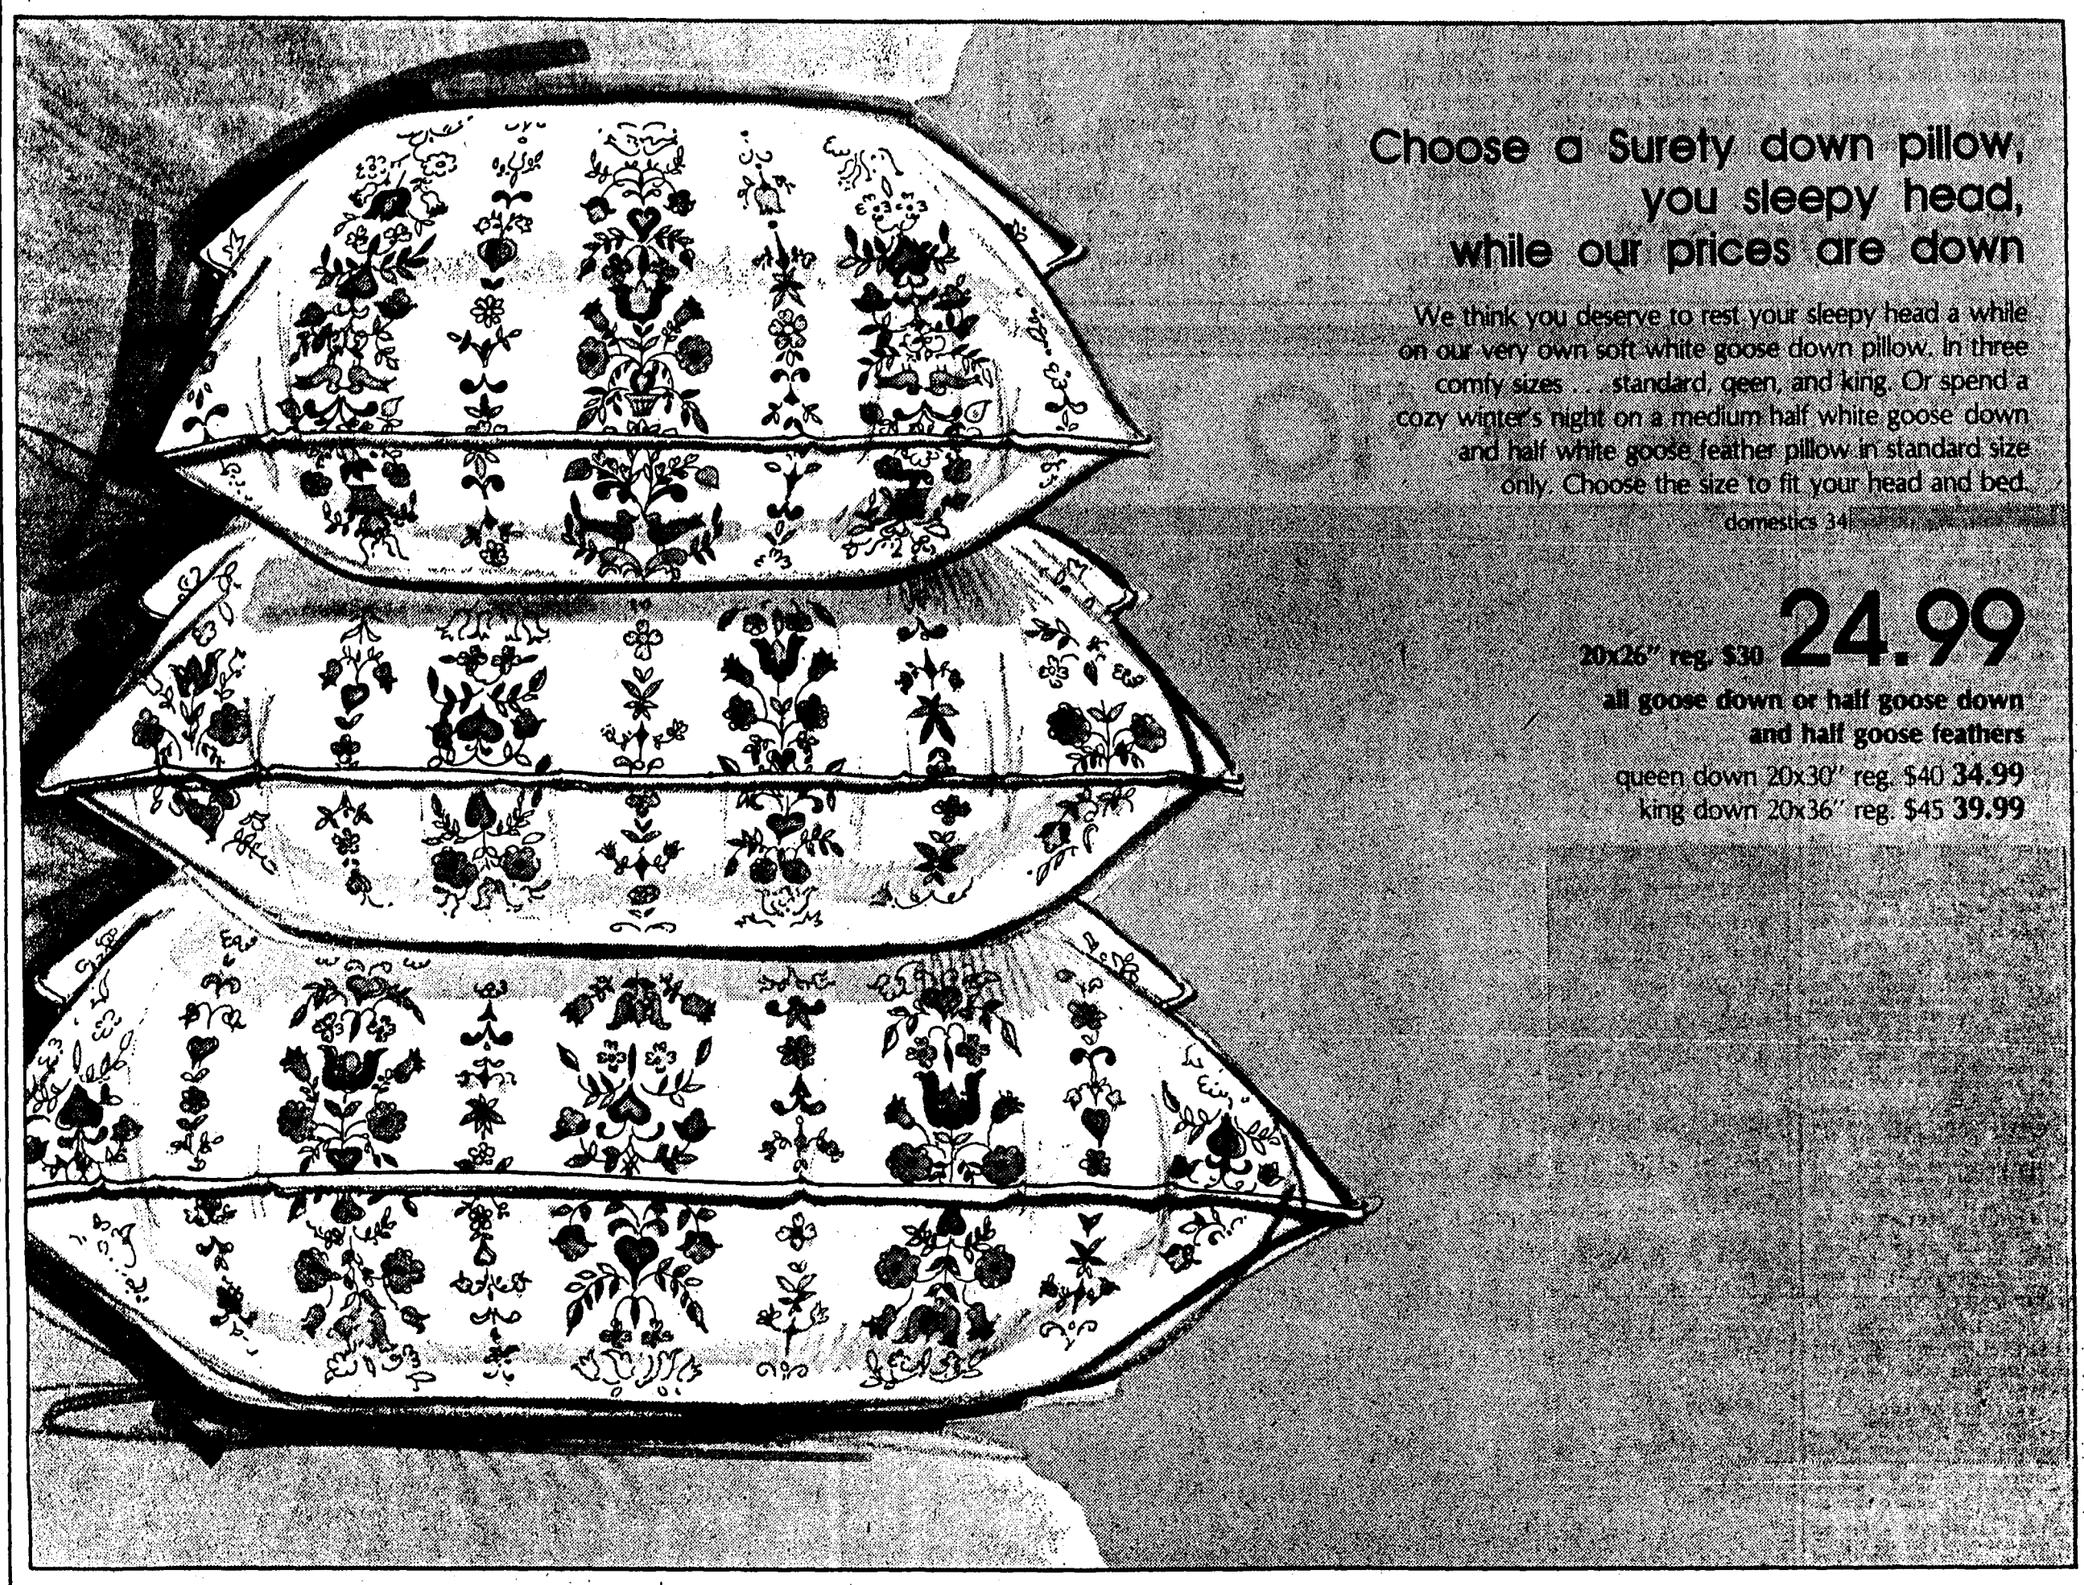
The uprising was triggered by a white farmer's killing and mutilation of an Indian brave, Oreia. Unable to find a wife within the tribe, the Indian had married the daughter of a white farmer. When his bride left him, the Indian allegedly killed a cousin of the white girl whom he suspected of stealing her away, according to missionaries who lived with the tribe.

The uprising, according to government Indian agents, allegedly was led by Oreia's brother, Anini, who personally made an appeal over the outpost's radio for help from Funai.

In Porto Velho, the capital of this federal territory of Rondonia, the local Funai administrative post is a modest single-story building erected long before the town mushroomed from 3,500 to 6,000 people.

Funai's new neighbor Incra (National Colonization and Agrarian Reform Institute), the federal land agency, is housed in a modern four-story building and boasts a small fleet of black chauffeured cars, carpets on its stairways, and a prosperous appearance befitting the power it wields in this landboom territory.

Rondonia is roughly the size of Oregon and has a rapidly growing population of about 200,000 people. About 15 truckloads of homesteaders come into the territory daily, according to people working in the Incra colonization areas.



About 250 miles south of here there is a town called Cacual with a population of 1,000 people in the center of the Incra homesteading area. The town did not exist five years ago.

"There are so many farmers coming in that Incra can't keep up with them. They just build a shack and plant a crop with no title and that leads into fights," said a Bolivian geologist.

During the Surui uprising in November settlers armed themselves against the Indians and threatened to invade the Indian reservation. They were calmed down only after the arrival of Gen. Ismarth Araujo de Oliveira, the Funai president who per-

South Laguna Man Named To Water Board

LAGUNA BEACH – Coastal Municipal Water District (CMWD) president James E. O'Connor has been named to the board of directors of the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California.

O'Connor, who lives with his wife and son in South Laguna, has been a member of the CMWD board for seven years.

CMWD's Lynndon Aufdenkamp also sits as a Metropolitan director and has represented the district for the past 20 years. A CMWD spokesman said increases in the district's assessed valuation entitled CMWD to two seats on the Metropolitan board.

Metropolitan is the major water distributor in Southern California, importing water from the Colorado River and Northern California.

Energy Topic Of Saddleback Essay Contest

EL TORO – An energy conservation essay and drawing contest is being conducted by the Saddleback Valley Chamber of Commerce for Saddleback Valley Unified School District students in grades 7 through 12.

Students will submit either essays or drawings featuring ideas on how energy can be conserved, chamber officials said. Key point in judging the entries will be originality of ideas.

Deadline for submitting entries to the chamber through local schools is Jan. 21.

First, second and third place winners will be announced Jan. 31, and will receive savings bonds furnished by local financial institutions.

Winning entries will then be forwarded to the Southern California Edison Co. and will be included in regional judging. Regional winners will be announced in Los Angeles Feb. 10.

Letter From Broke Brink's Robber Authenic, FBI Says

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) – High-living burned a $500,000 hole in Richard Rees' pocket, but the former Brink's guard says he's just as happy living like a hippie.

Rees, wanted in the robbery of a Brink's armored truck last year, described the theft and his life as a high-rolling fugitive in a 17-page letter titled "My Story."

The letter, postmarked Kansas, City, Mo., was the first word from Rees since the February 1976 robbery. It was addressed to local newspaper columnist Herb Caen for relay to the FBI. An FBI spokesman confirmed Friday they now have the letter and consider it authentic.

Rees, a 27-year-old former U.S. Marine, said he went to work for Brink's in 1975 because "this was the only way to do it without anyone getting hurt. I'm very much against violence."

On Feb. 11, 1976, the truck Rees was guarding stopped at a San Mateo, Calif. restaurant. He said he took the money out of the bags, put them in a box and told the driver "that I was selling a box of champagne to a girl inside the restaurant and he said 'good.'

Rees said he hid out in California for several weeks before catching a bus from Los Angeles to Ft. Worth, Tex.

It was there, Rees wrote, that he met the woman who "was later to be my downfall."

Rees, who left a wife and an ex-wife and daughter behind in the San Francisco Bay area, said he opened a night club with his new girl friend

"When I left Ft. Worth, I left L. with a night club, a truck, a Pacer car, two horses, TV and sound equipment, a wardrobe worth thousands. She gave me three hit men to get rid of me...she could have been set up for life, but she chose to have me hunted

Rees also said he squandered chunks of his loot on $2,000-a-pop bets on horses.

From Ft. Worth, he went to Austin where he said he met up with "K., who later turned out to be a lesbian swinger and crazy."

Finally, almost broke, he said he headed for New Mexico.

"In the last ten months I have spent more than the average man makes in a lifetime...Since my money has all but run out, I have changed to a lifestyle that uses little – or no – money. I guess I have sort of gone the way of the hippie. Of all the life styles I have been through, I like this one the best.

"In the next year I hope to see the rest of the United States. It's really surprising to see how differently people live. Now I wish I didn't have the FBI and the hit men looking for me."

Rees asked Caen to give the letter to the FBI. "I know the lone hit man has followed me here and I'm trying to get out of town. If I don't, here is my story."

After his signature, Rees wrote: "Coke is the evil in my heart – six sails to sunset."

Papers Available For SA Election

SANTA ANA – Nomination papers for city council candidates in the April municipal election are available now at city hall.

Two of the four councilmen up for re-election, Gordon Bricken and James Ward, took out their papers Thursday, the first day they were available.

In addition to Bricken's ward 1 seat and Ward's seat in ward 3, Mayor John Garthe's ward 5 seat and councilman Harry Yamamoto's ward 7 seat are open. All four councilmen are eligible to run for re-election.

Nominating papers, which must be signed by not less than 20 nor more than 30 registered voters residing in the candidate's ward, are available at the city clerk's office on the eighth floor of city hall, 22 Civic Center Plaza.

Economic interest forms, required under the political reform act, also are available and must be filed with the clerk at the same time nomination papers are filed.

Deadline for filing the papers is noon, Jan. 17.

suaded the Indians to give up their arms.

Araujo de Oliveira said Incra officials had agreed to remove the homesteaders from the Indian reservation, pending Funai's demarcation of the Surui land.

"There are those who want to treat the Indian like a homesteader. Give them a piece of land and that's that. But the Indian must have land to fish and hunt, to carry on his traditional way of life until he is ready to become part of Brazilian society," the general added.

Others were less optimistic that the settlers could be removed. "They'll never get the homesteaders off that land," said a geologist familiar with the area. "They came in here with nothing and now this is home."

Horoscope Guide For The Week Of Jan. 9-15

AIRES: (March 21 to April 19 – Also Aries Ascendant) Resist tendency to push forward in career matters – give others the limelight. Avoid confrontations and if they occur take the compromising position. Don't alienate those whose support you'll need later. Be cautious in romance.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 – Also Taurus Ascendant) Your mind clicks along like a finely tuned watch and solutions to difficult problems come out of the blue. Romance and demonstrated affection are favored. Don't overdo and deplete energy – get lots of rest.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 21 – Also Gemini Ascendant) You have prestige and importance in career matters now. A note of romance could enter in, combining business with pleasure. You have opportunities through someone in the background who is very supportive financially.

CANCER: (June 22 to July 22 – Also Cancer Ascendant) Communications are highlighted. It is a favorable time for a short pleasure trip. Single Cancerians may find a new exciting romance. Study or learning a new hobby could bring you great pleasure. Remain objective when helping a friend.

LEO: (July 23 to Aug. 22 – Also Leo Ascendant) Use all your creativity and versatility this week. Introduce these abilities into your business affairs. Curb your temper when dealing with associates or employes. Entertain informally in your home for good friends.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 – Also Virgo Ascendant) Extend yourself and get into the swim of fast-paced activity. Talk with those in authoritative positions who can advance your career goals. Rework budget – take care of detailed paperwork. You work best alone now.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 – Also Libra Ascendant) Workload is heavy and overtime may be necessary. Approach romance cautiously just now – the person may not be all he or she seems. If shopping for a major purpose, look around for the best price and curb extravagance.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 – Also Scorpio Ascendant) You could be aware that someone important in your life needs help. Offer it and feel no personal affront if your help is turned down. Keep up the good work in career – rewards are upcoming. Enjoy your solitude.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 – Also Sagittarius Ascendant) If you can clear up some long-standing debts do so now and don't get in over your head again. Curb the desire to argue – you could lose a friend. Extend yourself charmingly. Don't be too opinionated.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 – Also Capricorn Ascendant) Happiness with a loved one will carry you through your concern with unsatisfactory situations at work. Money may still be tight and your workload is heavy but you can manage and even find some humor in it all.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 – Also Aquarius Ascendant) Your income may improve but you must curb extravagance or you will regret it deeply later on. A romantic partner from the past may reappear and you can enjoy a friendly relationship but nothing more.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 – Also Pisces Ascendant) You may be overly generous to a neighbor or friend who is taking advantage of you. Try to be more objective and play it cool. Someone very dear to you can cause you emotional distress by an unfair attitude.

Nicotine Foes' Efforts Go Up In Smoke

WASHINGTON (AP) – Despite antismoking campaigns and warnings that they are potential health hazards, cigarettes are being puffed more than ever and the trend shows no sign of slowing, according to the Agriculture Department.

This year, the department said in a new tobacco review, Americans smoked an estimated 620 billion cigarettes, up 2.1 per cent from 607.2 billion consumed in 1975.

"With further gains expected next year in population and consumer spending, cigarette consumption and output may rise further," the report said.

Officials added that "the trend toward low-tar, low-nicotine cigarettes" probably will continue.

The report estimated that American smokers spent nearly $16.6 billion on tobacco this year against $15.6 billion in 1975, more than 90 per cent of it on cigarettes.

your horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

MONDAY, JANUARY 10

Your birthday today: Sees you well along a moderately easy path to natural prosperity, according to how well you fit into existing local conditions. Temptation is toward drift, underuse of opportunity. Don't neglect spiritual values or you tip subtle balances unfavorably. Today's natives have nimble minds, mercurial dispositions, much curiosity about what others are thinking. Those born this year develop strong intuition to supplement their inherent political skills.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: The less you do by way of innovation, the better. Alert listening brings perception, as slips of the tongue are the norm. Don't waste money on luxury purchases.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: You work toward meaningless complexity unless people can use their systems of analysis. Let them simmer undisturbed, with a chance to reverse opinions, become positive.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: What is said in public is risky. Others misunderstand or assume you refer to what they know but you don't. Reevaluate private matters. Pay bills, get adequate receipts.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Stick to well-worn routines and all is deceptively easy. Apply bright ideas and nothing comes out as planned. Exaggerated gestures lack proper interpretation.

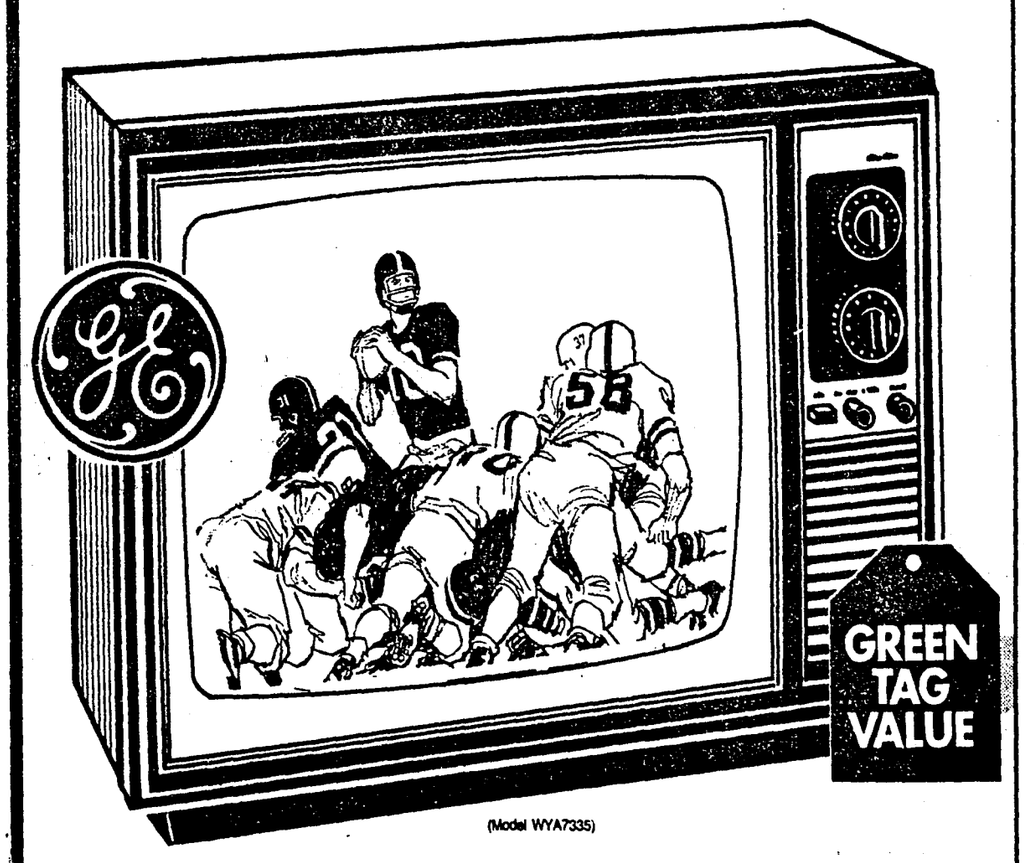
Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Leave guessing, long-shot gambles to others. Reinspect your position, recent moves. See if corrections should be offered before others ask it. Friends are moody.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Today's decisions are knocked out by something more important tomorrow, a factor not now recognized. Not everybody at hand belongs in your future; make choices.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Relations run a cycle from one extreme to another, some dramatically visible, others subtly expressed. Details must be repeated outside normal sequence.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Regroup inner energy for a huge step forward. Join forces, yes; accept more responsibility, no. Use current drift patterns for discreet social relaxation.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Be patient with imperfection. Long-range efforts progress unevenly, need revisions soon. Lesser people try to help, expect tremendous compensation.



Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Theory prevails, crowds out practical activities that bring immediate results. Unsound projects outdated by technical advances falter, aren't worth fresh investment.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Tearing down is far easier than assembling anything of importance. Money-making schemes must be genuinely original, well thought out now for launching later.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Explanations create more confusion than the unanswered problems. Avoid showdown encounters, experimental procedures. Your team isn't ready to take the field yet.

PUBLIC INVITED

FREE SEMINAR TUESDAY AND THURSDAY

"How to Amass a Fortune in Gold and Silver"

NEWPORT BEACH (Special). The purpose of this FREE seminar is to expose to the public our investment plan that puts gold and silver within reach of virtually all who want to achieve financial security and independence. This program will explain in detail what may be the most exciting, most effective asset building tool in recent history: THE MIDAS PLAN FROM MONEX.

Opportunity for Everyone

Through The Midas Plan, anyone, even those with modest income can accumulate large amounts of gold and silver by investing small amounts on a regular basis. It does not require a lot of money. In fact, Midas is intended specifically to help the person with limited assets to build a strong financial base.

Monex Tells "How"

This educational seminar will be conducted by Monex, one of the world's largest investment houses specializing in precious metals for the individual investor. You'll learn step-by-step how you can invest as little as $500 initially with $50 a month thereafter, and still build a sizeable estate in gold and silver.

A Lifetime of Benefits and Advantages Never Before Offered the Average Investor

You'll learn about Midas' low cost-per-ounce bulk pricing, the advantages of dollar-cost averaging, how to acquire a pro rata portion of a bar of gold or silver . . . many of the advantages previously reserved for large or institutional investors.
Monex will also explain in simple detail why gold and silver have stayed well ahead of the dollar in terms of real purchasing power. And why precious metals since 1967 have outpaced inflation like no bank, bond or savings and loan investment has.

Limited Space — Make Reservations Now

To reserve seats call Mrs. Chisholm at (714) 752-1400, ext. 243 or 272. The FREE seminar (no obligation) will be held Tuesday and Thursday nights at 7:30 P.M. at the Registry Hotel at 18800 Mac Arthur in Irvine across from Orange County Airport. Everyone is invited. There are no requirements other than a sincere desire for a solid source of supplemental income. Bring your spouse and come as you are.

Development Firm Makes Offer For Coyote Hills

By VICKI LIBERMAN
Register Staff Writer

FULLERTON – A land company seeking commercial development of part of the 1,000-acre West Coyote Hills oil fields has offered the city what it claims is $4 million worth of land improvement – provided the council adopts a land use plan they feel is acceptable."

Peter Ochs, of Fullerton Hills Development Co., said that the offer will expire on Feb. 8 if the council has not adopted an "acceptable plan."

Following about three years of hearing and study, a master plan calling for about 426 acres of open space with an overall density of 2.5 units per acre was recently chosen by the council.

According to Ochs, that plan is "acceptable" to Fullerton Hills Development Co.

Controversy over the development of the hills area has been brewing for about three years. Fullerton Hills Development Co., which consist of Chevron Land & Development Co and William Lyon Co., was formed at that time in an attempt to acquire and develop 300 acres of non-oil producing land.

It was largely due to the developer's request that the city council decided to study the entire 1,000 acres and develop a master plan.

Ochs said the company's offer will include dedication of about 55 to 60 acres for parks, scenic trails, open space, grading landscaping and other improvements.

The offer, he said, represents net savings to the city of about $2.4 million in land and improvement costs and about $1.6 million in potential interest charges.

Ochs said if the council does not select an "acceptable" plan, the offer will be withdrawn.

"The next public hearing on the Coyote Hills will be the 40th in three years," Och said. "We figure we've spent about $250,000 so far between direct costs and time put in."

Planned homes in the West Coyote Hills area would range from expensive estate type dwellings priced at about $150,000 to "moderate cost condominiums" at about $45,000, the developer said.

The average development would run about $85,000 to $90,000.

In addition to the developer's offer, a representative of Standard Oil Co. of California also announced that land for a 38-acre proposed nature park in the West Coyote Hills would be made available to the city at a cost of $20,000 per acre – again, only if an "acceptable" plan is adopted by the council.

Bill Wren of Standard Oil said Standard believes the $210,000 price is "very reasonable and definitely below fair market value." Wren said the company would give the city until Jan. 1, 1981 to pay off the land.

In addition, Standard also plans to dedicate about 60 acres of parks, bikeways and trails to the city "when the oil field is released for uses other that oil and extraction."

Although the city council has expressed a development preference by selecting a master plan, at least one community group does not plan to let the controversy matter rest.

Members of CHOOSE (Coyote Hills Open Space Organization to Save Our Environment) have said they will launch a referendum campaign if the proposed master plan is adopted by the council.

CHOOSE wants to plan which provides at least two-thirds open space, according to Ralph Kennedy, a member of the group's steering committee.

All Systems Go For Super Bowl XI

Sunday Succotash

Nearly a year ago – several months before the Minnesota Vikings and Oakland Raiders began their summer training camps – Pacific Telephone already was preparing for Super Bowl Eleven.

Last February, representatives from the NFL office and PT&T met to begin plans for Sunday's championship game. Communications plans, that is.

Since then, thousands of man-hours and hundreds of thousands of dollars have been devoted to the game by the 'phone company. Last month a crew of four telephone men began preparations at the Rose Bowl for the extensive communications package required. Working 10 to 12 hours a day, the foursome installed 500 telephones requiring 600 separate circuits and enough wire to encircle the stadium 500 times.

During today's game, 'phone crews will be behind the scenes at the stadium and at various locations in the Southland. Essentially, PT&T picks up the television picture in a mobile facility at the Rose Bowl from the NBC director's trailer. After insuring the quality, it is relayed via microwave to Mt. Wilson, where it again goes through a quality check.

VIDEO SIGNALS RELAYED

From there, the signal is microwaved to NBC's Burbank studios where master control personnel select the video signals to be relayed for transmission. Then, it's back to two centers in Los Angeles and Hollywood to begin the first leg of a journey to the nation on the Bell System network.

The big communications package includes a private line a few hundred feet from the press box to the sidelines for the coaches and a sophisticated conference-calling arrangement from the press box roof to NBC studios in New York.

Like the job of the game officials – if it's done properly nobody will know they're even there. But you'll be able to concentrate on Fran's scrambling and Kenny's passing.

Dunno how you-all feel about the outcome. Seems like Oakland ought to win from here to there and yet, on this Sabbath, you wonder if the ol' minister's son, Fran (The Man) Tarkenton, won't get the job done – somehow, some way....

ARE THE ANGELS HAUNTED?

If this is to be the year of The Angel it isn't starting out so good. Six days into 1977 there's that dreadful accident on a Louisiana road....and Mike Miley, the youthful shortstop, is dead....This was a stunner. The LSU graduate (who chose pro baseball over pro football) figured in Angel plans even though the club has Bobby Grich penciled in at shortstop....

If you are superstitious you wonder if, after all, there's really a hex out there somewhere The Angels certainly haven't been lucky since their flight from Los Angeles to Anaheim....

First there was the bullpen pitcher, Dick Wantz, who died from a brain tumor. There was Minnie Rojas, crippled forever by an accident down in Florida. Rojas was on the Hawaii roster, an Angel affiliate at the time. Chico Ruiz, whimsical inventor of the "play me or bench me" wisecrack, was killed in an auto accident near San Diego....

Two years ago next month Bruce Heinbechner, a young pitcher, was fatally injured in a traffic crash at Palm Springs....and in there somewhere there was Bobby Valentine, a potential star, slowed down by a serious ankle injury after crashing into an outfield fence.

WHAT TIME IS TIME?

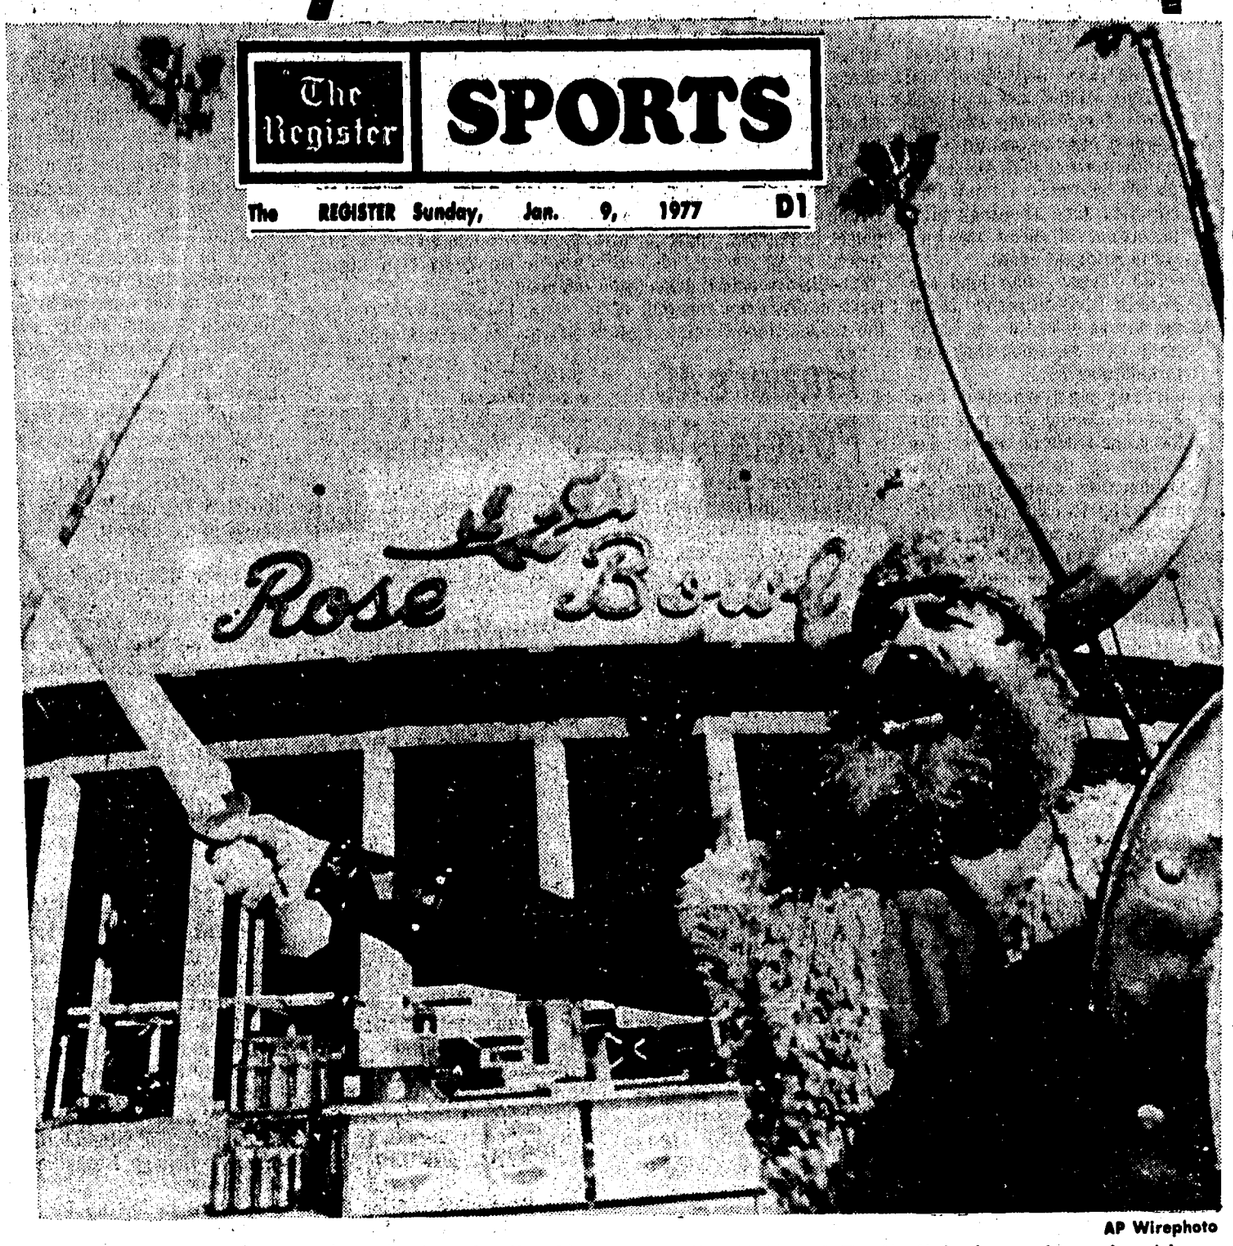
Department buzzer: Question: "Hi, what time does the Super Bowl start?" Answer: 12:30, our time. Buzzer: "What time is the kickoff?"....

Matteos of Corona del Mar hosted Dave Rowe of the Raiders, former Dallas Cowboy Ralph Neely and friends Thursday at what they called an Italian feats. Caller says they made owner Nick Fusco an "honorary fan" whatever that is....

You can buy Super Bowl XI programs even if you no-show today. They'll send you one by mail from Winona, Minn....if you think it's worth $2.50. Time was when you could sit on the 50-yard line for $2.50....

Department buzzer: Question: "What channel will carry the Super Bowl? One of mine is dead and I must have it fixed if that's the one."...

Van Barbieri of the L.A. Olympic says Westminster's world welterweight champion Carlos Palomino is only even-steven against challenger Mando Muniz for their 15-rounder at the Olympic Jan. 22. Carlos says she'll take today off and watch the Super Bowl but goes back to the grindstone tomorrow afternoon (2:30) at the Westminster gym....which the Olympic spells Westminster....



Out of deference to the Super Bowl, Santa Anita will be "dark" today yet there will be activity there just the same. KNBC's "Sunday Show" is using Clockers' Corner as a setting for a taped program scheduled for airing right after the Super Bowl. As usual, Clockers' Corner will provide full breakfast....

Jim Dan warns the sports corner: "Ken Stabler is called The Snake, and in Chinese this is the year of The Snake."....

QUOTE, UNQUOTE

Norm Sherry, manager of the Angels: "I don't like to make predictions although I'll tell you this: If our regulars can play 150 games this season we should have a helluva year. We'll be better offensively than any Angel team since the club moved to Anaheim in 1966. Two-thirds of the games we lost after I took charge last year (his record was 37-29) could have been won with our present offense. Between now and the season opener at Seattle April 6, we'll make a decision on our starting third baseman, our third outfielder (between Rudi and Bonds) and a lefthander to strengthen the pitching staff."

Dennis (Butch) Soper shot a perfect 300 in the $30,000 pro bowling tournament at Torrance Thursday. If Butch (nobody has called him Dennis since he was a baby) could have saved it for today's TV finals it would have been worth $10,000 in cash and a new car by Ford.

BRING ON THE RAIDERS – Hub Meeds, the Minnesota Vikings team mascot lets out a bellow in front of the Rose Bowl in full Viking gear as he warms up for Super Bowl XI in Pasadena. The Vikings meet the Oakland Raiders today at 12:30 for the National Football League championship. Today's Super Bowl is the first ever played in the Rose Bowl. Oakland is a 4 1/2 point choice in the showdown battle.

Oakland Solid 4 Over Vikes

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) – Oakland's Ken Stabler and Fran Tarkenton of the Minnesota Vikings, two of the National Football League's finest quarterbacks, go after the NFL championship that has proven so elusive for their teams in today's Super Bowl XI.

After three days of rain had caused some disruption in practice schedules, the weather turned fair Saturday and clear skies were forecast for the game to be played at the historic Rose Bowl. A capacity crowd of more than 104,000 fans will set an attendance record for the game which starts its second decade as an American sports extravaganza.

The bad weather had had the NFL worried, and the league was prepared to dry the field artificially.

"We have two helicopters on standby," said Commissioner Pete Rozelle. "The field is covered but there has been some flooding from the tunnels. It probably will be a little soft, but very playable if it stops raining."

As if on signal from Rozelle, it stopped raining. Sunny skies and comfortable temperatures in the upper 50s and low 60s erased the memory of leaky clouds that had spilled intermittant showers all week.

The Raiders, champions of the American Football Conference, remained four-point favorites over the NFC champion Vikings. Both teams were trying to shake a loser's rap that dogs them despite the fact that they have the two best records in professional football this decade.

Minnesota was in the big game for the fourth time and still was searching for its first Super Bowl victory. The Vikings lost 23-7 to Kansas City in 1970, 24-7 to Miami in 1974 and 16-6 to Pittsburgh in 1975.

The Raiders, winners of nine division championships in the last 10 years, had made a habit of being kayoed in the playoffs until this season. Oakland made it to the Super Bowl only once before in all those years, losing the second game of the series 33-14 to Green Bay in 1967.

With Tarkenton and Stabler at the controls, both teams present a formidable passing game that spurs their offenses

Tarkenton owns every major NFL passing record and enjoyed another big year for the Vikings, throwing for 2,961 yards and completing a conference-high 61.9 per cent of his attempts. His 255 completions led the league.

Stabler was the NFL's top-ranked passer based on a complicated formula used by the league to measure quarterback efficiency. He led the league with 27 touchdown passes, and he topped Tarkenton in completion percentage with a sparkling 66.7.

Both quarterbacks have impressive tools at their disposal.

Chuck Foreman of the Vikings is considered the most versatile running back in football today. He rushed for 1,155 yards, fourth best in the NFC, and caught 55 passes for 567 more, finishing second among conference pass receivers.

Joining him in the backfield are Brent McClanahan and Robert Miller, who share the other running back slot. Between them, the two rushed for 668 yards and caught 63 passes for 433 yards.

At wide receiver, the Vikings use NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year Sammy White and Ahmad Rashad, acquired before the season from the expansion Seattle Seahawks. White caught 51 passes for 906 yards, and Rashad grabbed 53 for 671. Tight end Stu Voigt, a major third-down target, had 28 catches for 303 yards.

Stabler has two all-pros to aim for in tight end Dave Casper, who led the team with 53 catches for 691 yards, and wide receiver Cliff Branch, who had 46 for 1,111. The other wide man, Fred Biletnikoff, had 43 receptions for 551 yards.

Mark van Eeghan is the chief Raiders ball carrier with 1,012 yards rushing. Clarence Davis gained 516 and Pete Banaszak 370. The three backs also caught 59 passes among them for 538 yards.

Past Super Bowls have been low-scoring affairs, but this one could be different. At least, that's how Minnesota Coach Bud Grant sees it.

"It won't be a 14-10 game," said Grant. "With the high quality of players you have at quarterback and the skill positions, you'll see scores."

Defensively, the Raiders employ a somewhat unorthodox three-man front with four linebackers. Up front, Oakland uses Otis Sistrunk and John Matuszak at the ends, with Dave Rowe at middle guard. The linebackers are Phil Villapiano, Monte Johnson, Willie Hall and Ted Hendricks . In the secondary, Skip Thomas and Willie Brown man the corners with George Atkinson at strong safety and Jack Tatum at free safety.

The Raiders' defense has often been charged with playing dirty football. They prefer to describe their style as aggressive football.

"Usually, we heard that dirty stuff after we beat other teams," said Coach John Madden. "We lost to New England early in the season 48-17 and nobody said we were dirty that day."

Is Tark's Best Play Illegal?

The Minnesota Vikings have practically built their offense around a simple play – quarterback Fran Tarkenton rolling to his right and dumping the ball off to elusive Chuck Foreman.

The two Oakland Raiders linebackers who will be trying to defense the play today in Super Bowl XI say it's no wonder that short pass is so successful – it's illegal.

Inside linebacker Monte Johnson and outside linebacker Phil Villapiano contend that what makes the play work is a form of offensive interference called an illegal "pick."

They claim that Vikings tight end Stu Voigt slants to the inside and either hooks or jams the linebacker, enabling running back Foreman to gather in the toss and head upfield before the defensive player can get to him.

"It's a form of cheating, but they seem to get away with it," says Johnson. "Voigt makes it look like a running play and all he has to do is delay the linebacker long enough, as quick as Foreman is.

"You say, 'Everybody knows it's coming, why can't they stop it?' The illegal pick is why. It's junk football, but it works."

Villapiano agrees that the play is illegal but says there are ways to defend against it.

Mad Mix: Mania And Roses

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) – This is the Sunday that ministers cut short their sermons, stores close, streets empty, crime takes a virtual holiday and a fourth of America goes into hibernation for four hours with a television screen.

It is Super Bowl Sunday. It is the nation's most grandiose one-day spectacular. It is the culmination of five months of an addiction known as pro football madness.

They call it Super Bowl Sunday. It is all of that and more.

In its simplest sense, it is the championship game of the National Football League. It matches two powerful teams fired by past frustrations: the Minnesota Vikings, three times in the bowl but never a winner, and the Oakland Raiders, whose wealth of talent has taken them into six playoffs and one final without ever grabbing the diamond-studded ring.

Yet the game – this time in the historic Rose Bowl before its largest live crowd ever – has come to represent only a part of the giant extravaganza which has been built into a show business triumph and a press agent's dream.

A live crowd of 104,000, almost 25,000 more than have ever seen the game before, will pour into the Rose Bowl, scene of college football's oldest postseason rivalry. An estimated 75 million will watch on television, millions of others receiving description by radio.

This is the figure announced by the National Broadcasting Company, backed by the Neilson Rating System. NBC, which alternates with CBS in the televising, is paying $3.5 million for the privilege.

More people will see the game than watched Neil Armstrong take his first step on the moon. Twenty-one companies – hawkers of auto tires, beer, insurance, soft drinks and assorted items and services – will shell out $250,000 a minute to get their message across.

No other sports event attracts such a figure.

NBC said its TV coverage would be one of the broadest and most sophisticated ever attempted. A crew of 180 technicians will operate equipment valued at $5 million, including 14 stationary and three handheld cameras plus another beamed from a blimp. There will be an array of slow motion replay discs and videotape machines.

The appetite of the fans, already at a high saliva level, will be whetted by pre-game network shows Saturday night and a full hour of pre-game viewing Sunday. Joe Namath will frolic with Hollywood beauties in an NBC show Saturday night. Cincinnati's all-star catcher, Johnny Bench, will do a skit with Sammy Davis in a CBS show called "Super Night at the Super Bowl," also Saturday night.

This being the land of make-believe, Hollywood personalities will saturate the screens along with sports superstars. But the hero of the extravagant halftime production will be an old favorite out of the past, Mickey Mouse.

Walt Disney Productions was hired to choreograph the midgame program, which will be marked by fan participation. All the spectators will be provided color cards which will turn into a shimmering sea when viewed from above by a blimp.

Kickoff is at 12:30 p.m., PST, or 3:30 p.m., EST.

Spectators have been asked to leave for the stadium four hours in advance of the game. Paying $20.00 each for tickets, they represent a live gate of $2,080,000.

Few of them will be the regular Sunday fans. Tickets are a precious commodity, the bulk of them having been allocated previously. The Los Angeles Rams (home area) get 30,000; the competing clubs, 15,000 each with 1,000 each to the other 25 NFL clubs, others to the TV networks, commercial sponsors, political personalities and for promotional purposes.

"Some go to fans who write for them," said Don Weiss, an aide to Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Malibu Swept By Shoemaker

ARCADIA – World champion jockey Bill Shoemaker dominated the scene at Santa Anita Park Saturday, winning both divisions of the Malibu Stakes for 4-year-olds and two other races for four consecutive talleys.

Entremont's Cojak, second choice of the crowd 36,329, scored an easy four-length win in the $42,800 first half of the seven-furlong stakes, and Meadow Stable's Romantic Lead came between horses in midstretch for a half-length victory in the second division.

Cojak, making his first California start, paid $6.40, $4, and $3.40 after running the seven-eights in 1.23 on a slow track under 117 pounds. Runner-up Double Discount returned $5.40 and $4.00, and Little Riva, who was a neck back in third, paid $6.60 to show.

Romantic Lead carried 114 pounds to beat Maheras while running the Malibu second division in 1.22 2/5. The winner paid $9.80, $4.40 and $3.20, while Maheras returned $3.80 and $3. Life's Hope was another six lengths back in third and paid $3.40.

Cojak, running for a partnership of Maryland owners, was one of 1976's better 3-year-olds but inclined to get in trouble by bothering other horses in his races. Disqualified from first in the Jersey Derby last year, Cojak came from third place to run a true course under Shoemaker's special touch. He earned $26,050.

Romantic Lead, bred and owned by Meadow Stable of Secretariat fame, kept well back until making a move on the turn in the second division. Shoemaker found a spot between the front-runners and dueled with Maheras until taking the narrow lead a jump from the wire.

Sawdust

Finally, It's Super Sunday

By CARL SAWYER

One of the nice things about the Super Bowl is that it only lasts a week.

Or is it two weeks?

By the time the last ink-stained wretch exits the Southland sometime Monday, dragging his credit cards and miles of shredded typewriter ribbon, Super Bowl XI will have inspired more prose than perhaps only two other historical happenings that shook the world.

Dec. 7, 1941, and Dec. 27, 1976.

Everyone knows why these dates remain etched in infamy.

Dec. 7, 1941 – That was the Sunday morning when a Japanese admiral with a sake-saturated Saturday night hangover decided he wanted pineapple for breakfast and sent his crew of fliers to Hawaii to fetch it only to discover all Honolulu markets closed. They shot up the place when they discovered they wouldn't be able to satisfy their admiral's whim and the darned thing got out of hand and the incident stretched on and on and on, lasting nearly four years before they got things patched up and now admirals and even Japanese tourists can buy pineapple anytime they like all over Oahu.

Dec. 27, 1976 – Another Sunday to remember...when two NFL teams that could never win the big one, finally won the big one to advance to Super Bowl XI, 11th edition of post-season extravaganzas produced by Pete Rozelle Productions, a New York based outfit that gleefully scoops up dollars in the hinterlands each January rather than put the squeeze on citizens of Fun City.

The buildup to a Super Bowl might better be called "Operation Overkill." You know it's overkill when writers begin writing about other writers and how they are writing about the Super Bowl. Players and coaches are so tired of looking at reporters and reporters are so tired of looking at players and coaches that the whole thing may end just in time to prevent an explosion of expletives from both factions.

Readers About Headlined Out

Southland readers must be about headlined-out by now and they won't tee the ball up for kickoff in the Rose Bowl until 12:30 p.m. today, right in the middle of all those Sunday brunches served up by thousands of Southland chefs who must wonder what Pete Rozelle has against them.

After we learned on Dec. 27 that Minnesota's Vikings and the Raiders of Oakland had ended their frustrations by winning a big one to advance to Super Bowl IX, some of the gaudiest headlines have reported:

Lock Up Your Women! Oakland Has Arrived...Purple People Eaters Bunk At South Coast Plaza...Super XI Sigalert...Madden's Guarantee: Game Must Be Played.

Stabler: Where The Hell Is Irvine?...Stabler: Where The Hell Is Orange County?...Grant: Portrait Of An Iceburg...The Intimidator, And The Market Man...Umhappy Foreman Livens Vike Camp...There Are Trojans In That Raider Horse...Raiders Have Trojan Edge...Vikes: Losers That Win.

Rose Bowl Is Rain-Proof, Or So They Say...Fran's Obsession: To Win The Big One...Stabler Pooh-Poohs Tark...Woes Of Alan Page...All Madden Can Do Is Win Games...Rival Coaches Dispute Rain Disadvantage.

Now, brace yourself for the wrapups, the postmortems, the obituaries and the final headline blasts.

Two of the major benefits of Super Bowl XI may well be that Kenny Stabler, one of those good old boys from Alabama, has learned where Irvine is located. Another would be that a Pasadena sports editor who consistently and mistakenly datelined his stories from Val State Irvine will learn that it is UC Irvine which hosted Oakland workouts.

Now we can understand why the Jet Propulsion Lab was located in the Southland to conduct space probes to see if there is any form of life in Pasadena.

Rain or shine, Super Bowl XI goes today at 12:30 at Pasadena's Rose Bowl. Minnesota coach Bud Grant says he will be out of the Southland and headed back to Minnesota by 10 a.m. Monday.

There may be a message there.

Super Bowl XI production manager Rozelle promises that the winning coach of today's titanic will conduct a final press conference for the media Monday morning at 11 a.m.

Boyd's Best Man Whistle

SAWDUST – Now that Cal State Irvine can return to being UC Irvine and they've swept the pro football groupies out of the lobbies of the Marriott and South Voast Plaza, Orange County can return to its normal January routine of watching basketball, picking winners at Los Alamitos and Santa Anita and completing tax forms...The California Angeles have a new radio advertisement on the airwaves proclaiming that Angel baseball will be the best sports bargain in 1977 for sports fans. Angel baseball may be the best professional sports bargain in the Southland, but the area's amateur teams...high school, community college and colleges...remain as the best sports bargain for fans. Where else can you watch future All-Americans perform at bargain rates in all sports? By now, everyone knows that USC coach John Robinson and Oakland Raider coach John Madden have been friends since childhood and Madden was the best man at Robinson's wedding, etc. It made an interesting item because both Robinson and Madden steered their teams into the Rose Bowl in the same year...Jim Tunney, the referee of today's Super Bowl shootout, also once served as best man for a best friend, Bob Boyd, the USC basketball coach. Tunney was one of the Southland's best basketball officials along with his football chores before sticking to NFL assignments and used to officiate games at Bill Cook Gym at Santa Ana College and elsewhere when Boyd was coaching the Don cagers...Many was the time when Boyd, upset with some of Tunney's whistle tooting, shook his head in wonderment at having had him as best man at his wedding. Tunney always got off the hook by reminding Boyd that he never blew his whistle once and called a perfect game at the wedding.

If things work out, Fred Baer, the director of the JC Athletic Bureau in San Mateo, may be in for a tough time in March should Orange County teams win basketball championships in the Mission Conference, South Coast and Southern Cal Conferences. Prone to rate Northern California teams highly...and he has a legitimate power going for him this season in No. 1 ranked and undefeated Santa Rosa College...Baer might have to adjust his thinking by March if Saddleback dashes to the Mission crown, Santa Ana captures its second straight South Coast title and Cypress collects the Southern Cal Conference championship...Three Orange County teams at the Sunkist-State JC Tournament in Fresno might drive Baer and other Northern California boosters up the walls at Selland Arena.

Huskies Thump Stanford, 98-77

SEATTLE (AP) – Mike Neill tossed in 20 points and 7-foot James Edwards added 19 to lead Washington to a 98-77 Pacific-8 Conference basketball victory over Stanford in a regionally-televised game Saturday afternoon.

The Cardinals, now 0-2 in conference play and 7-5 overall, had trouble penetrating Washington's zone defense and fell victim to the Huskies' potent fast break in a decisive 12-minute span in the second half.

In that span, the Huskies moved from a 41-33 halftime lead to a 78-56 advantage with 8:08 to go.

The Huskies, now 2-0 in the conference, held their biggest lead at 96-69 on a layin credited to Bart Hess

Flyers Defrost Skiddings Kings

PHILADELPHIA (AP) – Right winger Don Saleski scored twice and center Mel Bridgman had one goal and two assists as the Philadelphia Flyers extended their home unbeaten streak to 19 games with a 6-1 victory over the Los Angeles Kings in a National Hockey League game Saturday night.

The Flyers, who lead the Patrick Division with a 25-8-9 mark, are unbeaten at home since Oct. 14, when they lost to Montreal 7-1.

Bridgman opened the Flyers' scoring just 1:37 into the game when he deflected a 35-foot by defenseman Tom Bladon past goalie Gary Edwards. Saleski and Gary Dornhoefer, who scored the 200th goal of his NHL career, boosted the Flyers into a 3-0 lead later in the opening period.

After a scoreless second period, Bobby Clarke got a power play goal on a breakaway and Saleski added his second goal to boost the lead to 5-0.

Bob Berry ruined goalie Wayne Stephenson's shutout bid with a goal at 12:23 of the final period.

Bruins Rebound

LOS ANGELES (AP) – Seventh-ranked UCLA, led by Marques Johnson and David Greenwood, outscored Oregon State 16-2 in the final four minutes to defeat the Beavers 83-66 in a Pacific-8 Conference basketball game Saturday night.

With the score 67-64, the Bruins reeled off 14 straight points to put the game out of reach.

The victory was the Bruins' first conference triumph of the season, following their 61-60 upset at the hands of Oregon Friday night. UCLA is 11-2 overall.

Greenwood and Johnson each had 19 points to pace the Bruins, while guard Raymond Townsend added 14.

The Beavers were led by senior guard Rocky Smith, who topped the scoring with 28 points. Guard George Tucker contributed 18 points, while forward Don Smith chipped in 10.

The loss evened Oregon State's conference record at 11, and the Beavers are 7-7 overall.

Frazier's 40 Powers HVC

Jeff Frazier, a 6-7 center, scored 40 points Saturday night to lead Huntington Valley Christian High School to a 98-25 rout of Capistrano Valley High in a non-league basketball game.

Capistrano, a first-year school, was unable to break the Huntington press, and couldn't score more than eight points in any one quarter.

Sizzling Dons Hit 122 High

LAS VEGAS – Santa Ana College exploded for a 122-76 victory over UN Las Vegas JV Saturday to set a new school record for most points in a game. The old record set in 1974 was 119 against Mira Costa.

Reserve Joseph Jamison came off the bench to hit the record breaker on a one-and-one situation with 15 seconds remaining in the game.

Sharpshooter Steve Smith led all scorers with 27 points, while teammates Sylvester Prichett had 18, Tom Clark 13, Steve Hair 11 and Dave Nelson 10.

The Dons, now 12-6 for the season, will open South Coast Conference action Wednesday night at Mt. San Antonio College at 7:30.

SANTA ANA – (122) – Smith 27, Traylor 8, Byers 5, Hair 11, Clark 23, Relly 8, Pritchett 18, Brown 6, Nelson 10, Jamison 2, Williams 6, Patterson 8.

Gauchos Open Conference In Style, 106-95

SAN BERNARDINO – Saddleback College unveiled its rapid fire offense Saturday night and ran to a convincing 106-95 victory over San Bernardino Valley in the opening game of the Mission Conference basketball race.

The Gauchos were led by 6-5 forward Dennis Smith, who had 31 points and freshman guard Tim Shaw, who contributed 24.

Smith hit 13 of 16 attempts in the game while Shaw was 11 for 15 from the field.

Steve Adams, a 6-3 forward led San Bernardino with 31 points in the contest.

In other Mission Conference openers Saturday, Riverside defeated Southwestern 76-68, Palomar defeated Chaffey, 84-77 in Overtime, and Citrus ran past San Diego, 110-78.

Panthers Growl

SANTA BARBARA – Chapman College rode the fast break to a big halftime advantage then let substitutes do the work in the second half en route to an 80-70 victory over United States International University Saturday night and the consolation title of the Westmont College Basketball Tournament.

Chapman, tuning up for a big meeting with Fullerton State Tuesday night at Orange High School, never trailed in the game.

CHAPMAN (80) – Bauler 18, Davis 7, Kinsley 17, Newson 13, Johnson 8, Thurman 10, Slusher 5, Owens 2.

Ducks Go 2-0

LOS ANGELES (AP) – Powerful Greg Ballard scored 27 points as Oregon ripped Southern California 64-52 in a Pacific-8 basketball game Saturday night, keeping the Ducks in first place in the conference.

Ballard, a 6-foot-7 forward, was a virtual one-man gang in the first half, when he scored 21 of his points.

Oregon led 33-25 at halftime.

With Oregon Coach Dick Harter playing Ballard sparingly in the second half, the Trojans began to come back, using an 11-2 scoring spurt to come within two at 42-40 with 11:17 to go.

However, Ballard returned shortly and his rebounding and defense paved the way for the Ducks to pull ahead steadily until they led 64-50 just seconds before the finish.

The Ducks reeled off six points to open the game and Ballard accounted for 16 of the first 20 Oregon points, but the Trojans remained reasonably close.

Marv Safford had 10 points to lead USC.

Oregon improved to 2-0 in the Pacific-8 following its thrilling one-point victpry over UCLA on Friday night. The Ducks are 1l2 in all games.

Southern Cal, 0-2 in the Pac 8, dropped to 3-10 in all games.

Bowl Crowds Lived It Up

NEW ORLEANS (AP) – Big football games are always sweet for local hotels, restaurants and tourist spots and this year's Sugar Bowl was sweeter than most.

An estimated 50,000 visitors, a Sugar Bowl record here, were checked into 20,000 hotel rooms when top-rated Pittsburgh crushed Georgia in the Super-dome New Year's Day, tourist officials said.

The Greater New Orleans Tourist and Convention Commission said the weekend visitors spent an average of $300 each, or about $15 million. The popular restaurant Brennan's said it served a record 10,000 meals in five days, including 7,400 of its special breakfasts.

Pat O'Brien's, a French Quarter bar, sold a record 10,188 Hurricanes, a potent, local concoction of rum and fruit juices.

Chambers Gets Bulldog Award

LOS ANGELES (AP) – Defensive tackle Wally Chambers of the Chicago Bears received the "Bulldog of the Year," award Saturday.

The award is voted on by the National Football's League offensive linemen, who select the man they feel was their toughest opponent of the season.

Chambers bested last year's winner, Cleveland tackle Jerry Sherk, and Houston's Curly Culp in the voting.

A 6-foot-6, 280 pound fourth-year pro from Eastern Kentucky, Chambers received a trophy and bulldog puppy. A $2,500 scholarship to be donated to a school or charity of Chambers' choice was also included in the award.

The award is sponsored by Mack Truck.

Seattle Opens Against Angels

SEATTLE (AP) – The Seattle Mariners will open the 1977 American League baseball season April 6, when they meet the California Angels in the Kingdome, club officials said Friday.

The home schedule for the Mariners' includes 81 games. They will meet West Division rivals 45 times and face East Division opponents 36 times, said Dick Vertlieb, the club's executive director.

California, Kansas City and Oakland will play eight games each in Seattle and Chicago. Minnesota and Texas, the other members of the West Division, will appear in the Kingdome seven times, he said.

The Mariners will play all East Division teams five times in the Kingdome, except for the Detroit Tigers who are booked for six Seattle games, he said.

There are 36 weekend games scheduled and Wednesday will be the busiest day with 13 games scheduled.

The Mariners will be at home for 16 of their first 19 games, he said.

Purdue Surge Tops Buckeyes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) – Purdue missed 17 of its first 18 shots Saturday and then rallied behind Walter Jordan's 29 points to beat Ohio State 82-65 in Big Ten basketball.

The victory kept Purdue tied for the conference lead with a 2-0 record and the Boilermakers are 8-3 over-all. Ohio State fell to 0-2 in the league and 5-6 in all games.

Ohio State, much shorter than the Boilermakers, stunned Purdue by sweeping into a 16-3 lead in the first six minutes. In that stretch, the Buckeyes missed only two of 10 shots while the Boilermakers went 1-for-17 against various Ohio State zone defenses.

Jordan, a 6-foot-8 junior, led Purdue's comeback, collecting 18 of his points in the first half to pull the Boilermakers even at 36-36.

Ohio State, led by 14-point efforts by Jim Ellinghausen, Terry Burris and Kelvin Ransey, was ahead only once in the second half.

It's All Over But The Counting

PASADENA – It's all over but the football.

The Super Bowl classic having cemented its position over such builders to climax as the Indianapolis 500 and Kentucky Derby, is now reduced to the actual pushing and shoving.

There is no longer anything new an imagination can produce in the cause of sporting literature. It all has been written from every angle and in several tongues.

All theories have been put forth and duly noted. The students of offense have made their case that this will be one of the great offensive explosions in memory.

Those dedicated to the proposition defense is the name of this, or any, game are similarly on record.

Also permitted to express opinions were those prophets of doom who insist that all Super Bowl games are stodgy affairs which never approach the anvil chorus of their build-up. This view is that super Bowl teams are nervous and terrified and do not play to win.

That is, they play not to lose.

Both Have Fallen

In the matter of strict Super Bowl history, both of these teams have demonstrated the qualifications necessary to lose. The Oakland Raiders had one pop at it and swooned in the presence of the Green Bay Packers on the field and Vince Lombardi on the sidelines.

The Minnesota Vikings, the other side in Super Bowl XI, have proven capable of losing to just about anybody. They have been dispatched by the Chiefs, Dolphins and Steelers.

Of course, this variety of history has nothing to do with anything where this renewal is concerned except that one of the principals will shed the stigma of never having done anything in the Super Bowl but lose. You see, a winner will be determined even if it is necessary to continue the grunting and groaning long after darkness has descended on the gulch wherein lies the Rose Bowl. Pasadena itself retires before dusk but that is neither here nor there.

Naturally, you are half crazed with impatience waiting for the deathless prediction of this tourist who has become independently wealthy wagering on professional football games.

Without further hemming and hawing then, the view from here is that the Raiders are two touchdowns superior to the Vikings. In fact, save for one or two strange twists of fate and fortune, the Vikings would not even be here and Super Bowl XI would feature a unique matchup of two teams from California.

Technically, it is difficult to admire an offense constructed on a quarterback who takes the ball and scrambles around behind the line of scrimmage.

The probable winner having been dealt with, you pause to applaud the early and sure winner which is the National Football League.

One stands in awe of the promotional body under whose auspicies this thing is conducted.

The extravaganza is taken to the hearts of the population of a community to which no tickets to the game are made available. Strictly from the outside, it unloads 106,000 seats at $20 a copy and a complimentary list which does not exist.

Police Furnished

A stadium large enough to hold this audience is rented for a sum roughly equal to that which is spent on the annual Super Bowl cocktail party. Police and other services are furnished.

The national television rights are peddled to one of the networks for a figure roughly equivalent to the cost of the ammunition expended by all sides during World War II.

Entirely out of season, the Super Bowl pushes such pastimes as basketball and hockey off the sports pages and the airwaves even though its interviews are by appointment only.

TV Is Off, Pate Is On

PHOENIX (AP) – The national television audience didn't get to see it – the cameras had ended their coverage for the day – but Jerry Pate rolled in a six-foot birdie putt on the final hole that gave him sole control of the lead Saturday in the third round of the $200,000 Phoenix Open Golf Tournament.

"I felt like I had it coming," was the wry comment of the 23-year-old who had missed five times from eight feet or less while Dave Stockton and a flock of others had closed in on him.

"I'd missed so many, missed them all day long, that I felt like I had one coming," Pate said of the putt that provided him with a one-under-par 70 for the round and a 204 total – nine under par – for 54 holes over the 6,726 yard Phoenix Country Club course.

"I feel like I'm hitting the ball pretty good. Hopefully, tomorrow, I'll continue to hit the ball well and maybe get a couple of putts to drop."

He goes into Sunday's final round with a one-stroke lead over Stockton, his partner as the American team in the World Cup competition only four weeks ago. Stockton is the current PGA national champion while Pate collected the U.S. and Canadian Open titles in his remarkable rookie season last year.

Stockton had come from seven strokes off the pace to gain a share of the lead in this inaugural of the 1977 PGA tour with a seven-under-par 64, the best round of the tournament, and was in the clubhouse with a 205 total when Pate played the 18th. The slender, 23-year-old Pate drove in trouble, had to play back out to the fairway, then hit a long-iron third shot only six feet from the flag on the final hole.

He made that putt for birdie four – and the one-stroke lead – moments after the national television cameras had cut away for the day.

"The weather had an effect on everybody," Pate said of the miserable playing conditions – temperatures in the shivering, mid-40s with gray, gloomy skies leaking occasional drizzling rain.

"I was very much aware of playing the front side one over par. You can't do that on Saturday and stay in good shape. You know everybody is closing up on you."

Larry Nelson, who missed a two-foot par putt on the last hole, had a 71 and was tied for third at 207 with Gary McCord. McCord closed with a 65. George Cadle and veteran Miller Barber were next at 208. The heavily-bundled Barber shot a 67, the chunky Cadle a 69.

Johnny Miller, winner of five of the last six tour events in Arizona, all but shot himself out of it. He made double bogey seven on his 10th hole, had to settle for a 73 and was 12 shots back at 216 going into Sunday's final round of the chase for a $40,000 first prize.

Titans Roll Past Utags

LOGAN – The Fullerton State women's basketball team, showing no letdown after defeating fifth-ranked Nevada Las Vegas Friday, got scoring from 11 players in knocking off Utah State 86-51 Saturday night.

Fullerton (4-0) scored the first eight points of the game and went on to a 19-point halftime lead over the Aggies, who are now 2-5 on the season.

Debbie Ricketts and Nancy Dunkle each scored 13 points to lead the Titans, who return to Southern California for a Wednesday game at Cal Poly Pomona. Fullerton opens at home Thursday against the University of Nebraska in an 8 p.m. contest.

The Titans, rated sixth nationally before its current road trip, shot 45 per cent from the field Saturday compared to 26 per cent for Utah.

FULLERTON STATE (86) - Ricketts 13, Hullah 10, O'Sullivan 8, McMorran 2, Evans 10, Lucas 7, Gorman 2, Hill 7, Dunkle 13, Kinn 8, Martin 6.

Comeback Saves North

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) – North quarterback Steve Pisarkiewicz fueled a frantic Missouri-style comeback and beat the clock as well as the South in Saturday's play-for-pay Senior Bowl football game.

But to accomodate national television and its own ticking clock, the Most Valuable Player award and all the big money was doled out to others before his last-minute heroics.

That left him, despite his North squad's thrilling 27-24 come-from-behind victory, "a little disappointed."

An equally disappointed South Coach Don Shula of the Miami Dolphins put it another way: "Once again, it proves the game is not over until the final whistle blows."

Pisarkiewicz, who helped engineer Missouri's zany year of triumphs and disasters, rallied the North to its Senior Bowl victory with two touchdown passes in the final two minutes. The last was a four-yard lob to Tony Hill of Stanford to the right corner of the end zone with only 33 seconds left.

It capped a sensational day for the 6-foot-4 Missouri signal caller – but the MVP award aready had been given to quarterback Tommy Kramer of Rice.

The five-member Senior Bowl committee, composed of pro scouts, had chosen Kramer as the top star and given him a free automobile as well as handing out $2,500 prizes to four others minutes before Pisarkiewicz turned hero.

The Senior Bowl spokesman said the awards were decided before the end of the game so they could be announced on NBC, which was televising the game nationally.

Some Senior Bowl officials talked of coming up with a special prize for Pisarkiewicz, but no immediate decision was reached.

Vince, Ricky Spark West To Hula Win

HONOLULU (AP) – Southern California quarterback Vince Evans, a last-minute choice for the 31st annual Hula Bowl, reverted to a familiar play Saturday as he sparked the West to a 20-17 football victory over the East.

Evans had a hand in three touchdowns and engineered the drive which gave the West its first victory in the history of the all-star classic.

"Not a bad sub," said West Coach Mike White of California.

A 45-yard pass from Evans to Trojan teammate Shelton Diggs set up the three-yard touchdown run by Missouri's Curtis Brown with 1:13 remaining.

"It was a USC play," Evans said of the bomb. "I didn't get a whole lot of practice time this week. I thought if I got in the game I'd just give it my all."

Evans ran two yards for a touchdown on his first appearance in the first quarter and tossed a seven-yard scoring pass to tight end Don Hasselbeck of Colorado after going in on a third-and-goal situation in the fourth quarter.

Heisman trophy winner Tony Dorsett, who ran 47 yards for an East touchdown and finished with 98 yards and 19 carries, was named the game's outstanding offensive player.

But the ballots had been counted before Evans went to work.

Trying the right end on third-and-goal at the seven, Evans reversed, backed off nearly 20 yards and appeared to have a safe convoy to the end zone on the left side. He pulled up, however, and lobbed the ball to Hasselbeck to cut the East lead to 17-14 with 6:03 left.

After an eight-yard punt by Tom Skladany of Ohio State gave the West possession at its 48, Evans went for broke, missing a bomb to Hasselbeck and then finding Diggs at the seven.

Fullback Robin Earl of Washington bulled to the three, then Brown, who fumbled earlier to kill a West drive, raced around right end for the winning touchdown.

Skladany kicked a 41-yard field goal in the first quarter for the East. The East scored its first touchdown on a 26-yard second-quarter drive following a fumble by the West's Ricky Bell of Southern Cal. Tony Dungy of Minnesota rifled the ball 12 yards to tight end Jim Corbett of Pittsburgh for the score. Dorsett, limited to 39 yards on a dozen first-half carries, broke loose for his touchdown on the fourth play after halftime. The game, played before a shirtsleeve crowd of 45,579, was marred by seven fumbles and three interceptions.

Linebacker Ron Crosby of Penn State was named the outstanding defensive player. He blocked a field goal attempt and recovered a fumble by Brown at the East's 14 to blunt a scoring threat.

Mayfield Quits

CANYON, Tex. (AP) – Embattled Gene Mayfield, struggling under the pressure of maintaining big time football at West Texas State, resigned as head coach and athletic director Saturday effective April 1.

Mayfield, 48, handed his resignation to John Shelton III, the chairman of the Board of Regents.

Businessmen had asked the Board of Regents this week for 30 days to raise the $308,000 the school needed to keep its football program on a first class footing.

"I've been meeting with a group of the area businessmen these last few days who will head up this fund drive," said Mayfield. "It was not an unanimous opinion but certainly a majority opinion that it might be easier to raise the money if someone else were football coach and athletic director.

Mayfield had three more years to go on his contract but sources told the Amarillo Globe News that he settled for one year which was paid by some area businessmen.

Mayfield had a 24-39-2 record at the Missouri Valley Conference school in six years.

Michigan Surges To Catch Badgers

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) – Rickey Green scored 22 points, 13 in the final eight minutes when Michigan had to come from behind, as the fifth-ranked Wolverines took a 66-63 Big Ten basketball victory Saturday over Wisconsin.

Both teams were embarrassingly cold from the floor in the first half, when Wisconsin didn't get a field goal until 11½ minutes into the game. But the game picked up excitement in the second half, even though the cold shooting continued, and it was nip and tuck the final 20 minutes.

Michigan led 27-22 at halftime, but the Badgers battled back quickly, mostly on the shooting of James Gregory, to lead by as many as six points seven minutes into the second half.

NCAA Cools New Bowl Talk

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) – An official of the National Collegiate Athletic Association threw some cold water Saturday on a proposal to hold a college football bowl game in Birmingham, Ala., during the Christmas period.

Ralph McFillen, an assistant director of events for the NCAA, noted that the NCAA Council, the association's policy-making body, "has been hesitant to increase the number of bowl games."

Twelve bowl games were held following the 1976 season, including the newly-certified Independence Bowl in Shreveport, La.

The Birmingham sponsors made their presentation this weekend to the NCAA's Extra Events Committee, which met prior to Monday's official opening of the 71st NCAA convention.

Robert C. James, commissioner of the Atlantic Coast Conference and chairman of the extra events committee, indicated his committee felt that "the present bowl games are sufficient."

He said the Independence Bowl was sanctioned with the stipulation that it could not invite a team from any conference with a bowl tie-up to meet the host team, the champion of the Southland Conference.

"You can't place the same set of circumstances on Birmingham," he said.

James' committee will make a decision on the Birmingham bowl application at its regular meeting in April. If approved, it still must be okayed by the NCAA Council.

In the meantime, James said his committee would ask the American Football Coaches Association whether it felt another bowl game was warranted.

The Birmingham bowl would be sponsored by the Birmingham Football Foundation, with proceeds going to the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame.

James L. McDowell, executive director of the National Football Foundation, said the sponsoring group received "a warm reception" from the extra events committee. McDowell said the Birmingham bowl intended to invite "the two best teams available."

Rhinos Routed By Baltimore

By MIKE WOJCIECHOWSKI

LAS VEGAS – The Baltimore Eagles, completely controlling the contest, defeated the Southern California Rhinos, 33-13, in the East-West Bowl minor league professional football game Saturday at Nevada Stadium.

Baltimore, ranked first in the nation with Delavan, Wis. by the Pro Football Weekly Magazine, combined a strong special team performance and a pinpoint passing attack by Bill Neville to take a commanding 26-0 halftime lead.

The Rhinos, who were ranked 11th before challenging the Eagles, elected to open the game with a kickoff, but the move backfired. Mike Doyale returned it 54 yards to the Rhino 48 and six plays later the Eagles had a 7-0 lead.

The Rhino offense consisted of three incomplete passes and the Eagles quickly had possession again. Baltimore proceeded to drive 68 yards for a touchdown, with J.D. Boyd scoring from the five to give Baltimore a 13-0 lead. The PAT try was blocked by Mike Smith.

Baltimore put the game away with 4:02 left in the first quarter when 6-3, 300-pound Glen Jacobs returned a punt 85 yards for a touchdown to give the Eagles a 20-0 lead.

Baltimore increased its lead to 26-0 in the second quarter when Boyd scored from the one on a fourth down play. The 87-yard scoring drive was set up on an interception.

Dwayne Taggart of the Rhinos recovered an onside kick to open up the second-half setting up the first Southern California score. Henderson Martin scored from the one and Ron Svarc kicked the conversion.

The Rhinos recovered an ensuing kick, but the time consuming drive of seven minutes netted nothing.

Doc Holliday returned an interception 37 yards to set up the fifth Baltimore touchdown. Robert Young scored on an eight-yard pass from Neville with 11:40 left in the game.

The Rhinos scored a late touchdown when Gene Williams scored on an 18-yard pass from Alvin White.

Neville finished the contest with 14 completions in 25 tries for 181 yards.

Dodgers Get Hill From Phillies

LOS ANGELES (AP) – The Dodgers have obtained minor league pitcher Randall "Quency" Hill from the Phillies to complete the trade that brought catcher John Oates to Los Angeles and sent infielder Ted Sizemore to Philadelphia.

Hill, 23, has been assigned to Los Angeles' Pacific Coast League team at Albuquerque, a Dodgers spokesman said.

Hill, a left-hander who is currently pitching for Escogido in the Dominican winter league, is from Dallas, Tex.

He was a starter for four years in the Phillies' organization, but went to the bullpen last season at Oklahoma City

Quebec Frosts Soviets

QUEBEC (AP) – Curt Brackenbury scored two goals Saturday, helping the Quebec Nordiques score a 6-1 triumph over the Soviet Union's national team in the final game of the Russians' eight-game tour of World Hockey Association cities.

The Soviets won six and lost twice on the tour. They dropped the first game of the visit to the New England Whalers.

Serge Bernier, Marc Tardif, Chris Bordeleau and Norm Dube scored the other goals for the Nordiques, who outshot the Soviets 38-30.

Boris Mikhailov got the only Russian score, beating Quebec goalie Ed Humphreys at 12:40 of the first period to bring the Soviets within 2-1 before a crowd of 11,119.

Kentucky Nudges Vanderbilt

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) – Rick Robey scored on a layup with eight seconds remaining to give third-ranked Kentucky a 64-62 Southeastern Conference basketball victory over Vanderbilt Saturday.

Kentucky had held the ball for one shot after Vanderbilt tied the game 62-62 with 1:08 remaining. The Wildcats called time out with 28 seconds left and then set up the play which resulted in Robey getting the basket after a pass from guard Larry Johnson.

Kentucky led throughout the first half by as much as 11 points and held a seven-point lead, 39-32, at halftime.

In the first 8½ minutes of the second half, Vanderbilt outscored the Wildcats 18-6. The Commodores built leads of five points on three occasions before Kentucky went ahead 59-58 with 6:55 remaining on a basket by Robey.

Kentucky then led by as much as three until a steal and driving layup by Vanderbilt freshman Greg Fuller tied it at 62-62 with 1:08 remaining.

Robey was the leading scorer in the game with 21 points. Kentucky forward Jack Givens had 14 and substitute James Lee 12. Vanderbilt was led by freshman Charles Davis' 19 points and center John Sneed's 16.

Kentucky is now 9-1 overall and 2-0 in the SEC. Vanderbilt is 5-6 overall and 1-2 in the conference.

Hunts Gets Argentine Prix Pole

BUENOS AIRES (AP) – World Grand Prix champion James Hunt of England won the pole position Saturday for the Argentine Grand Prix, but said it is the race itself that counts.

"I did very well indeed," the 29-year-old Hunt said, "but there are no prizes for this. What really counts is who gets to the finish line first on Sunday."

Being on the inside of the first two-car row when the Grand Prix gets underway here will give Hunt and his McLaren M23 an edge over the other 18 Formula One drivers in this inaugural 222.45-mile race of the 1977 Grand Prix circuit.

Hunt recorded the best time of 1 minute, 48.68 seconds over a single circuit at the Gen. San Martin Autodrome during the first day of time trials on Friday.

But that was good enough to beat any of the times recorded during final trials on Saturday, when intense summer heat caused the temperature to soar to over 120 degrees on the track.

John Watson of Northern Ireland, driving a Brabham, won the second spot in the first row, with a time of 1:48.96 on Saturday.

Patrick Depailler of France, driving a six-wheel Tyrrell, won the inside slot on the second row, with a time of 1:49.13.

Niki Lauda of Austria, the 1975 Grand Prix champion, had to be satisfied with the outside second row spot for his Ferrari, after recording a time of 1:49.73.

Following them in the third row were Hochen Mass of West Germany, Hunt's co-driver for the McLaren team, with 1:49.81, and Carlos Pace of Brazil, another Brabham driver, with 1:49.97.

Argentina's Carlos Reutemann, making his fulltime debut this season for Ferrari, won the inside fourth row position with 1:50.02, and Mario Andretti, the only American driver in the race, obtained the outside slot for his Lotus, in 1:50.13.

Tom Pryce of Great Britain, piloting a Shadow, won the inside fifth row position with 1:50.65, and Gunnar Nilsson of Sweden Lotus, got the outside spot.

Unfortunately for Nilsson, Lotus team owner Colin Chapman decided on Saturday to pull him out of Sunday's race so that Andretti could drive his car. Andretti's Vehiche was damaged beyond quick repair during time trails on Friday, when the fire extinguisher on board exploded.

Players Vow No Agreement, No Draft

LOS ANGELES (AP) – The executive director of the National Football League Players Association said Saturday that it's up to NFL owners to get the stalled negotiations on a collective bargaining agreement moving again.

"I think we can get an agreement in a month or two if we're just recognized," said Ed Garvey, NFLPA executive director. "The union has been willing to compromise from day one."

NFLPA President Dick Anderson of the Miami Dolphins said the players would not agree to a draft outside of a new agreement.

Garvey and Anderson agree it would be possible to maintain some type of restrictive draft if the union could reach agreement on compensation, probably in salary guarantees, with the owners.

"Because of the court cases this year, this is the first time we've been able to deal on a viable basis with the owners," said Anderson. "I think the onus is on them to get an agreement."

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said Friday it was the league's goal to reach a form of draft and option compensation arrangement in the collective bargaining with the NFLPA.

Garvey said he agreed with the Rozelle that everyone wants a new agreement.

"I think everyone is getting tired of the haggling that's been going on and we've pretty well narrowed down the issues," said Garvey.

He also said that he didn't think the NFL would attempt to hold any type of draft without a new agreement.

"If the league goes ahead with a draft I've got a pretty good idea there would be injunctions flying around like bats," said Garvey. "I don't think the captain of the titanic is running the National Football League."

Rozelle also said Friday that the continuation of the draft depends on a new agreement.

"Hopefully, owners and players are both fed up enough to finally reach a decision," said Rozelle.

Garvey said the union's membership has reached about 800, which figures to about two-thirds of the players. He said the NFLPA operated about $20,000 "in the black" in 1976, but it still has many outstanding legal debts.

Turf Good, Not 'Super'

The Rose Bowl field for Super Bowl XI is expected to be in good shape, although perhaps a little softer than usual because of rains throughout the week.

Tarpaulins covered the field both the week before the Rose Bowl college game on Jan. 1 and again this week.

Sunny weather is predicted for Sunday, the day when the Minnesota Vikings battle the Oakland Raiders before a sell-out crowd of 104,000. Oakland currently is favored by four points.

Jim Crane, General Services director for the City of Pasadena, said Friday, "I walked on the field in my street shoes and it was good. They're painting the yard lines right now. On the west side there is some softness in front of the players bench, and as you come out of the players' tunnel, it's muddy; the turf was chewed up before.

"But this is old turf and deep. We don't expect any trouble with the field."

Winter Baseball Draft Bleakest In History

NEW YORK (AP) – The winter free-agent draft, protected by baseball's peculiar immunity from antitrust laws, begins Tuesday, with the prospect of the clubs finding good prospects very bleak.

"This is the worst January draft we've ever had," said one scout.

"We might pass on this one," said another scout. "I just don't see a single top name or even an advanced player."

"It's a real low quality draft," said a third scout. "There's no outstanding boy in the whole bunch."

The calendar always causes the January draft to be weaker than the June draft. High school seniors may have baseball on their minds in the winter, but they still do not graduate until June, when they become eligible for the summer selections.

And this group of January prospects is further weakened by baseball's college rule, which will have an affect on the draft for the first time. The college rule permits the signings of collegians who still have their senior years ahead of them, but those signings cannot be made unless it is between school years.

That leaves college dropouts and junior college players, none of whom has the scouts excited.

"There are usually one or two prime kids who drop out of school," sighed one scout. "But the best kids now seem to be staying in school – at least until June."

In the past, January draftees like Tom Seaver, Chris Chambliss and Carlton Fisk have become major league stars. "I don't see a Seaver or a Chambliss; I don't even see a (Steve) Kemp," another scout said.

Kemp, the No. 1 pick in the regular phase of last January's draft, had a sensational season in the Detroit Tigers' minor league system, slugging 19 home runs and knocking in 81 runs in 125 games.

Pete Redfern was the No. 1 selection in last January's secondary phase, which is for athletes drafted in June but who did not sign. Redfern was quickly elevated from the minors to the majors, posting an 8-8 record with a 3.51 earned run average in 23 games for the Minnesota Twins in 1976.

Still, players will be drafted on the first round and beyond because major league teams often are optimistic and need players to fill their minor league rosters.

Weak draft or strong draft, it is a fair question to ask whether there should be any draft at all. A federal court has ruled that the football draft is in violation of the antitrust laws because it severely restricts a player's free-market potential.

Baseball's stocking system would be treated the same way by the courts, except for a 1922 Supreme Court decision that gave the national pastime immunity from the antitrust laws.

The Supreme Court has been given a couple of opportunities to change its mind, each time standing on precedent and saying "if Congress thinks our decision was wrong, Congress can change it."

Congress has not acted, and the exemption stands.

"This is the first time I know of that the Supreme Court used Congressional inaction to fortify its decision," said Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association.

Miller says he has attempted to bring the issue of the draft to the negotiating table, but the owners will not bargain. And since the union is not the bargaining agent for drafted players, "the owners don't have to bargain with us," he said.

Players cannot join the players association until they reach the major leagues.

"The draft enables clubs to limit a player's market to one club," said Miller.

Anthony Collects Jackpot

TORRANCE (AP) – Earl Anthony of Tacoma, Wash. began the 1977 pro bowling season with a convincing victory Saturday in the $80,000 Lite Classic tournament.

The 38-year-old pro secured his 27th championship with the win, moving two ahead of Dick Weber and Don Johnson in career victories.

He swept through his last two opponents to take the $10,000 first prize, defeating Marshall Helman, 22, of Medford, Ore. 258-202 in the final round after downing Keith Graycraft of New Martinville, W. Va., 237-207.

"This is my best start ever," said Anthony, who took seven victories in 1976. "It usually takes me a few outings to get on beam, but I seemed to be on target today."

The event was sponsored by the Miller Brewing Co.

Yarborough Voted No.1

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) Cale Yarborough, who captured his first NASCAR Winston Cup championship in 1976, has been voted driver of the year by National Motorsports Press Association.

Yarborough, who edged David Pearson in the voting, will receive the award Monday night at the annual NMPA awards banquet in Charlotte.

It was also announced Saturday that Robert "Junior" Johnson, former driver who manages Yarborough's Grand National stock car racing team, will receive the 1976 Myers Brothers Award. It is awarded annually by NMPA and memorializes stock car drivers Bobby and Billy Myers, both of whom died during races. The award is given to the individual or organization which contributes most to the sport during the preceding year.

Yarborough won a record $362,173 in the Johnson-built Chevrolet as he captured nine Winston Cup events and finished second in another six races. It was his greatest year of a colorful career.

"There's no doubt that I'll remember 1976 forever and a day," said Yarborough. "If I had gone through my career and not won it (the title), I would have felt like I had lost something along the line."

Deadlines Coming Up

Short shots on the county and national bowling scenes:

A couple of deadlines come up this week for women bowlers. April 10, 1977 is the last day for filing entries for the California Women's Bowling Assn. Championships. The 51st annual tournament opens April 16 in Ventura County. January 14 is the deadline for entries for the 1977 WIBC Championship tournament, which opens March 23 in Milwaukee. Entries filled thus far assure that the Milwaukee tournament already is the third largest in WIBC history.

The ABC has announced its 1980 Championship tournament will be held at Louisville. The '77 tournament opens next month in Reno, the '78 is in St. Louis and the '79 at Tampa.

The '77 ABC has drawn 6795 paid entries, making it fourth in the all-time entry list, behind Chicago, Milwaukee and Detroit. The tournament, which opens Feb. 5, will run for 86 days on 42 specially installed lanes at the Centennial Coliseum.

Having opened the 1977 tournament trail at Gable House Bowl in Torrance the past week, the Professional Bowlers Assn. (PBA) tour swings north to Alameda for the $75,000 Ford Open at Mel's Southshore Bowl this week and then onto Las Vegas on January 16-22 for the $100,000 Showboat Invitational at Showboat Lanes.

The PBA tour is in its 16th consecutive season on television and is second only to NCAA football as the oldest, live continuing sports series on network TV. According to Neilsen surveys, the PBA tour attracts nearly 6,000,000 homes per average minute tuned in each week. It is viewed on Saturday afternoons.

Any bowler who rolls a perfect game during a televised finale will be rewarded by ABC-TV with a $10,000 bonus and an automobile from the Ford Motor Co.

President-elect Jimmy Carter is not a bowler (or a golfer) like some of his predecessors at the White House, but the WIBC has highly-treasured photographs of him bowling the first ball at opening night ceremonies in the 1971 WIBC Championship tournament in Atlanta when he was governor of Georgia.

He called the WIBC tournament "the greatest sports event of all time in Georgia," even though the famous Master's golf tournament had opened that same day in Augusta, Ga.

Harold Hollowick, who officially retired as executicve director of the Bowling Proprietor's Assn. of Southern California on January 1 after many years of service, will stay on the job for a couple of months to help his replacement, Byron Matthews, get oriented to the myriad duties of the office.

Matthews served in the promotion department of AMF in Glendale for many years. Hollowick said he would later oblige the press with a recounting of the highlights of his three-decade career with the BPAA.

Entry blanks for the 1977 California State Men's Championship tournament are available at all bowling establishments. Entries close Feb. 19.

Bob Fliegman of Torrance topped the Professional Coast Bowlers in earnings in 1976 with $3,402.50. E.G. Mock of Lynwood was runnerup with $3,275.00, while Butch Smith of Garden Grove was third with $2,288. Fliegman posted the highest average, 208.18.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought to You By BILL BAYER

What was the biggest crowd ever to attend a football game?...You'd think the record would have been set in recent years, but it wasn't...The record attendance at a football game is 120,000, set on two different occasions at Soldier Field, Chicago — the 1927 Notre Dame-Southern Cal game, and the 1928 Notre Dame-Navy game.

While the Super Bowl brings together the best football teams, did you ever wonder what was the worst pro football team of all-time?...How about this one... The Detroit Lions of 1942 not only lost every game, but they scored only 38 points all season and never scored more than 7 points in any one game that year!

Despite the vast sums of money now being paid to many men in sports, it is a woman, and not a man, who owns the record for earning the most money out of sports by any athlete in history...The all-time record is held by former Olympic ice-skating champion Sonja Henie, who made over 40-million dollars from skating...No football, baseball, basketball, or any other sports star has ever made more.

I bet you didn't know that Santa Ana Dodge leases all makes and models.

Battle of the losers

The quarterbacks will decide it

By Murray Olderman

This is going to be the Super Bowl that will prove decisively, once and for all, that either the Oakland Raiders or the Minnesota Vikings deserve to be called winners.

Both have been to pro football's biggest jousting before. Both have lost. The Raiders were beaten by the Green Bay Packers in Super Bowl II back in January, 1968, and though they have sought solace by pointing to the fact that they boast the best record in the game over the last 14 years, there has always been the rankling accusation they never win the "big one."

The Vikings have been turned back three times — in Super Bowls IV, VII and IX — though they, too, try to assuage critics by noting that Coach Bud Grant has produced eight division titles in a decade.

Only four of the Oakland Raiders bridge the gap between the team's Super Bowl appearances and, uniformly, they feel this is a better equipped group to prove that they are Number One.

"We got so much heart," said survivor Pete Banaszak, the 32-year-old running back, after the Raiders had qualified for the forthcoming game in the Rose Bowl by winning the American Football Conference title. "If heart was money, we'd own the world."

"We are a physically better team," said guard Gene Upshaw, another survivor. "Ken Stabler is better. I'm better than I was. I was a rookie then. We've had so much adversity. This team doesn't say 'uncle.'"

"This team wants it more," added Fred Biletnikoff, the wide receiver who has been a regular since 1965. "Green Bay was unbelievable when we played 'em in '68. Now we got the team to beat anybody."

"Then," noted Willie Brown, the 35-year-old corner back, "we were just happy to get into the game. We knew Green Bay was a super team. This time? Hey, there ain't no way we can lose."

Ten Viking regulars are veterans of all three Minnesota losses in the Super Bowl — Carl Eller, Alan Page, Jim Marshall, Wally Hilgenberg, Bobby Bryant and Paul Krause of the defensive unit; Fran Tarkenton, Mick Tingelhoff, Ed White and Ron Yary of the offensive unit.

They won't need to be jacked up for this game. Bud Grant, the super stoic, even concedes that there's a new dimension to the Vikings' personality this year — emotionalism.

So the basic motivation, vindication of self, is there for both teams.

In style, however, they differ.

The Vikings are older, more traditional in playing concept. Their offense is probably better balanced between the run (featuring Chuck Foreman) and the pass (with Fran Tarkenton, the most prolific passer in pro history). Their defense shuns frills, although it's a little more elastic than it has been with age beginning to slow down its Front Four.

The Raiders are the closest thing to a one-man team since Norm Van Brocklin and the Philadelphia Eagles of 1960. Ken Stabler is the indispensable man. Put him out of the lineup and the Raiders look ordinary, though they are certainly gifted in several departments — the receiving corps, the offensive line, the defensive secondary.

Though Mark Van Eeghen gained more than 1,000 yards on the ground this year, the emphasis on offense is the air attack, with Stabler the most accurate southpaw passer in the history of the game. Their defense, because of early injuries, converted to an "orange" alignment — which means three men up front and four linebackers. It was supposed to be vulnerable against the run, but it held in key games.

A season brimming with controversy — accusations of violence, hairline officiating calls which decided a couple of key games — probably pulled the Raiders closer together as a unit. And firmed up their resolve to shed the label of losers.

"The big talkers from the East counted us out," said Banaszak, with an edge of bitterness.

The Vikings are more comfortable with their winning mantle, seem less prone to have to apologize for past failures. Confidence has always been their forte.

In the final analysis, the verdict on Jan. 9 before the 106,000 people converging on the Rose Bowl through the clogged Arroyo Seco in Pasadena, will be decided on the performances of the two key men in the cast — Tarkenton and Stabler. Both have been uncanny in the palpitating situations when a game hangs in the balance on one or two key plays.

It comes down to a duel between two of the finest passers and headiest field generals in modern football history.

My prediction is that Stabler will trigger another of his sensational closing bursts and that Oakland will defeat Minnesota, 20-17.

Kansas Wins Battle With Missouri

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) Junior guard John Douglas scored 24 points, including nine in the final 5½ minutes, to boost the weakened Kansas Jayhawks to a 75-72 victory over rival Missouri Saturday in a bitter Big Eight basketball opener for both teams.

The 6-foot-2 Douglas put Kansas ahead for good 73-72 with a basket at 2:53, then reserve guard Brad Sanders hit a foul shot at 1:03 to increase the Jayhawk margin to two points.

A Douglas foul shot with 13 seconds remaining provided the final Kansas margin.

The game was marred in the first half when a free-for-all erupted at 13:38. Missouri's Scott Sims' charging foul resulted in an exchange of punches among Sims, Kim Anderson and Jim Kennedy of Missouri and Herb Nobles and Donnie Von Moore of Kansas. Both Kennedy and Von Moore were ejected from the game.

Kansas, 10-3 overall, was at less than full strength most of the game with the absence of Von Moore, Ken Koenigs and Nobels, the last two fouling out late in the second half.

The Jayhawks trailed 41-35 at the half, largely because of numerous turnovers, fouls and a 9-for-11 Missouri performance at the free throw line. Missouri is now 9-3.

Wrestling Meet Future Clouded

By STEVE GRIMLEY

On December 17, the second annual Orange-Freeway League Wrestling Tournament dissolved in an array of harsh words and utter confusion.

Three weeks and a lot of hard feelings later, coaches and meet directors have ironed out the question of team and individual winners in the tourney. However, the future of the 14-team tournament is still very much up in the air.

Mike Rush, the Sunny Hills wrestling coach who has doubled as organizer of the massive competition for each of the past two years, said Saturday that if the event is to continue, athletic directors will have to take a larger role in organization.

"I learned a great lesson," Rush said. "When I walk into the tournament next year, I want to walk in just like all the other coaches (merely as a coach)."

Although there were many factors which led to the chaotic conditions at last month's tourney, most revolved around the act of weighing in — and not weighing in.

All wrestlers are required to weigh-in on the day they are scheduled to compete, according to CIF rules. And in the case of two-day competitions, such as the Orange-Freeway meet, weights are checked on both days.

However, as Rush pointed out that second-day weigh-in rule has "been used and misused" in other county wrestling tournaments. In other words, by mutual agreement, coaches have often waived the second day weigh-in.

But the lines of communication between all 14 coaches broke down this time. Consequently, while some teams fasted for another day, others went home and ate to their hearts' content.

When one Orange League coach whose team had prepared for the second day of weigh-ins pressed the issue with a phone call to the CIF office, the fun began.

Strict interpretation of the rules would have meant ineligibility for any wrestler who did not weigh-in before wrestling — ineligibility for the rest of the season. The result was many second-day forfeits, as overweight wrestlers dropped out left and right.

La Habra High thought it had solved the problem by having wrestlers move up to a heavier weight class, but this also turned out to be against CIF rules, further adding to the confusion.

Rush's problems were further complicated by the fact that three of the wrestlers on his team had to be dispatched to the hospital. "I was worrying about my kids, and then I had coaches yelling in my ear every second. It was just one thing after another."

Among the other "things" which burdened Rush were (1) the absence of El Dorado High, which held its own tournament on the same weekend (replaced by Fountain Valley), (2) the absence of Anaheim High for part of the first day because of a prior commitment the team had, and (3) the fact that Rush was forced to personally move wrestling mats to the Cypress College campus because the Fullerton Union High School District would not do it, he said.

When the coaches met Friday to decide on individual medal winners and team champions, several Freeway League teams were not represented, indicative, said Rush, of the fact that there still are many problems yet to be resolved.

Cypress has again offered the use of its facility for the tournament, and Rush said he personally favors continuing the event — "if a tournament director is selected," he added quickly.

Indiana Breezes

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Freshman swingman Mike Woodson, demonstrating equal versatility inside and out, scored 24 points Saturday as Indiana routed Illinois 80-60 in a Big Ten basketball game.

Indiana raced to a 28-10 lead midway through the first period and was never trouble thereafter in evening their conference mark at 1-1. Illinois, which beatd Ohio State 89-72 earlier in the week, is also 1-1 in conference.

The Hoosiers, unable to cope with zone defenses against other opponents, forced Illinois from its zone late in the first half with Woodson leading the offensive surge. He had 16 points in the opening period.

Indiana led 48-30 at the half and led by as many as 30 points in the second period.

All-American center Kent Benson scored 17 points for the Hoosiers.

PARRA-graphs

Gangway For Girls

By ART PARRA

It's All-Star Game, World Series and Super Bowl time in the field of women's golf. It's the Colgate Triple Crown of Golf, a tournament being held Friday and Saturday at the Mission Hills Country Club in Palm Springs.

The strongest collection of 10 women golfers in history will be after a part of the $50,000 purse. Every year the nine highest pointmakers in Colgate's three major golf championships - The Colgate Dinah Shore Winners Circle, Colgate European Open and Colgate Far East Open, gather.

But this year's event will have, by sheer good fortune, the greatest limited field of LPGA stars ever assembled. The 10 contestants (there was a tie for ninth place) are, in fact, the 10 highest money earners on the 1976 LPGA official list.

During 1976 the group has a record of 27 tournament victories among them, 149 top 10 finishes on the tour and combined official money earnings of more than $880,000.

Following is a thumbnail report on each of the 10 contestants, listed in the order PARRA-graphs expects each to finish the 36-hole test.

1. JUDY RANKIN – Very consistent. Great with woods and that is important at Mission Hills. Won $246,800 in last three years, $150,000 of it in '76, breaking single season record. LPGA's third highest career money winner. Won Colgate Dinah Shore tourney in '76, was second in the Triple Crown last year, both on this same course. Rankin is a big favorite in the area and always plays well. She is currently in top of her game.

2. JANE BLALOCK – Great under pressure. Only golfer in the field with two wins on this course and her game is fitted to it nicely. She has confidence in ability to play here. Won last year's Colgate Triple Crown in a sudden death playoff, beating Rankin. Jane has a good putting eye and could take it all if weather warms.

3. AMY ALCOTT –. Here is a youngster destined for great heights in the game. Currently on a hot streak and will be playing among friendly fans. '75 Rookie of the Year. Won $71,000 in '76, only her second pro year. Although just 20 years of age, has maturity of a 15-year tour veteran. Ben Crenshaw predicts big things from this Santa Monica lassie.

4. DONNA COPONI YOUNG – Gallery favorite and my sentimental choice because knowing Donna so well. Had privilege of watching and being part of her golf development before turning professional. Has won back-to-back U.S. Opens. Has six tournament wins in last two years. Won $106,000 during '76 including three events in a row. She is a streak player and if has game together could be far in front of the field in two rounds.

5. JOANNE CARNER – Has capability of hitting the long ball but tendency to be a little wild. Never has scored well at Mission Hills. Won the U.S. Open in '76 and pocketed over $100,000. She has won 12 tournaments in last three years and was named "Player of the Year" in 1974. Finds it hard to concentrate on desert courses.

6. SANDRA PALMER – One of scrappiest in field. Has a legendary name to uphold. Player of the Year in '75. Has won 16 tournaments in six years, at least two per year since '71. Currently stands fifth on the LPGA all-time money list and won $88,000 last season. Had best season in '75 when picking up Colgate Dinah Shore Winners Circle on this course and later winning the U.S. Open.

7. PAT BRADLEY – Not ready to win the big ones. Has been improving each year. Went from $10,800 in '74 to $28,000 in '75 to $84,000 in '76. Hits a long ball and is constantly among leaders but can't seem to get game together when it means the most. Pat has two tournament wins, both during '76.

8. KATHY WHITWORTH – Placing this LPGA Hall of Famer so far down the list doesn't seem right but Kathy has been having her lumps and isn't as confident as she should be. Kathy would enjoy winning this event, adding to her $638,000 career earnings. She has eyes on the $1-million mark but the sands of time are beginning to take a toll. Won $62,000 in '76, far down the list in favor of younger stars.

9. JAN STEPHENSON – If handicapping for the prettiest in the field, Jan would win going away. Liking the course and the course liking her is a plus for the former Australian champion and '74 Rookie of the Year. She has a steady short game but doesn't figure to be winning this classic.

10. CHAKO HIGUCHI – Japan's superstar but a long way from friendly Niponese fairways. Led point earnings but not in a class to stay with the other women playing in this tournament. It is hard for a foreign speaking player to concentrate under circumstances of this type. Chako went from earnings of $15,000 in '75 to $57,000 in '76. Would be a longshot winner if she comes home first.

Whatspleasure Takes Paumonok

NEW YORK (AP) – Whatsyourpleasure charged through the stretch and won the 67th running of the $52,800 Paumonok Handicap at Aqueduct Racetrack Saturday.

A crowd of 19,217 turned out for the first Saturday of the Aqueduct winter meeting and saw the 4-year-colt score by three-quarters of a length over Bright Discovery. Due Diligence, the 3-2 favorite in the field of sixth, finished third, another 1¼ lengths back.

Whatsyourpleasure, ridden by Menotti Aristone, under top weight of 116 pounds, ran the six furlongs in 1:103-5 and paid $9.20, $5.80 and $2.80.

Bright Discovery, a 7-1 shot, ridden by apprentice Steve Cauthen, under 114 pounds, returned $7.60 and $3.20. Due Diligence, also carrying 114 pounds, including Angel Cordero Jr, paid $2.40 to show.

Never Retreat finised fourth, followed by Banian and Nalees Rialto.

Banian broke on top and led until the head of the stretch, when Bright Discovery rushed up on the outside to take a brief lead before Whatsyourpleasure came alongside and then pulled in front in the closing yards for his victory.

"He broke well and I had him laying third on the backstretch," Aristone said. "He rated well for me. In the stretch he started to draw out."

It was the first start of the year for Whatsyourpleasure, owned by Arnold A. Willcox and trained by B.W. Perkins. He earned a purse of $31,680 that made his career bankroll $198,825 with six victories in 22 starts, including eight seconds and two thirds.

Rugby Gals Score Win

RIVERSIDE – Gale Ball scored three tries Saturday to power the Huntington Beach women's rugby team to a 21-4 victory over Riverside in Southern California Rugby Council action. The game was held at UC Riverside.

Other scores for the Huntington Beach team came from Cindy Cooper and Jo Murphy.

It was the first game ever for the Huntington Beach club, which will compete in the San Diego Rugby Tournament next weekend.

McHargue Suspended

Jockey Darrell McHargue, who rode Swift Socks, is suspended from January 11 through January 15, 1977, for failure to make proper effort to keep his mount straight, causing interference nearing the finish line, resulting in a disqualification, fourth race, January 7, 1977.

By order of the Santa Anita Park Board of Stewards.

Deacons Trim Terps, 86-85

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) – Skip Brown sank a free throw with three seconds remaining in overtime, giving 10th-ranked Wake Forest an 86-85 Atlantic Coast Conference basketball victory over 15th-ranked Maryland Saturday.

Brown, who scored 22 points, hit a jumper with two seconds left in regulation time for an 81-79 Wake Forest lead. But Maryland called time, and Brian Magid popped in a 30-footer to send the game into overtime.

The Deamon Deacons, now 11-1 including 2-0 in the ACC, scored their first victory at Maryland since 1969 after blowing a 10-point halftime lead.

Maryland, 10-2 after its 10-game winning streak was snapped, rallied behind Steve Sheppard and Bill Bryant to take a 52-48 lead with a 19-5 streak at the start of the second half.

Wake Forest regained the lead for the first time with three minutes left, at 74-72, on two free throws by Frank Johnson. Rod Griffin added another and Brown two more for a 77-72 advantage with 1:35 left.

Two free throws by Brant and a field goal by Sheppard pulled Maryland to within 77-76. Following a field goal by Larry Harrison of Wake, a three-point play by Brad Davis tied the game with 37 seconds remaining.

Sheppard, who scored 17 points, scored two field goals in the first two minutes of overtime matching two free throws by Brown and a stuff shot by Griffin.

With Maryland in a zone, Wake held the ball until calling time out with 10 seconds left. Sheppard then fouled Brown, who made the first foul shot and missed the second which was rebounded by Leroy McDonald as time expired.

Goober Day Set

BOWIE, Md. (AP) – Goober Day has been proclaimed for Bowie Race Course on Jan. 20, the day of Jimmy Carter's inauguration as president.

Goober Day continues the Maryland track's tradition of marking inauguations in nearby Washington and salutes the nation's best-known peanut farmer.

Alvin A. Karwacki, Bowie general manager, said the track will give away several hundred thousand peanuts on Inauguration Day.

Bruins Collect

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) – Tony Graham of UCLA defeated Charles Strode of Southern California Saturday to lead the Bruins to the team championship of the second annual Palm Springs National Collegiate Tennis Classic.

Graham's victory by scores of 6-4, 5-7, 6-2 gave the Bruins 16 points in the four-day event, one point better than the defending team champion Trojans and Stanford, who were tied with 15 points each

Stanford's freshman doubles team of Peter Rennert and Lloyd Bourne defeated USC's No. 1-seeded team of Chris Lewis and Andy Luchessi 6-4, 36, 7-6 to win the doubles title.

Had the Trojans won either the singles or doubles matches they would have tied the Bruins.

Fourth in team scoring was Brigham Young with nine points followed by Pepperdine with seven, Arizona State with six, San Jose State with five, and three teams with four points each – California, UC Irvine and Duke.

Horse Turns To Beer And Starts Winning

CHICAGO (AP) – Good La Quinta, a 5-year-old thoroughbred, was just a bum until he started drinking beer.

The horse that likes a snort was bought for the $3,750 claiming price during July at Colorado's Centennial race track. The new owners, Babe Krajenke and Augie Stella, now have him stabled at Washington Park.

Billy McKeever, trainer of the Nebraska-bred gelding, said he discovered the horse liked beer a week after he was claimed. Since he has been on the suds he has gained 200 pounds and has been boosted into better company.

"We raised him to $5,000 claiming and he won like the rest were tied down," said McKeever. "We kept right on pushing him up the ladder – $6,200, $8,000, and, finally, allowance company."

McKeever said Good La Quinta's most impressive race was Dec. 4 at Detroit in the Winter Green Handicap. He went off 20-1.

"He was head and head with Right Pocket most of the six furlongs," McKeever recalls. "And he beat him a length. Right Pocket is one of the fastest horses in the Midwest."

The 26-year-old trainer said Good La Quinta used to stand around in his stall, sullen and drawn.

"If you raised a hand, he would back away real scared, so I figured who ever had him before probably mistreated him," said McKeever. "I was holding a beer and looking at him and, all of a sudden, he comes over to me. It was the first time he'd shown any friendliness and I put some beer in my hand. He sucked it up, and I swear he licked his lips."

McKeever says Good La Quinta now can easily chug a can of brew if he holds it for him.

"What impresses me is he never spills a drop," said McKeever. "He no longer has that dreary attitude and has become a take-charge guy on the track."

One Beer Coming Up

CHICAGO (AP) – Good La Quinta, whose reward will be a bellyfull of beer, won the $5,500 Alsad Purse Saturday before 6,620 spectators at Washington Park.

The 5-year-old Nebraska-bred gelding, owned by Augie Stella of Chicago and Babe Krajenke of Detroit, led most of the way under jockey Robert McKeever Jr. to win by 1½ lengths.

Good La Quinta defeated strong favorite Loose Dollar with Rock Creek Kid finishing third in the six-furlong sprint.

The winner paid $6.

"He'll get all the beer he wants tonight," said trainer Billy McKeever, brother of the jockey.

"I discovered last summer that he liked beer," the trainer said.

Now Good La Quinta drinks about a six-pack every day, starting with two in the morning. But two days before he's going to race he gets no beer until the race is over.

Illinois Sets Betting Marks

CHICAGO (AP) – All-time state records for revenue, betting and attendance were set in the 1976 Illinois thoroughbred and harness racing season, it was announced Saturday.

The Illinois Racing Board said total wagering at the flat and sulky tracks totaled $910,920,366. This was $122,825,926 more than went through the pari-mutuel machines in 1975, the best previous year.

Tax money to the state, derived principally from about 7¾ per cent of the betting, was more than $76 million, $10 million above 1975.

Attendance was 7,830,021 compared to 7,219,615 in 1975.

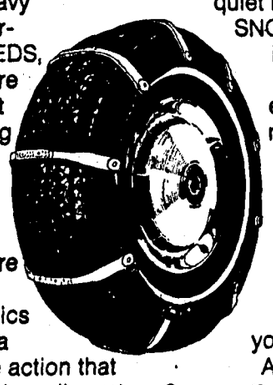
Board Chairman Anthony Scariano said the increases could be attributed to the extended thoroughbred racing season. The Chicago area flat tracks presented 251 days of racing last year compared to 187 days in 1975.

"The gains were in a large part due to 64 extra days of flat racing in Chicago and 30 additional nights of the sport downstate at Fairmount Park and Cahokia Downs," he said.

Double Quester Wins Tuscorara

PHILADELPHIA (AP) – Double Quester took command entering the stretch and held on to post a mild upset victory in the eighth running of the Tuscorara Handicap for fillies and mares at Keystone Race Track Saturday.

At the end of the 11-16 mile event, Jesus Huadalupe had guided Double Quester to a nose triumph over Gala Lil, the even-money favorite.



Northern Heiress, another two lengths backs, finished third.

Double Quester, winning her third straight race but her first stakes, paid $8, $3.80 and $2.80. Gala Lil returned $2.80 and $2.60, while Northern Heiress was worth $2.80 for show.

EARNS BADGE — Steve Joseph Miranda, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Miranda, of Fullerton, has been promoted to the rank of Eagle Scout. Steve's project earned $400 for the St. Francis Home in Santa Ana. A junior at Buena Park High School and member of Troop 452 Buena Park, he has been in scouting six years.

Consolidation Of Elections On SA Ballot

SANTA ANA – Voters in the April municipal election will be asked to decide if the city charter should be changed to allow city council elections to be consolidated with other agencies elections, such as school board.

The 1952 charter provides that general municipal elections shall be held the first Tuesday in April of odd-numbered years.

Councilmen proposed the change to allow the city election to be consolidatd with the city school district's March election.

"They have their election and then a month later, we have ours and we are criticized for wasting taxpayers' money on two elections," said Councilman James Ward.

The proposed charter change would allow councilmen to hold the municipal election as usual in April or at any other time for the purpose of consolidating elections with other agencies.

The proposal would require changes in several charter sections pertaining to elections.

The provision for seating newly-elected councilmen would be retained, however. That section states councilmen elected the first Tuesday in April are seated the second Tuesday in April.

If an election were held in March, those elected would have to wait until the second Tuesday in April to be seated.

The proposed changes, if approved by voters this April, would go into effect next year but school districts and other agencies still could refuse to consolidate their elections with the city's according to the city clerk's office.

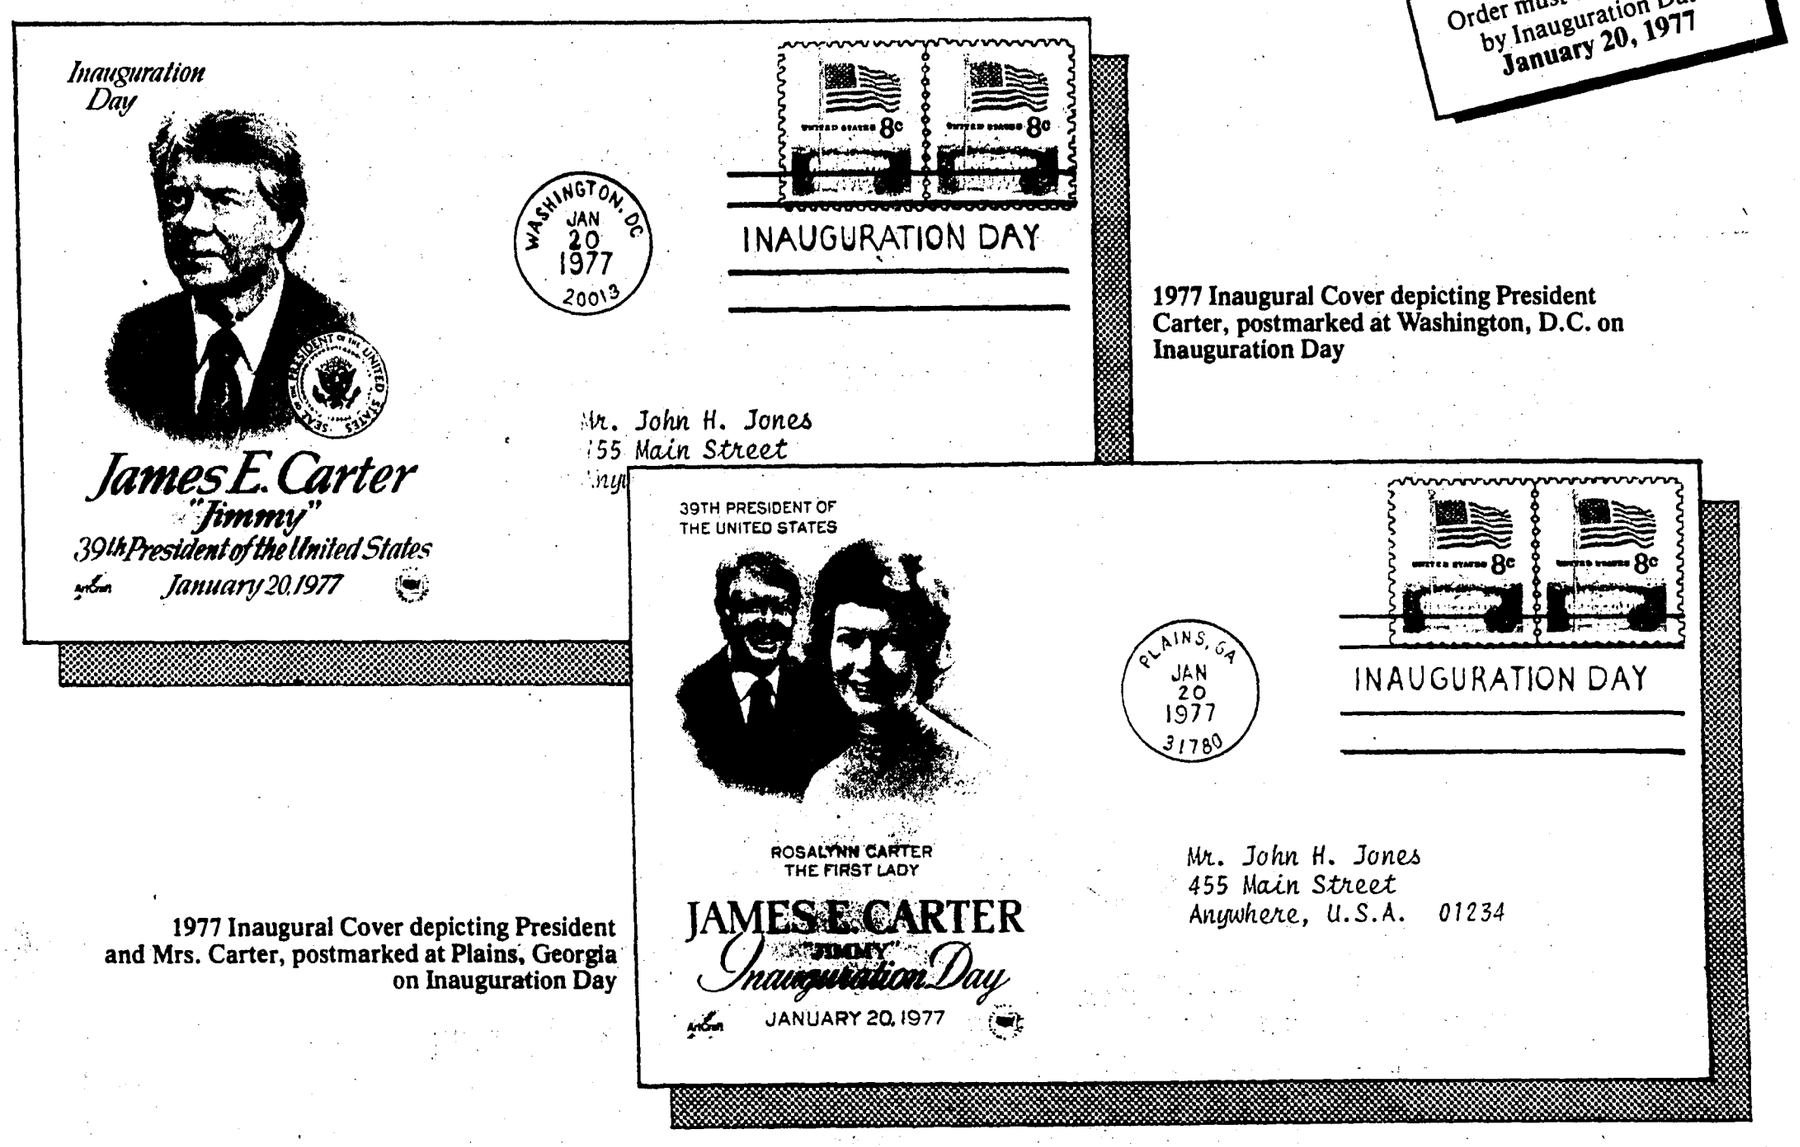
Models Sought For LB Pageant

LAGUNA BEACH – Even though opening night of the 42nd annual Pageant of the Masters is six months away, a casting call has been posted for models.

This year the pageant, which is the recreation of great works of art through the use of live models, will require more than 400 people to populate the Irvine Bowl stage during the show's six-week run.

Volunteers desiring to be a part of the pageant may sign up and be photographed backstage at Irvine Bowl, 650 Laguna Canyon Road, from 7 to 9 p.m. Jan. 22, and from 2 to 5 p.m. Jan. 23.

According to pageant officials, people of all ages, sizes and shapes are needed for the show which will feature art works from around the world.



Among the works being considered for presentation are the European fountain that is a part of the Marriott Hotel in Fashion Island, Newport Beach, and a portion of the Trevi Fountain in Rome, said pageant director Don Williamson.

Two casts of more than 200 people each will be chosen so that volunteers will be required to pose only every other week. Information is available through the Festival of Arts office, 650 Laguna Canyon Road, between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. weekdays.

This year's pageant will run nightly from July 15 through Aug. 28.

Ford, Aides Face Trauma Of Being On Outside Looking In

By SAUL PETT

EDITOR'S NOTE – With a close look at the outgoing President and the men who left before him, with interviews with Cabinet members and high White House officials, with fresh insight into the human equation of government, Saul Pett examines the other side of transition: the trauma of losing power.

WASHINGTON (AP) – Elliot Richardson, a man for all seasons who is out of season, has a playful idea.

It is to collect the brightest people about to lose their jobs in the federal government and form a small counterpart of the executive branch on the outside.

"We would hire ourselves out as professional opponents of whatever the new administration does. Anything they are for we are the experts in being against. We'd provide the analysis, develop the action recommendations, design the campaigns for public support, draft the bills for Congress. You could make millions that way, don't you think?

"If the administration drives up the price of mushrooms with a tariff on foreign mushrooms which are more cheaply produced, we're automatically for the mushroom eaters. If the President offers an energy contingency plan which in a crisis called for curtailment of weekend travel, the tourist industry would know automatically they could come to us and we'd develop the reasons why this is a terrible idea. If ..."

The outgoing Secretary of Commerce, who holds so many ex-titles he lives in fear of being introduced one day as the former Elliot Richardson, was, of course, making a joke about his future plans. But the area of his humor reflects a question occupying the minds of many of the nation's leaders who are now 11 days away from being stripped of all rank and almost all privileges:

How are you going to keep 'em down on the farm or up in the board room after they have seen the Great Inside, the center of the action and the power and the sometime glory, the perks and the pressure cookers at the highest levels of the federal establishment?

It is a problem of adjustment facing Gerald Ford because he has been President and won't be again; Elliot Richardson because he has been almost everything else in the executive branch but President; Henry Kissinger because he has lived and labored at the core of world peace or war for eight intense years. A problem of adjustment for the many others far removed from Armageddon but still in the thrall of the consuming challenge, the long, long hours, the heady excitement of trying to make a government of 215 million people work. Good, bad or indifferent, they tried and they will miss it.

"I can imagine," says Richardson now in a serious vein, "Feeling a sense of deprivation from not being a part of things I'll be reading about in the papers. A feeling that when I get up in the morning there isn't really anything very much facing me that day, no need to master the essence of a problem as soon as possible, no way to use accumulated experience, a sense of how to resolve problems, how to move things from here to there, how to elicit consensus and cooperation.

"It's like race horses no longer brought to the track. They probably are quite comfortable in their pastures. But it's different, very different."

In adjusting to private citizenry, Gerald Ford has at least this going for him: Before he got it, he never pursued the job. He was in it only two and a half years and, all hands seem to agree, never overtly became addicted to power. Even in its small uses. Orders were more often questions than orders.

"Bob," he'd say to his military aide, Maj. Robert Barrett, "do you suppose we can use a helicopter on this trip and save the long car ride?"

"Mr. President," Barrett said on more than one occasion, "you're President. You can do anything you want."

But going into retirement he will not have that comforting annuity enjoyed by every man who went before him, the knowledge that once there was a time when a majority of his voting countrymen chose to make him their leader. Even Richard Nixon has that to cling to.

Gerald Ford never sought the job but having gotten it he wanted to keep it by public reaffirmation, election. He thought he had earned the right to enter history with more than the unique title of "caretaker President."

"He thought he had done a good job here," said a man a few steps from the Oval Office. "He wanted to keep doing it because he thought he was right. He especially thought he had led a spiritual revival in the country. He genuinely identified himself with that great feeling we all had July 4. And that, more than anything, explains that look of deep hurt in his eyes on Nov. 3 and some of the days that followed."

"None of us who hasn't experienced it," said Ron Nessen, the President's press secretary, "can even come close to understanding that feeling. You work hard, you campaign hard. On Nov. 2, you seek the ultimate judgment of your peers, 215 million people, and it comes back, thumbs down."

While no one around gregarious, outgoing Gerald Ford expects him to become a brooding Hamlet in retirement, it is agreed he will have his problems. For 28 years in government, he was accustomed to coming to his desk every morning and working his way down the stack of paper. These mornings the stack is very low. After Jan. 20, it will be all gone.

"Because of his energy level, his relative youthfulness (at 63), his past patterns of work," said Maj. Barrett, who goes into retirement with Ford as chief assistant, "he will have to have a real replacement for what he does now. It cannot be artificial, it will have to have content and real challenge."

Accordingly, at Ford's behest, Barrett has been studying the ways in which other Presidents spent their days after the White House. All of them kept busy, but something was missing.

It feels, William Howard Taft once said, "like a giant locomotive suddenly pulling a toy train." The momentum remains. The payload is gone.

To bridge the gap from real power to no power, Lyndon Baines Johnson, that one-man cannon-balling express, threw himself with characteristic fury into his memoirs, a series of TV interviews, organizing the Johnson Library and the Johnson School of Public Affairs and running his ranch. Especially his ranch.

"He ran his cows the way he once ran the country," said his old friend, James Rowe. "All out."

The tractors and the pickup trucks were equipped with two-way radios and all hands were well advised to keep in close touch with the commander in chief. Where once he studied status reports on bills before Congress, he now read, with care, about the egg production of his 200 chickens.

The body count in Vietnam was replaced by the latest attendance figures at his birthplace and his library.

And, writer Doris Kearns tells us, once during a dry spell when a water pump failed and new parts were urgently needed, Johnson personally tracked down the manufacturer in Cincinnati by phone. He finally was assured the parts shipment was being expedited. Like a President thanking an allied Prime Minister for the promise of two air squadrons, Johnson thanked the parts man "for your help and support at this critical time."

His transition into private life was helped by his successor, Richard Nixon, according to Tom Johnson, who was the late President's administrative assistant in retirement and is now publisher of the Dallas Times Herald.

"Nixon treated him with enormous respect," Tom Johnson recalled. "Every Friday a Jetstar would land at the ranch with intelligence information. He was also advised in advance of major events. In fact, a day or two before he died, he was told that a peace agreement with Hanoi was about to be announced."

Like Lyndon Johnson, Dwight Eisenhower was long accustomed to power and the center of the action when his turn came to ride down Pennsylvania Avenue with the new man. Retiring to his farm in Gettysburg, he still retained his deep interest in national affairs while having no power to do anything about them.

He sublimated, especially in his first year out of office. When he read of a new national problem, he'd get on the phone and call various people, especially former members of his cabinet. He'd ask what they would do if they were still in a position to do anything about anything. And that was it, a meeting of a shadow cabinet by phone, poker for matchsticks.

Among recent Presidents, Harry Truman seemed to have the least difficulty in transition. This was in the days before ex-Presidents had the Secret Service with them in retirement. Returned to Independence, Harry Truman drove his own car, carried in the firewood, hauled out the ashes, helped with the dishes and, like most of his countrymen in a democracy, caught occasional hell from his wife for shooting from the hip.

"I don't worry about myself," Truman used to say. "I just have a good time as I go along. Leaving the White House involves no problem of adjustment if you were a common citizen before."

This quality of perspective, this self-sense of being ordinary, is frequently ascribed to one of Truman's admirers, Gerald Ford. It is never ascribed to Henry Kissinger. Which brings us to the Eastern Airlines shuttle, which out of towners may have to be told is the nonplush, non-reservation, common mode of air travel between Washington and New York. Though both have grown accustomed to government planes, people in Washington can somehow visualize Gerald Ford flying the shuttle but not Henry Kissinger.

And so, in a recent conversation about his departure from office and all its perks, Kissinger was asked by a reporter:

"Mr. Secretary, is it true that CBS has offered you $50,000 for the exclusive rights to film you getting on the shuttle?"

Kissinger: "True. They offered to make it $75,000 if I'd get into a middle seat."

Kissinger can and probably will make a pile of money from books, which should ease the pain of his transition. It is also likely that the new administration will call on him now and then for special uses. But mostly, day to day, he will be out of it, away from the action and the power, cut off from the daily cables from around the world, the umbilical cord of master diplomats.

"It will be difficult for him," said an associate, "the first time a head of state comes to Washington and Henry is not invited to the state dinner at the White House or the visitor doesn't seek him out for tea privately.

"He will no longer be able to affect events. He will move off the stage, where he was a leading player for eight years, to a seat in the audience, and that will not be easy for Henry Kissinger."

Lawrence Eagleburger, a deputy under-secretary of state:

"You can't live, as we have, with issues that might have involved the life and death of the country, and not be spoiled for most other kinds of work.

"It's like pot. You begin to live off the pace of events and the challenges that come around every day or every week. It keeps you jacked up. It is its own opiate and all of us who are leaving will have a problem getting over it."

Having become a familiar face on the evening news from crisis points all over the world, Kissinger, at least, will be spared the fate of one his predecessors. Dean Acheson left the state department in 1953 an embittered man, succeeded by a secretary who sought to discredit his policies completely.

A few months out of office, Acheson was riding a Pullman car where the man across the aisle was clearly having difficulty placing him. Finally, the stranger came over.

"Excuse me, sir, but aren't you John Foster Dulles?"

Acheson, mustache quivering: "Good (pause) God (pause), No!

One man who does not mind, in the least, not being recognized by strangers is William E. Colby, until 10 months ago director of the Central Intelligence Agency. Now in private life, writing a book, giving lectures and boning up for a law practice he left 26 years ago, America's former chief spook still attracts protestors, especially on publicized campus appearances.

Colby is no longer attended by CIA bodyguards, a fact, he said, which does not make him uneasy although he still carries top secrets in his head. He takes only ordinary precautions, he said, like having good locks on the doors of his home and not following a repetitious pattern of behavior, like being at the same street corner the same time every day.

"I don't see that anything more is necessary," he said. "After all, capturing me and squeezing secrets out of me would be quite a venture, a very difficult operation for any foreign country. The odds would be prohibitive."

Colby does not miss, he said, the lure of the inner councils of government, the occasional crisis atmosphere or the perquisites of office. What he does miss, he said, is information.

"I have to work hard to follow what is going on in the world through the papers and television. In one half hour of reading at the CIA I used to be very well informed. Also, I still find it difficult to read a whole book. The CIA accustomed me to short, sharp resumes."

Lawrence Eagleburger will miss it all, including having his mind and stamina stretched to the outer limits by Kissinger, a fierce taskmaster. "There wasn't a day I didn't have to be doing my best. If I gave him one sloppy answer, I'd get hit in the chops." He'll even miss the foulups, one in particular.

An American ambassador in country X of Africa was about to be replaced when the Secretary of State took off on his first African swing. Somebody goofed and the change in ambassadors was announced in Washington prematurely, just as Kissinger was landing in country X, to be greeted by the envoy just fired. Kissinger was on the phone moments later. Eagleburger apologized frantically for the awkward mistake in timing.

"That's all right, Larry," said the modern Metternich, after a pause. "Just don't announce my resignation until I get home because I need the plane to get back."

Richard B. Cheney, 35 and about to leave government, majored in political science in college and ultimately reached the "best place to practice the art form," the White House. Ford's chief of staff will miss:

"Not being involved. Not being able to walk down the hall to the Oval Office and recommend a course of action to the President of the United States. Not being there where fundamental decisions are made affecting the life of a country. It's heady stuff but nobody does it forever."

William Coleman, 56, secretary of transportation and a lawyer, will miss the combat of cabinet debate and trying to get legislation out of a Democratic Congress. He is frank enough to admit, "trying to work your will is one of those things which have always given me pleasure."

Ron Nessen, 42, a media man himself, will not miss combat with the White House media. "As individuals," he said, "reporters may be as compassionate as anyone. As a group, they are slow to forgive and forget a mistake."

He takes with him this framed quotation from his wall: "A press officer is like a man pegged out on an African ant hill for the termites of the daily press to eat into at will."

At this writing, Nessen doesn't know what he'll do after Jan. 20. Neither does Elliot Richardson, 56, a man with special problems. He frankly wants to run for President. What to do in the meantime?

"You might say I'm sort of a professional cabinet officer," said the man who has held more cabinet jobs than any in history. "My highest and best uses, I guess, are in the kinds of things I've been doing and there are no obvious substitutes."

Frank Zarb, 41, federal energy administrator, goes back to the investment business in New York, where he made $120,000 a year before coming to Washington for a third of that income. It was not a sacrifice, he says. He is grateful for the experience and the insight it gave him into the processes of government.

He goes with two convictions. One is that "people who say you can't get anything done in government because of the process probably couldn't get anything done elsewhere in life." The other is that "federal bureaucrats, as individuals, are the best, most talented, most dedicated employes I've seen anywhere."

He leaves content in the knowledge that "we turned the energy program around. We got at least half the legislation we asked for from Congress, not a bad batting average. It's a feeling of satisfaction that when you cut away all the political demogoguery you rally have been able to affect the process."

He does not, he says, think his ego will suffer the bends out of office because he frequently reminded himself the job was temporary and he was not indispensable. In terms of ego, his wife was of inestimatable value.

"Frank," Mrs. Zarb used to say every night to the United States energy czar, "don't forget to take out the garbage."

PROMOTIONS ARE A MAJOR BY-PRODUCT OF OUR EXPANSION

As one of the fastest growing firms in the computer industry, Computer Automation has a constant need for good clerical employees. And when new people join us, the people inside move up. So if you're ambitious, you can expect to grow right along with us. The only limitations are your own desire and ability. Why not contact Computer Automation today?

We have a number of clerical positions immediately available, from clerk typists to secretaries. Depending on your qualifications, duties may range anywhere from general secretarial work to order processing involving customer interaction. Openings exist primarily in the marketing area.

Ambitious people are needed at all experience levels. Typing at a minimum of 55 wpm is required for most clerical positions. Secretarial positions require typing of 65 wpm and shorthand at 100 wpm.

Some people say you get what you pay for! At Oakwood, you get more. And the price is less. When you consider: Health Clubs. Tennis. Free Tennis Lessons. Pro Shop. Billiards. Golf Driving Range. Swimming. Saunas. Jacuzzi. Color TV Theatre. Private Party Room. Plus great activities. Free Sunday brunch. Parties with live bands. Trips. Sports Tournaments.

Your rent dollars go even further because of a terrific maintenance crew, a professional management staff that cares, and interesting, friendly neighbors. Our models are open daily from 10 to 7. Sorry, no one under 21 & no pets. Move to Oakwood and learn to stretch your rental dollars.
